DEMOCRATS WIN IN KANSAS CITY; BLOW TO HYDE, HELP TO REED

Frank H. Cromwell's Unofficial Lead Over Foster Is 12,616, the Largest Majority Ever Given in Mayoralty Election in the City—Most of Ticket Goes With Him.

REPUBLICANS ELECT ONLY FOUR ALDERMEN

Governor Made His Administration Issue by Defending Former Police Board Head, Whose Official Acts Were Assailed by Reed.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5.—The political bosses of Kansas City, Tom Prendergast and Joe Shannon, Democrats, and Tom Marks, Republican, won over the so-called reform forces in a municipal election yesterday, the result of which probably will have a decided effect upon the United States Senatorship primary in Missouri in August.

Complete unofficial returns today gave Frank H. Cromwell, Democrat, 61,302 votes for the mayoralty, against 50,686 cast for Matthew A. Foster, Republican, making Cromwell's unofficial majority 12,616. These returns showed that Cromwell carried 12 out of the 16 wards here. Three Republican nominees for Alderman in the lower house are apparently elected, and a fourth may have been chosen.

Cromwell ran about 3000 votes ahead of most of the other candidates on the Democratic city ticket, the only Democrat receiving a larger majority being Ben Jaudon, City Treasurer. The Democrats elected the entire upper house of the City Council, at least 12 out of 16 Aldermen in the lower house and both Municipal Judges as well as the City Comptroller and the City Treasurer.

Reasons Hard to Analyze.

It is difficult to analyze the reasons for Foster's defeat, though apparently the principal factor was the methods he used as president of the Board of Police Commissioners in the enforcement of all laws and ordinances, and the cases of alleged police brutality which Senator Reed and the other Democratic speakers were able to show had been committed.

Gov. Hyde made his administration the real issue of the campaign. In 1920 he carried Kansas City by approximately 10,000 votes. The Democratic campaign was directed against Foster as a Hyde appointee, and the Governor put in the entire closing week of the campaign defending Foster, attacking the Democratic bosses, and in effect pleading in defense of his administration. The result of the election can be taken as little less than a repudiation of the State administration, a repudiation of State control of purely municipal police and election affairs, and as showing that the Democratic party has at least regained what it lost in the Republican landslide of nearly two years ago.

Largest Mayoralty Majority.

It was a smashing defeat for the Republicans, the Cromwell majority being the largest ever received by a candidate for the mayoralty in Kansas City, the largest previous majority being 10,000 for Henry L. Jost, Democrat, in 1914. Two years ago Foster was defeated by the late James Cowgill by a majority of about 2000. Three women were elected, Mrs. George B. Longan and Mrs. J. J. Sheperd, to the upper House of the Council, and Mrs. George W. Fuller, Republican, to the Board of Education.

The Republicans carried only four of the 15 wards of the city on the unofficial returns, though the official count may give them one more.

Effect on State Politics.

The effect of the election on State politics which may reasonably be expected is:

A boost of Senator James A. Reed, who made a vigorous campaign for Cromwell, for renomination.

GARY FAVORS ENGLISH TYPE OF HIGHWAY FOR MISSOURI

(Copyright, 1922.)

LONDON, April 5.—Theodore Gary, chairman of the Missouri Highway Commission, sailed for New York aboard the Aquatania Saturday, after spending some weeks in England, France and Germany, studying the roads of those countries. The most favorable impression was made upon him by the English road system, he told the Post-Dispatch correspondent, and he is returning to St. Louis with new ideas on the subject for application in Missouri. He particularly was impressed by his trip over the experimental road outside London, where there are sections of different construction. One of these sections, Gary said he believes, is the type of road best suited to Missouri both as regards cost and wearing qualities.

$28,716,909 COLLECTED IN TAXES DURING FISCAL YEAR

Of This Amount $8,276,916 Goes to Schools and $14,322,366 to City Treasury.

City Collector Koeln reported today that of the $28,716,909.36 collected in taxes by his department in the fiscal year ending last Friday, he diverted $8,276,916.01 to the Board of Education for school purposes, $14,322,366.66 to the city treasury and $1,001,210.17 to the State Treasury. The State income tax amounted to $2,388,601.65 and $2,727,814.87 was paid for water rates.

In the previous fiscal year, ending March 31, 1921, the City Collector turned over $6,061,521.83 to the Board of Education, $13,257,180.56 to the City Treasury and $1,424,388.19 to the State Treasury. The total amount of taxes collected in the fiscal year of 1920-1921 was $25,048,984.87.

REQUESTED TO LEAVE COLLEGE

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 5.—Bayard Wharton, senior at Harvard University, was requested to withdraw from the college after a meeting of the administrative board yesterday, it was learned authentically last night. College officials refused to deny or affirm the report.

Wharton, son of a Philadelphia banker, was a guest at the party at which Pauline Virginia Clarke, divorcee, swallowed poison and died soon after having announced her engagement to Wharton. Otto Haldor Larsen, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology senior, who also was at the party, ended his life by taking poison from the same vial used by Miss Clarke.

BILL TO WIDEN MARKET STREET LIKELY TO PASS

Streets Committee Votes on Favorable Submission of Recommendation to Board of Aldermen Friday.

WOULD NOT AFFECT THE UNION STATION

Forty Feet Would Be Added on South Side From Seventh to Vandeventer Avenue.

The bill authorizing the widening of Market street from 60 to 100 feet, by the removal of 40 feet on the south side from Seventh street to Vandeventer avenue, will be reported favorably to the Board of Aldermen Friday, the Streets Committee voted yesterday. The board is expected to pass the bill then, by suspension of the rules, because this will be the last regular meeting of the fiscal year. The bill also provides for widening Walnut street from Third to Sixth, with a diagonal cutoff to Market street in the block between Sixth and Seventh.

The cost of the widening is estimated at $12,000,000, of which the city will pay $5,000,000 and the balance will be assessed against those property owners whom Circuit Court commissioners decide will be benefited.

President Aloe and the members of the committee declared that this bill, after it is passed, and ordinances for the widening of Olive street and Twelfth street (North) should be repealed if an item for $8,000,000 for street widening in the proposed municipal bond issue should fail, so that the city should not hamper development of property by the shadow of proposed changes for which it has not the money to pay.

The Market street widening plan calls for a plaza at Seventh and Market streets and for another one in front of Union Station, between Eighteenth, Twentieth, Market and Chestnut streets, and would not necessitate any change in the structure of Union Station.

Legal proceedings are under way for the other two projected widenings. Olive street is to be widened from Twelfth to Channing, at an estimated cost of $3,000,000, of which the city will pay $600,000, and Twelfth street from Washington to Palm, by a new route, at an approximate cost of $580,000, the city paying $150,000.

KOERNER FINED $500 FOR ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF LIQUOR

Restaurant Man Week Ago Obtained 90-Day Stay of 3 Months' Jail Sentence on Sale Charge.

Ernst A. Koerner, president of the Merchants' Catering Co. at 408 Washington avenue, who a week ago obtained a 90-day stay of a jail sentence of three months for illegal sale of liquor upon plea that he was ill in bed in his home at 3503 Sidney street, appeared today in Federal Court and pleaded guilty to illegal possesion of liquor on May 4, 1920.

The offense was named in the indictment as a second one, punishable by jail sentence. His attorney cited, however, that two previous convictions of Koerner were on sale charges and that the law differentiated between sale and possession. Judge Faris supported this view, but imposed the maximum penalty for first offense, a fine of $500. Koerner paid it.

The first sale conviction of Koerner brought a fine of $500 and the second the three months' jail sentence and a fine of $500.

William Reis, saloon keeper at 9301 South Broadway, who was arrested there Aug. 8 last, pleaded guilty today to having liquor in the place then, and was fined $290 by Judge Faris.

MAN'S SATCHEL BETRAYS HIM

When Charles Hufschmidt of 4519 Emerson avenue, a cutlery grinder, passed two policemen yesterday, there was an odor of liquor. He was carrying a satchel and in it, besides his tools, were two bottles that emitted the odor. A search of Hufschmidt's home, the policemen declared, disclosed two stills, four barrels of mash and 10 gallons of alcohol.

Police reported they found a five-gallon jar and five quart, two pint and two half-pint bottles filled wtih liquor in a saloon at the northeast corner of Spring avenue and Olive street. Frank Brown, 24, in charge, was arrested.

FAMILY CARD GAME RAIDED; PLAYERS FREED BY COURT

Three Women, Four Men Taken From Flat at 3:35 A. M. to Station and Held for Several Hours.

FLAT ABOVE AN EMPTY STOREROOM

Home Brew Also Seized, but Warrant Is Denied Because Police Had No Search Warrant.

Eugene J. Schwind of 1927A Union boulevard, Mrs. Schwind and two women and three men who were their guests at a family card game in their flat night before last were discharged in Police Court today, when they were arraigned on complaint of the policemen who broke up their game of "rummy" at 3:35 a. m. yesterday, and who raided the flat and caused the seven card players to be held several hours at the Page Boulevard Station.

The police also failed today to obtain a State warrant against the Schwinds, based on the finding in the flat of eight bottles of homemade beer and two baskets of empty beer bottles. Associate Prosecuting Attorney Connor asked the policemen if they had a search warrant, and when they said they did not, he remarked that they were lucky not to have been met with a shotgun.

Dismissed by Judge Mix.

The police court case was dismissed by Judge Mix when it appeared that the charge was one of general peace disturbance. Under the ordinance, a general disturbance of the peace cannot be committed by persons within a house. If the charge had been made one of disturbance of the peace of individuals, and if any individuals who were disturbed had been present as witnesses, the case could have gone on. As it was, it was dismissed without calling the policemen to the witness stand.

Police Captain Schwartz of the Page Station, when questioned today, said the policemen acted on their own initiative, and not on any complaint of neighbors, in making the arrest. He said also that the police had received no previous complaint against the Schwind home.

"About 3 a. m. yesterday," Capt. Schwartz said, "Patrolman Kaecher, who walks that beat, heard loud noises coming from the open windows of the Schwind flat. He did not wish to enter the house on his own responsibility, so he called up the station and was told to await his Sergeant. Sergt. Nehoul was sent to join him, and he reported later that the noise from the flat could be heard a block away. After listening to some of the language used, he decided to enter, at least, to warn them to be more quiet. He took some other policemen, entered and found the people playing cards, also the beer and empty bottles. They then arrested the party."

The Schwinds' flat is above a vacant storeroom. Schwind conducts a general merchandise store at Black Jack. His guests who were arrested gave their names and other data as follows: Mrs. Emma Meyers, living at the Schwind flat; Miss June Day, Kirkwood; Eugene J. Sartorious, 2049A Allen avenue, lawyer, and John Keller, American Annex, and John B. Sims, 2305 South Eleventh street, real estate dealers.

A Post-Dispatch reporter telephoned to Eugene J. Sartorius of 2049A Allen avenue, a lawyer, and asked him whether he was the man arrested under that name. He said he was not. When inquiry was made at the American Annex Hotel for John Keller, the clerk said no such person was known there.

"Hammered on the Door."

Schwind said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"We were held at the police station nearly six hours before we were able to furnish bond. I wouldn't care so much, but we were only playing a quiet game of cards. I have a card party at my home once a month, and I don't see anything wrong in that.

"There were four policemen in the raid. They hammered on the front door and in loud tones demanded admission. I thought at first they were robbers, but admitted them when I saw they were policemen. They went through the house, searching every room. They took the homemade beer from the icebox and the baskets of empty bottles from the kitchen, and then placed additional charges of violating the State prohibition law against Mrs. Schwind and me.

"Two of my guests were real estate men, one was a lawyer and the women were old friends of the family. One resides in Kirkwood and the other stops at our home."

Army Officer Who Was Slain by Wealthy Oil Man, and Latter's Wife, Who Says He Made Improper Advances

LIEUT.-COL. PAUL W. BECK. MRS JEAN P. DAY.

THREE INVESTIGATIONS OF SLAYING OF ARMY OFFICER

Military Commission Will Go to Oklahoma City—Mrs. Day Tells of Advances by Lieut.-Col. Beck Before Tragedy

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., April 5.—Preparations were made today for three separate inquiries into the events surrounding the death of Lieutenant-Colonel Paul Ward Beck, pioneer army aviator, and assistant commandant of Post Field, Fort Sill, Ok., who was killed by Jean P. Day, wealthy oil operator, and prominent Oklahoma attorney, in the latter's home here early yesterday morning when, according to Day, Beck was found attacking Mrs. Day.

A civil investigation by county authorities will determine the charges to be filed against Day in connection with the killing.

A military commission of three army officers, headed by Maj. Thomas B. Lanthier, will come here, according to an announcement at Post Field, and investigate the killing. The commission is expected to arrive Friday or Saturday.

A third inquiry got under way when M. F. Meadows, Federal Prohibition Director for Oklahoma, began to check up to ascertain whether liquor might have had a part in the party which preceded the killing of Lieutenant-Colonel Beck.

Day, in an interview, declared he had no thought of killing Beck when he returned to his home, and, he alleges, found the army officer attempting to assault Mrs. Day. His only intent, Day said, was to drive Beck from his home. He feared Beck might be armed, he said, and for this reason obtained a revolver.

Statement by Mrs. Day.

A statement came from Mrs. Day early today giving for the first time her version of the killing. She was under the care of a nurse.

"Beck visited our home on numerous occasions," Mrs. Day said. "One time he called when Mr. Day was away, but it was a very brief visit.

"However, each time he called, previous to Monday night, he acted as a perfect gentleman in every respect, coming into our home merely as a friend and one whom we were always glad to see because of his geniality. We greatly enjoyed having him, inasmuch as he was brilliant and an acceptable addition to any company.

"Early Tuesday morning, however, after Mr. Day left in the automobile to take the other guests home, he seized me by the wrists and threw one arm around me. It was a total surprise to me. Nothing like that ever occurred before and I was dumbfounded by his action. As he held me, he made improper proposals to me. I struggled vainly to free myself from his grasp.

"It was while I was thus struggling that Mr. Day opened the door and walked in. He immediately went upstairs. It seems to me that several minutes must have passed before I heard him coming down the stairs again. I remember very distinctly that he was standing on the landing with a pistol in his hands. When I first saw him I was terrified. I remember distinctly that I screamed several times.

"After that I remember nothing more. Weakened by the struggle to free myself from Beck's grasp, I felt myself fainting. The whole room swam before my eyes and passed away. The next thing I remember is indistinct. It is that someone was undressing me and telling me to be quiet—that I needed rest.

"What happened after I saw Mr. Day on the landing there? I am unable to tell. I just remember that everything seemed to dim before my eyes and faded out."

Day Gives Details of Tragedy.

"Could any red-blooded American do anything else when his confidence is violated, his home invaded and his faithful wife insulted and violently attacked?" he asked.

Clad in house coat and slippers, with a burned-out cigar between his fingers, Day sat on the front porch of his home and recited the details.

"So help me, God, I never meant to kill Beck," Day declared. "I loved Beck like a brother.

"He had my complete confidence. He had the run of my home. He was at liberty to come in unannounced for dinner or as an overnight guest. He had entertained us often at Post Field. No man could have trusted a brother more. He came up last night unannounced. He was sitting on the porch when I drove up at 5:30 p. m. Said he was coming to stay all night."

Judge Day said he and Beck and Mrs. Day dined at a hotel. Mrs. Day suggested attending a motion picture show, but Day begged off. So Beck and Mrs. Day went to the theater alone, agreeing to pick him up later at the hotel, Judge Day said. Beck and Mrs. Day returned to the hotel and met Mr. and Mrs. L. H Prichard, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Anderson, and Maj. R. B. Paddock, of Fort Sill. They left a note saying they had gone to Prichard's home and asked Day to come there. Day went and there the party danced.

"It was midnight or after when we left Prichard's home," Day said. "I suggested that they all come over to my house and dance and we came. It may have been after 1:30 o'clock when the Prichards started for home. The Andersons had no car, so I offered to drive them home.

Was Gone a Half-Hour.

"Mrs. Day was tired and did not accompany me. Beck said he would stay and entertain Mrs. Day. "I may have been gone half an hour.

"When I stopped my car on the driveway, I heard a commanding voice coming from somewhere. The blinds in front were all up. I came up the side steps and saw Beck struggling with the purest, cleanest woman in the world. He was attempting to assault her and as I hurried to the door. I could hear her

10-YEAR TERMS FOR TWO KROGER ROBBERS

Men, After Guilty Pleas, Assert They Were Promised Five Other Cases Would Be Dismissed.

Circuit Judge Hogan, Circuit Attorney Sidener and two defendants in first-degree robbery cases indulged in spirited colloquy today in Judge Hogan's court, when, after the defendants had pleaded guilty to two charges and been sentenced to 10 years each in the penitentiary, the Circuit Attorney refused to nolle pros five other charges pending against the two men.

Joe Marcella, 22, of 1213 Dolman street, and Horace Thornton, 22, of 1516 Mississippi avenue, had just received ten years each for the robbery of two Kroger stores when Judge Hogan turned to Assistant Circuit Attorney Schweitzer and said:

"I suppose you'll want to drop these other five charges."

Referred to Circuit Attorney.

Circuit Attorney Sidener was sitting in the courtroom and Schweitzer referred the Judge to him.

"Your Honor, I'd prefer to continue the cases generally," Circuit Attorney Sidener said.

"That just clutters up our books," Judge Hogan replied, impatiently.

That was the cue for the two defendants(who loudly proclaimed that Assistant Circuit Attorney Schweitzer had promised to dismiss the other five robbery charges against them if they pleaded guilty in two cases.

"That's all right, boys," Circuit Attorney Sidener said to the defendants. "They'll never be tried. I'll give you my word. But I want to continue them generally, just generally, you know how it is."

The defendants made it clear that they did not appreciate "how it was," but they were led back to jail.

They pleaded guilty to robbing William Kasten, manager of a Kroger grocery at 3824 Virginia avenue, of $16.57 on Feb. 27 last, and Robert E. Murphy, manager of a Kroger grocery at 2909 Lemp avenue, of $58 Jan. 28, last. They also had confessed five other Kroger store robberies.

Explanation by Sidener.

When a Post-Dispatch reporter asked Sidener his reason for refusing to dismiss the cases he said that a general continuance was virtually the same as a nolle prosse.

"I don't know what this stir is all about," he said. "I'll dismiss those cases as soon as the men are in the penitentiary. A general continuance after sentence removes the bondsman from liability on his bond just the same as a nolle prosse does. There's really no difference."

BRITAIN INFORMALLY AGREES IN OCCUPATION COST VIEWS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—Acceptance by the British Government of the equity of the American views pertaining to the maintenance costs of the American army of occupation, as expounded in the recent note of Secretary of State Hughes to the allies, has been informally conveyed to the American Government, although a formal note officially confirming the acceptance has not yet been dispatched.

French Reply Likely to Hold That Interest Payment Is Bound Up With Inter-Allied Debts, Paris Paper Forecasts.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—The British Government has addressed a note to the allies, declaring that, owing to the fact that Great Britain has to pay the interest on her debt to the United States, she reserves to herself the right to call upon the allies in turn to pay the interest on their war debts to Great Britain.

In this connection, it is pointed out that Great Britain is now fully prepared to pay the interest due the United States.

The three-year agreement between Great Britain and the United States lapses May 15, from which time interest on the debt due by Great Britain to the United States begins to accrue, so that Great Britain will pay six months' interest the coming fall. Similarly the agreement between Great Britain and her debtors terminates almost immediately.

Japanese Delegates to Genoa Conference Named.

TOKIO, April 5.—The appointment of Baron Hayarashi, Ambassador to Great Britain; Viscount Ishii, Ambassador to France, and Kogo Mori, financial commissioner in London, as the Japanese delegates to the Genoa Conference, has been officially confirmed.

A Forecast as to French Reply to the British.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 5.—The French reply to the British note concerning payment of interest on war loans by England is likely to be that the question is bound up with that of the inter-allied debts, which must be dealt with as a whole, says the Echo de Paris, quoting a well informed source. Piece-meal payment will only hamper the settlement, the reply will say.

The British commission notified France that the three years' convention expiring at an early date would not be renewed.

The understanding in French official circles has been that the whole question of the inter-allied debts would come up soon on the initiative of Great Britain, as the American funding bill requires the payment of interest on the debts of the allies to the United States. As all of these operations are linked together it is held in French circles that a settlement between any two countries requires a general adjustment.

British Reported Laying Aside $125,000,000 for Interest.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Beyond press reports of Great Britain's preparation to begin the payment of interest upon her five billion war debt to this country, the Treasury is as yet without information on the subject.

Great Britain, officials said today, has been reported as laying aside £25,000,00 in her budget for this year to meet interest payments to this country. In October the first semiannual interest payment will fall due after the expiration of the three-year period during which, by mutual understanding, interest on the debt was deferred.

On April 15 the deferred interest due from Great Britain, officials said, will amount to approximately $615,000,000, but this sum, it has been understood, would be the subject of funding negotiations along with the principal of the debt, when the new debt commission begins working out a general liquidation scheme.

COMMITTEE GOING ON WITH INQUIRY

Attorney - General's Statement Outlining "Hands-Off" Policy for the Administration Considered.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Following up the overture it has made toward settlement of the bituminous coal strike, the House Committee on Labor continued its hearings on the subject today by considering briefly Attorney-General Daugherty's statement of last night outlining for the administration a "hands-off" policy for the present.

Representative Bland, Republican, Indiana, whose resolution to direct the President to appoint a coal inquiry commission occasioned the Labor Committee's interest, read Daugherty's statement into its record and upon learning that President Lewis of the United Mine Workers had left the city called to the witness stand John Moore, executive representative of the union in Washington.

Says Mine Officials Refused.

"Mr. Daugherty says, after declaring that the operators were wrong in refusing to confer with the mine workers in attempt at settling the strike issue in advance, that the united mine officials themselves refused last fall or some later time to confer with the operators for the same purpose," Bland said. "Now has there ever been a time when the United Mine Workers have refused to open negotiations with the central competitive field operators for a new wage scale after April 1, in accordance with their agreement?"

"No, sir," Moore replied. "There never has been such a refusal by the union."

"Has President Lewis ever refused to enter such a conference with the operators, as a representative of the United Mine Workers?" Bland pursued.

"Not to my knowledge," Moore said, "and I am sure that he has always been willing and ready to negotiate."

Moore was excused and the committee recessed for the day.

Chairman Nolan gave notice that it would continue tomorrow, hearing operators and miners from the central Pennsylvania fields discuss the strike and related matters.

Attorney-General's Statement.

Attorney-General Daugherty issued a statement saying:

"At no time has the Government taken either side as to the merits of the matter in dispute and contention. I was of the same opinion held by the President, the Secretary of Labor and practically everybody connected with the Government that the operators should have waived any technical objection and met the miners prior to April 1, notwithstanding the fact that the miners previous to that time, had themselves refused to meet the operators. It was no time for technicalities; that time is past.

"The Government is interested, as representing the American people in seeking that order is preservd and property protected. * * * I see no evidence, and I hope there will be none of any violation of the law in connection with the so-called strike. Men have a right to quit work and men have a right to employ other men on such terms as may be agreed upon. The resources of the country belong to an area for the use of the entire country. Fuel is indispensable to transportation, and transportation and fuel are indispensable to the commerce of the country and the health and comfort of the people.

States to Keep Order.

"If there should be any disorders, which I hope there will not be and I see no reason at this time for believing there will be, then it will fall on the several states and localities to see that order is restored. If that cannot be done by local and state agencies, whose obligation it is first to perform these functions, then the Government will perform whatever its duty in the premises may be.

"This is a country of law and order; property and life and business must be made safe. If those on both sides of this disagreement will keep down passion and keep out falsehood, misrepresentation, poison and malice, as reasonable and sensible men are expected to do, the public will not suffer and probably neither will suffer so much."

begging and pleading and trying to shame him.

"I do things methodically. When I saw what was going on, I decided to drive him out of the house.

"Just before I turned the knob, it occurred to me that army officers often go armed and that I had better get my gun.

"Beck jumped up from the couch as quickly as a cat, as I came in the door, and went toward the dining room, which is separated from the living room by portieres, partly drawn. When I got my revolver and came downstairs, I paused on the landing, looking into the living room, but Beck was not to be seen. Then I turned around and went down a short flight of steps to the kitchen, instead of going down into the living room. I thought I would find him if I made the circuit.

"It occurred to me that Beck had left the house as I started through the kitchen. I paused in the breakfast nook and, looking through into the dining room, I saw the portieres bulged together.

"I walked in and Beck stepped out boldly. He looked me in the eye. I was just four feet from him.

"I said: 'Now you get out of my house, you cur.'

"His right hand was clinched and he had hold of his Sam Brown belt. He pulled that arm back. It may have been for a blow. Thought he might be armed. I do not know.

"I jumped in and brought my gun down on his head with great force. The impact discharged the weapon. That is the truth."

The Coroner's jury late yesterday viewed the body of Lieutenant-Colonel Beck. The bullet discharged when the revolver struck Beck's head had not been found. Undertakers said it might have lodged in a soft part of the brain.

"From the appearance of the wound, the bullet did not lodge in the skull or brain, but passed out and struck somewhere in the woodwork of the house," said Coroner A. W. McWilliams. "When I arrived at the Day home the body was lying four feet from the divan with the head between the drawing room and the dining room and the feet toward the front door. The head was lying in a pool of blood.

"There were sliced oranges and bottles about the room. Mrs. Day was frantic and nothing could be drawn from her as to the advances Beck is alleged to have made, or how long before the return of Day the Lieutenant-Colonel had been attacking her."

KANSAS CITY VOTE BLOW AT POLICE ACTS, REED SAYS

Senator Declares Election Vindicates Him in Assertion That Commissioners Should Be Tried.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Talking across a desk piled with congratulatory telegrams, Senator Reed declared today the result of the Kansas City election vindicated him in his assertion that the Police Commissioners of Kansas City should be tried "for criminal abuse of their powers" and that Gov. Hyde "should be impeached and brought before a jury" to answer for the conduct of his commissioners which he has sanctioned and approved.

A sharer in Reed's jubilation after the Democratic victory in Kansas City was former Congressman W. L. Igoe of St. Louis, who is here on legal business. Igoe, who is aiding Reed in his campaign for re-election to the Senate, said the Kansas City election had demonstrated that the people of that city were for enforcement of the law, but by methods within the law. Igoe said that Reed had vitalized the issue in Kansas City and contributed greatly to the result.

"Though I have always been a League of Nations man," said Igoe, "I am heart and soul for Reed's election, because I believe him to be the foremost champion of fundamental Democratic principles and the foremost defender of the Constitution in the Senate."

Reed's Statement on Result.

Reed, commenting on the Kansas City result, said the issue squarely presented was whether the constitutional rights of the people could be violated by Gov. Hyde and his Police Board appointees.

"Under the direction of the Police Board," he said, "the police arrested tens of thousands of citizens, locked them in cells in the city holdover and put no charge against them unless it was the meaningless charge of 'investigations.' Citizens were held without bond for many hours in filthy cells, and in most instances they were not permitted to communicate with their families, friends or lawyers.

"Some of them were held for as long as two days and many were put through the police 'show up,' that is, they were inspected by the police as if they were the worst types of criminals.

"Thousands of citizens after being humiliated in this manner, were turned loose with no charge whatever having been placed against them, and after that were cursed, insulted and abused.

"Foster, Hyde's appointee as head of the Police Board, had organized what he called an ax squad. These men, some times headed by the Police Commissioners themselves, would enter places of business which they saw fit to characterize as 'dives' and with their axes would chop up furniture and fixtures, break mirrors and generally demolish the place.

"The police would go into the homes of private citizens without warrant of any kind and conduct illegal search. In doing this, they perpetrated numerous acts of abuse upon absolutely reputable citizens. The Police Board issued orders to policemen, many of whom were absolutely green men, to "shoot to kill' an dto 'bring tnem in on a slat." Either as a result of their orders or from sheer incompetency and viciousness several murders were committed."

Says Hyde "Justified Outrages."

Reed recounted several instances of alleged police outrages, the details of which he has told in his Kansas City speeches and continued: "Gov. Hyde came to Kansas City and with all these facts before him he sanctioned and justified the outrages of the police force, offering no excuse except that he proposed to enforce the law and undertaking to palliate the outrage by charging they had been committed by soldiers who had been on the force, but he did not discharge the soldiers. He only sought to shield himself behind a slander against the gallant men who fought in France. As a matter of fact, the outrages were the direct result of the policies of the Police Board.

"Hyde came and took the stump, defending his Commissioner and their abuse of the Constitution. He descended into the very depths of blackguardism in coupling the name of a distinguished Circuit Judge with that of a notorious prostitute.

"The issue, therefore, was squarely presented whether Hyde and his tyrannical abuse of the police power were to be sanctioned or rebuked by the people at the polls. The people have proven their answer."

THEATER PROPRIETOR ARRESTED

Joseph Erber og Kirkwood, proprietor of Erber's Theater, Collinsville and Illinois avenues, East St. Louis; Albert Schaeffer of 1919 Montgomery street, and James E. Allen of Chicago, actors, were arrested today on warrants charging them with interfering with a State officer in the discharge of his duty, sworn to by J. J. Mullen, a State Factory Inspector. They gave bond.

Mullen declared that when he attempted to learn the identity of two little girls, aged 5 or 6, who appeared at Erber's Theater in a song and dance act, Monday, which was "amateur night," Erber and the two actors, who are professionals, interfered with him. Mullen said the law forbids the public appearance of children and that Erber agreed to let no more appear in his theater.

'TRYING TO SWEAR NURSE'S LIFE AWAY' ATTORNEY ASSERTS

Olivia Stone's Lawyer Charges Political Gang Is Pushing Murder Charge Against Kinkead's Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Summing up today at the trial of Miss Olivia M. P. Stone, graduate nurse charged with murdering Ellis G. Kinkead in Brooklyn last August, Edward J. Reilly, defense counsel, charged that "the gang that rules Cincinnati," the city that Kinkead once served as corporation counsel, was trying to swear away the life of his client.

In dramatic fashion Reilly challenged Kinkead's widow, who sat weeping in the courtroom, to defy him to prove his charges that she had been a woman of the underworld, and dared anyone to take the stand and testify that his client, "this good Southern girl," lied.

Wan and haggard after a sleepless night in jail, Miss Stone entered the room weeping.

"I put my trust in God, the jury and Judge Aspinall," she said to reporters as she took her seat.

Widow Also Shows Strain.

Mrs. Kinkead, who has been an interested spectator throughout the trial, also showed the effects of the strain. When Reilly brought her name into his address to the jury, she so lost her composure that for a moment she had to leave the courtroom. She soon returned, however, and sat crying as he concluded his address.

"If the defense comes forward with a defense of insanity," he said, "the State must prove Miss Stone sane. It must prove her clear in mind and establish that she knew what she was doing when she shot Kinkead.

"This is one of the most important cases that ever have been tried in Brooklyn. All the country is watching it. It involves every woman in the United States, because it involves the honor of every woman in the United States."

Assistant District Attorney Warbasse told the jury that because Kinkead would not "stay vamped," Miss Stone killed him.

He said: "When Miss Stone took Kinkead to Atlantic City (where she claimed to have been married to him by common law in 1918) she thought he was a nice piece of fruit just ripe to pluck. She thought he was the right man to vamp and she vamped him, but he wouldn't stay vamped, and because he would not stay vamped, she killed him.

Insanity Plea Made.

The "temporary insanity" defense, tenaciously upheld by Reilly throughout the trial, was attacked through the expert testimony yesterday of Dr. Sylvester R. Leahy, who said that, in his opinion, Miss Stone was not insane when she shot Kinkead.

Tension in the courtroom reached a climax. Only Miss Stone seemed unaware of the crisis. She sat with her head on her hands, her black mourning hat well over her face, as motionless as though she were asleep. Prosecutor Warbasse had called Dr. Leahy as alienist, in place of Dr. Cecil McCoy, who was suddenly obliged to go to the bedside of his mother, and so could not testify.

Unmoved by Untoward Answer.

Dr. Leahy, who is a Brooklyn police surgeon, answered technical questions from both sides as to the symptoms of emotional insanity, and the effect that gin would have on an excited person. He said that in Miss Stone's case, the three drinks she got from a neighborhood saloon just before the shooting probably would have given a "pleasurable relief," and certainly would not have caused the three-day loss of memory which figures largely in the defense. He admitted, however, that the gin might have given her "Dutch courage" to commit the crime.

The hypothetical question, picturing the brilliant, but weak Kinkead as torn between the affections of two women ended, "Would you say, with reasonable certainly, that the defendant knew the nature and quality of her act?"

"In my opinion she did," answered Dr. Leahy.

Miss Stone did not move, but Mrs. Ellis Kinkead, widow of the slain man, burst into animated whisperings with the friends who have sat next her nearly every day.

Defense Theory Battered.

Other evidence yesterday came in the statement of the jail doctor, Charles Stoerzer, that Miss Stone had not shown signs of "blank memory" when he attended her the day after the murder. The same point was brought out when Detective Herting of New York testified she had talked to him in the patrol wagon going to the jail. At that time she told him, he testified, that she was glad she had killed Kinkead.

The theory propounded by the defense from the start is that the murder was not premeditated, but the result of a sudden "brain explosion." This theory received another blow in the testimony of Police Detective Sowable, called from Cincinnati by the prosecution. He testified Miss Stone came up to him in the lobby of a hotel there and told him her troubles. She said, he testified, that if she got to Brooklyn and found Kinkead and "that Gormley woman" living together she would kill Kinkead.

Also she told the detective, he said, that she had been to the District Attorney's office for help, but that "Jimmie Clark threw me down."

KROGER MANAGER TELLS OF 3 MEN ROBBING STORE OF $50

Says Two of Robbers Were Armed—Another of Chain Stores Held Up Yesterday.

Three men, two displaying revolvers, entered a Kroger grocery at 5400 Plover avenue at 9:30 a. m. today, and ordered the manager, Henry Deibrich, to lie down on the floor, behind the counter. He did so. The robbers took from the cash register an amount which the manager says was between $50 and $60, and ordered him to remain behind the counter for five minutes. He heard them riding away in an automobile.

When a customer entered a Kroger grocery at 2525 North Prairie avenue at 3:30 p. m. yesterday he heard a loud pounding on the door of a rear room fastened by an iron bar set in sockets on either side of the door. He lifted the bar and released the manager, Edward Hanlon, of 4462A Maffitt avenue, who later told the police he had been locked in the room by two young men who entered the place shortly after 3 p. m. and, producing revolvers, held him up and made him get in the room. He said the robbers had taken $45 from the cash register.

JAPANESE BLAME CHITANS FOR SATURDAY'S CLASH

Fight Occurred at Spasska, Where Japanese Patrol was Fired On, Tokio States.

TOKIO, April 5.—According to a report from the commanding officer of the Japanese troops in Siberia, Saturday's clash between forces of the Chita Republic and Japanese troops, in which 80 Chitans were killed, occurred at Spasska, 100 miles north of Vladivostok.

The report places the blame for the battle upon the Chitans, stating that the Chitans claimed the Japanese had nullified the Russo-Japanese agreement by aiding the White forces. According to the report, the Chitans had been in restricted territory for a week despite warnings. Saturday they moved on Spasska, firing on a Japanese patrol, it was stated. They were ordered to disarm, and the battle followed. The Japanese forces were victorious.

Tokio is not greatly excited over the battle, due to the belief that the Darien conference will have a successful culmination and permit early evacuation.

Japanese troops, which have been stationed along the Shantung Railway, on the Shantung peninsula in China, are being withdrawn, it was announced today. In accordance with the agreement reached at Washington, the policing of the railway is being turned over to the Chinese.

SUNDAY BLUE LAW APPROVED IN ELECTION AT SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 5.—Springfield's "blue law," closing the theaters on Sunday, was approved by a vote of almost two to one in yesterday's municipal election, when the voters rejected a proposal to suspend the ordinance. The final count was 6396 against the suspension and 3550 for it. This was the second time the voters had expressed their views on the question of Sunday amusements, the ordinance having been approved at a special election several months ago.

The question has arisen as to whether the ordinance might be interpreted to include Sunday baseball games this summer. As yet city officials have not announced their stand on that question. Springfield is in the Western Association.

WOMAN'S HOME IS ROBBED AFTER SHE LEAVES TO VOTE

Stopping at Friend's House, She Learns of Robbery, and Returns Without Voting.

Mrs. Anna Schmeider, 68, Aberdeen place, left her home at 2 p. m. yesterday for a polling place a block away, intending to vote in the Clayton city election. On the way she stopped at the home of a friend for an hour and at 3 o'clock received a telephone message from her daughter, Josephine, 19, who had just returned from school, that their home had been robbed.

Mrs. Schmeider hurried to her home and found that a silver tea service set, valued at $400, and jewelry valued at $100 had been taken. Incidentally, the excitement attending the discovery of the robbery was sufficient to prevent Mrs. Schmeider from voting.

FOUNDRY BOSS KILLS EMPLOYE

Shoots Man Who Wounded Another After Being Discharged.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—E. J. Powers, superintendent of a foundry company, today shot to death in his office an employe, Charles Falfield, who, disgruntled over being discharged, had rushed into the office firing a pistol.

Another employe was wounded by Falfield before Powers killed him.

District Attorney Clark is the man Miss Stone dramatically swears she does not know. She collapsed the day he testified to her visiting his office with a complaint against Kinkead.

The sworn statement of Clark was corroborated yesterday by Harry Abrams, an assistant District Attorney, who said he was in the office when Miss Stone called.

"She told me something about Kinkead and asked me if a warrant could be issued against him," Abrams swore.

Severe Blow to Hyde.

The election was a severe blow to Gov. Hyde and to his administration in St. Louis and Kansas City in the adoption of extra-legal methods in the enforcement of law.

The campaign was the most spectacular in the history of the State. It was a fight to the last ditch by the old-time political bosses, who fought almost alone to maintain their power. They had no support from any newspaper and were able to get their propaganda and replies to attacks before the public only through speeches, neighborhood meetings and handbills. They had arrayed against them the Kansas City Star and the Kansas City Journal, Republican newspapers, while the Kansas City Post, Democratic newspaper, was neutral.

It was conceded by both sides in the campaign that the bosses had a big lead several weeks ago, but it was the general opinion in Kansas City that this had been largely overcome in the final 10 days of the campaign, and that Foster had a better than even chance to win. The Democratic leaders, including Shannon, had abandoned hope yesterday afternoon. Shannon told the Post-Dispatch correspondent that the reports he was receiving from precincts in all parts of the city led him to believe that Foster had been elected.

Surprise to Democrats.

The result, when the returns began coming in last night, was fully as surprising to the Democratic leaders as it was to the Republicans, who for several days had been of the opinion that Foster would win.

Generally speaking, Twelfth street in Kansas City is the dividing line politically, the wards north of Twelfth street being boss-controlled Democratic wards, while those south of Twelfth street are either Republican wards or wards in which the balance of power is held by independent voters. The Republicans at all times conceded the North End wards, which correspond to the downtown river wards of St. Louis, to Cromwell and the bosses. They expected the south, or residence, wards to roll up a Republican majority which would overcome the advantage of the Democrats in the North End. The residence wards failed of the expectation.

The first returns, which began coming in at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners within 30 minutes after the polls closed, showed Democratic gains over the general election returns in 1920, when Harding carried Kansas City by approximately 5000. Later in the evening the returns from the residence wards showed that the Republicans had lost in almost every precinct. At 10 o'clock, with one-third of the 331 precincts in, the Star conceded Cromwell's election, though no majority was conceded publicly. On the basis of the returns at that time, which showed Cromwell leading by about 12,000, experienced Kansas City politicians figured Cromwell's majority would be between 6000 and 8000.

Points Made by Bosses.

The points made by the bosses in the campaign were:

That Foster-appointed policemen had invaded private homes without warrants, and had without legal right attacked men and women.

That persons who were not even suspected of law violations, but who merely happened to be in places in which the police suspected there might have been violations of the law, were arrested and confined in police stations for some times as long as 24 hours without being permitted to communicate with attorneys or friends.

That in 14 months the police had made 50,000 arrests, more than 49,500 of them being for mere technical violations of city ordinances, such as violation of the traffic laws, for which they should merely have been informed of what the law was, or at most summoned to appear in police court.

That the only hope for a protection of the public from police brutality was in the repudiation of Foster.

The points made by the Republicans were:

That Foster had changed Kansas City from one of the most corrupt cities in the United States into a city in which there were no protected gambling houses or vice resorts.

That criminals, who had infested Kansas City had been driven out and that the seriousness of the situation which faced Foster when he became president of the Police Board, justified the means he had adopted.

That under political control, the municipal government was permeated with graft, and that the graft could not be done away with so long as political machines, headed by political bosses, controlled municipal affairs.

That stalls in the city market had been sold for thousands of dollars, the money going into the pockets of professional politicians, instead of into the city treasury.

It is clear from the result that the men and women of the medium class residence districts had not been impressed by the propaganda that Kansas City had been cleaned up by the police and that the means adopted by the police were justified.

Reed Injected "Pep."

It was the general feeling in Kansas City when Reed arrived here last week from Washington to aid in the Cromwell campaign, that there had been a decided slump from Cromwell. There was an apathy in the campaign, which at that time had been in progress nearly six weeks. Reed injected "pep" into it and for a day or two there was a noticeable gain by the Democrats. Hyde then came to oppose Reed, and there was a wide difference of opinion as to the effect of the Reed and Hyde speeches.

Hyde met the campaign of sarcasm which Reed was conducting with sarcasms, which at the time seemed as effective as that of Reed, but in all possibility neither changed the result, the voters being settled at that time.

There can be no charge of fraud by the Republicans, both the police and election machinery of the city being in their control.

It had been expected that if Foster won Hyde might enter the race for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, or at least put into the race a candidate of his own choosing, probably R. R. Brewster, a Kansas City lawyer. The results appear to eliminate that possibility.

Dickey May Not Seek Senatorship.

It is known that Dickey has been withholding an announcement of his intentions regarding the senatorship. The persons close to him have said that if the result showed that the pendulum of politics had swung back to the Democrats, he would not seek the nomination. Dickey, although allied closely with the Marks faction of the Republican party, which in this election supported the Democratic candidate, maintained his party regularity by supporting Foster in the columns of his newspaper, the Journal.

If Dickey does not become a candidate for the Senatorship it is probable that E. E. E. McJimsey, who was defeated by Hyde for the nomination for the governorship in 1920, will get back into the race. McJimsey's friends believe that he would profit from the opposition which has developed to Hyde and that he could win the nomination. They contend that the Kansas City election does not mean that Missouri will go Democratic next November, and that it was decided very largely on purely local issues.

The only active candidate so far for the nomination is State Senator David M. Proctor of Kansas City, who, although a bitter personal enemy of Foster, supported him in the campaign.

Election Unusually Quiet.

The election was one of the quietest ever known in Kansas City, where elections for years have been the occasions for riots. The weather was perfect. Although rain was predicted for the morning, it held off until just about the time the polls closed. The Republicans had hoped for a clear day, believing that rain would mean that many women would remain away from the polls, and they had counted upon the women to win for them. One Republican who was active in the campaign said last night: "We have no alibi."

The present city administration is Democratic. The new Mayor will succeed Sam B. Strother, an attorney, who was appointed several months ago to fill out the term of Mayor James A. Cowgill, who died suddenly at his office. Strother was not a candidate for the nomination.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5.—Arthur Kendall of 2415 Linwood boulevard will be the new Mayor's secretary. Kendall, now a Pullman conductor, has been a friend of Frank Cromwell for years. He worked hard for his nomination. He was one of the hardest workers in the campaign. Kendall began with the Pullman Company in Kansas City as an office boy.

LEAGUE TO COMBAT KU KLUX

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., April 5.—Dallas today had a new organization as an outgrowth of recent floggings here, the Dallas County Citizens' League, with the avowed purpose of opposing the Ku Klux Klan in Dallas County as summarized in the following resolution, adopted last night at the organization public mass meeting:

"No member of the Ku Klux Klan should be permitted to hold any office in our State, and we pledge the people of Texas that we will not encourage or vote for any candidate for office who belongs to the Ku Klux Klan, who sympathizes with it or who has apologies to offer for this organization or its acts."

Illinois Town Breaks Vote Record.

ARBUCKLE ON STAND IN HIS THIRD TRIAL

Denies He Was Intoxicated at Party Where Miss Rappe Is Alleged to Have Been Injured.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5.—Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle took the stand in his own defense at 10:45 a. m. today in the third trial of a manslaughter charge against him resulting from the death of Miss Virginia Rappe.

Arbuckle followed Dr. George O. Franklin Shields, defense medical expert and one of the defense alienists in the first trial of Harry K. Thaw for the alleged murder of Stanford White.

Arbuckle smiled as he took the stand. He said he had known Miss Rappe for five years. He acknowledged being present at the party in the St. Francis Hotel in which he is alleged to have fatally injured Miss Rappe. He said he had invited a few of the guests.

Gin, whisky and orange juice were served at the party, he said. "Breakfast" was served at 2 p. m., while most of the guests were there. He left the room in which the guests were at 3 p. m., and went into his own room to dress for an engagement with Mrs. May Taube, a friend, he said.

"I went into my bedroom and locked the door," he said. "I went to the bathroom and the door struck something. I looked in and saw Miss Rappe on the floor. She was holding her stomach and moaning.

Carries Her to Bed.

"I gave her some water and asked if there was anything I could do for her. She said, 'I want to lay down.' I carried her to a bed, and returned to the bath. When I came out into the room Virginia was on the floor. I again placed her on the bed and went out for Mrs. Bambina Maude Delmont, her friend, and one of the guests."

"A number of the guests came into the room, including Miss Alice Blake, Mrs. Delmont, Miss Zey Prevost and others," continued the witness. "Miss Rappe sat upon the bed tearing her clothes. Her sleeve was hanging by a thread and I pulled it off.

"I went out of the room and returned later. Miss Rape was lying nude on the bed. I tried to cover her up and Mrs. Delmont tried to stop me. I said to Mrs. Delmont, 'Shut up or I will throw you out of the window.'"

The witness said he was dressed in lounging robe and pajamas. He described the summoning of the assitsant manager of the hotel and the removal of Miss Rappe to another room.

Asked if he placed his hand over that of Miss Rappe on a door of the room, which is in evidence as an exhibit behind the witness chair, he answered, "I was not near that door for the whole time I was in the hotel except when Miss Rappe was carried from the room." Finger prints on the door are alleged to be those of Arbuckle and Miss Rappe.

Denies Knowing Norgaard.

The witness denied all knowledge of Jesse Norgaard, who testified that while he was watchman of a motion picture studio at Culver City, Arbuckle attempted to bribe him to obtain the key to Miss Rappe's room. Arbuckle confirmed certain statements regarding first aid given to Miss Rappe, made in Los Angeles to Warden Wollard, reporter for the Los Angeles Times. He admitted telling Wollard that Miss Rappe had "thrown a fit." He denied having been ordered out of the hotel.

A statement to Woolard that he ordered Mrs. Delmont out of his room "because she became too boisterous" was admitted by Arbuckle. "She was in pajamas and I told her to go and dress herself," he explained.

He denied having put ice on Miss Rappe's body, as testified to by Al Semnacher, a prosecuting witness.

Danced After Party.

A statement in the Woolard interview that he went with Lowell Sherman, who shared his apartment, to the hotel ballroom after the party and danced until 1:30 a. m., was admitted by Arbuckle.

"I did not know that there was anything at the party that might have caused Miss Rappe's death," he explained.

In explaining apparent discrepancies in his testimony regarding the locking of his bedroom door, Arbuckle wrathfully attempted to accuse the District Attorney of trying to "capitalize" the incident, but his answer was ruled out by the Court.

"Mr. Arbuckle, were you intoxicated at any time during the party?" District Attorney McNab asked. "No, sir," he answered.

His direct examination was concluded at 11:45 a. m., exactly one hour after it was begun, and a recess until 2 p. m. was taken.

Dr. Shields said yesterday that chronic inflammation of the bladder, such as a special commission of pathologists testified they found in a post-mortem examination of Miss Rappe, could have caused the manifestations of hysteria, contortion, holding of the abdomen, swaying from side to side, sudden flushing of the face and moaning and groaning that previous witnesses had testified had been suffered by Miss Rappe on several occasions, in the last 13 years.

State Bank Call.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—The State Department of Finance today called for statements of condition of the State banks and trust companies of Missouri as of April 3, to be returned to the department within 10 days. The last statement was as of Dec. 31 last. Ordinarily three such statements are required annually.

ampanella's Widow Gives New Details of Killing of Lemon, of Which Her Husband Was Accused.

Two developments in the investiga- of the recent death of John panella, a prisoner in the East Louis jail, who is alleged to have from hanging himself, are an ouncement today by Mayor phens that he would call a special ting of the City Council for to- row afternoon to consider the e of the investigation, and a tement by Commissioner Michael Whalen, member of the City Coun- that the case would be laid be- the grand jury, which convenes ril 10.

Whalen added that instances of elty to prisoners in the East St. is jail that would shock the com- ity" would be disclosed by him others "at the proper time."

ys He Was Beaten for Hours.

Commissioner Whalen says he saw panella before and after he was ulted in the jail, and that Cam- lla told him five men commit- the assault in attempting to exact confession that he murdered rles Lemon, who was killed rch 21 in a rooming house con- ed by Campanella at 2005 Mis- avenue. Whalen says he has name of one of the men, a city ective, who, Campanella told him, ed four others in the assault.

Campanella, according to Whalen, he was beaten for several hours ursday night, March 23, with a ber hose until he became insensi- in the detectives' room at police dquarters. He died sometime Sat- day night or early Sunday morn- March 25 or 26. A keeper at the said he found Campanella sus- ded with his shirt, which had n done into a noose, from the s of his cell.

Found Bruises on Body.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. wney L. Harris of St. Louis at the stance of Campanella's widow, s. Josie Campanella, who is left h four children. Dr. Harris re- ted that, in his opinion, Campa- la did not die from strangulation, would have been indicated had ing been the cause of death. report disclosed that Campa- a's face and body bore many ises.

The Coroner's inquest, as has been d, resulted in a verdict of suicide hanging, the police testifying that mpanella had been assaulted in detectives' room at Police Head- rters by another Italian whom ccused of Lemon's murder, and not been injured by them.

Campanella's arrest followed the ling of Lemon, an Italian, who s also known as "Vito." Lemon d Mr. and Mrs. Campanella and e of the Campanella children were Campanella's place about 5 p. m., arch 21, when two men, according Mrs. Campanella, entered and ot Lemon to death. Mrs. Cam- nella ran into the kitchen at the e and her husband fled.

Charged With Carrying Weapon.

He was arrested the following ening in this city, at Sixth and ash streets, when a policeman ard a shot and saw him run from e home of his cousin at 1016A rth Sixth street, carrying a load- pistol. He was charged with rrying a deadly weapon, but was er turned over to the East St. uis police, Wednesday, March 21, the investigation of the killing of mon.

Campanella at once charged Tana lo, an Italian of this city, with murder of Lemon, and Rollo was ested, but established an alibi and s released. Before being released, e East St. Louis police say, Rollo aulted Campanella in the detec- s' room for accusing him of the rder, and the bruises on Campa- la's body are thus accounted for the police.

New Details of Killing Given.

rs. Campanella has since given her attorney details of the kill- of Lemon that were not con- ed in the first reports, indicating t nonpayment for a whisky still led to the trouble. She said two lians, whose names she said her sband gave to the police, entered ir home and demanded of Lemon ment for the still.

"The American has not paid me t," Lemon exclaimed. "You must e me time."

"You gave that excuse before," rs. Campanella said one of the n retorted angrily, drawing a re- lver; "we will settle this affair on e spot."

She declared the other Italian w a revolver at the same time both men began shooting at Le- n as he took refuge in a bath- m, where he was later found d.

Visited Campanella in Cell.

Commissioner Whalen yesterday a Post-Dispatch reporter of ting Campanella in jail and of Campanella's version of how he had been injured.

"About 4 p. m. Thursday, March 23, I went to the jail to see a negro prisoner," said Commissioner Whalen. "While there I also conversed with a cellmate of Campanella and noticed that Campanella was calm. He was pacing the cell with sprightly step, and did not appear to be worried.

"About 4 p. m. Saturday I again went to the jail to see the negro and was called by Campanella to his cell. He stood tottering, holding to the bars at arms' length, and said, pleadingly, 'O, Mr. Commissioner, get me out of this.'

"His face was terribly swollen and both eyes were bruised, discolored and almost swollen shut. I inquired if he had had a fight, and he answered that he had not.

Said He Had Been Beaten.

"I demanded to know what had happened to him and he said he had been assaulted upstairs, meaning in the detectives' room. I asked by whom, and after much persuasion, he told me five men had attacked him with a black pipe. I asked if he meant a rubber hose, and he answered yes. Then something was said, which I cannot disclose at this time, that gave me the identity of one of his assailants, a detective.

"It was with difficulty that I persuaded him to step closer to the bars so I could get a better view of his injuries. He protested he did not want a complaint made of his injuries, as he feared the consequences.

"But I persisted and, as he stepped closer, opened his shirt. His chest, stomach and left side were terribly bruised and discolored, and as I reached under his shirt to feel his back he complained that it was so badly hurt he could not bear the weight of my hand upon it.

"Condition Was Pitiful."

"His condition was pitiful, and he complained most of pains in the stomach. I said I would do what I could, and as I left his cell he became nauseated. The Sergeant in charge noticed this and remarked that he would give him a 'shot of dope,' meaning some medicine that I was told had been left there for him. Believing that a physician had prescribed, I did not make any recommendation.

"About 10 a. m. the following day I heard of Campanella's death and went to the morgue, where I found an undertaker working with the body to reduce the swelling of the eyes. I asked if the Coroner had viewed the body, and when told that he had not, protested that the undertaker should not continue his work as he might destroy some valuable evidence.

Body Covered With Bruises.

"I again saw the bruises on the chest, stomach and left side, and the undertaker lifted the body so I could see the back. It was a mass of discolorations caused by bruises. There was also a red mark around the neck, just above the collarbone, as though caused by a rope. This mark was not close up under the chin or jawbone, where the weight of a body would draw a noose."

Further investigation yesterday disclosed that Mrs. Campanella and her 13-year-old son, Frank, who had also been arrested in the investigation, were taken at 2 a. m. Friday, March 24, into the detectives' room and, when Mrs. Campanella saw her husband, she fainted and was carried back to the matron's room. She has since told that for several hours that night she heard her husband's voice in the detectives' room crying out for mercy and repeatedly calling upon God for protection. It was after this ordeal that she was called into the room, and she said her husband's face was so swollen that she scarcely recognized him, which caused her to swoon.

Sokolow Appeals to Jews to Help Build New Nation in Near East

Audience of 3000 Hears Address of Zionist Leader at Delmonte—Fund Will Be Turned Over to Him Tonight.

A kosher dinner this evening at the Planters Hotel, at which Nahum Sokolow of Warsaw and London, world leader of the Zionist movement, will be guest of honor, will complete the two days' campaign here in behalf of the Keren Hayesod, or Foundation Fund, for the establishment of a national home for the Jews in Palestine.

It is expected that the St. Louis Zionist organization, at the dinner, will give Sokolow a check representing payments thus far made on amounts subscribed here for the fund. The subscriptions, including those made at last night's rally in the Delmonte Theater, are estimated as being about $60,000. The St. Louis quota for 1922 toward the fund is $200,000.

Principal Address in English.

Sokolow's principal address at the Delmonte Theater meeting was in English, of which he has a remarkable command. The audience, numbering some 3000, showed the closest attention during the 75-minute address, and many remained until nearly midnight to hear him speak in Yiddish, after the business part of the meeting was over.

His address in English was a model of logical arrangement and intelligent appeal to the sympathies, not only of the largely Jewish audience, but of the American people at large.

"In the interest of world peace," he declared, "it is necesary to establish a new order in the Near East. Turkish control over other than Turkish peoples has been the cause of wars for a century.

"One by one the Turk has lost his provinces, and no province detached from the Turkish Empire has ever gone back. We believe today that nations with their own civilization should be free to control themselves.

Successions of the Turks.

"Three nations are the legitimate successors of Turkey in the Near East—the Armenians, the Arabs and the Jews.

"Armenia is an old nation, a martyr nation, its people scattered by the persecutions of the Turk. Americans have given much to Armenia, not only in money, but in the lives of American teachers and missionary workers, who have risked their lives to protect the Armenians from the Turks and the half-savage Kurds. But when the Peace Conference had to deal with the problem of Armenia, it found that the only way to give permanent help to the Armenians was to restore their nation. So long as Armenia is a Turkish province, no other Government can interfere in the internal affairs of Turkey sufficiently to protect the Armenians. A recognized Armenian nation would no longer be subject to Turkish massacres, and if an unjust war were made upon it, other nations might interfere. Armenia, as a nation, will be represented before the League of Nations, or whatever body may take the league's place.

In Sympatny With Armenians.

"We Jews are working in thorough sympathy and close contact with the Armenians. We are also in sympathy with the Arab nation. We are having our difficulties in Palestine with certain Arabs, not the mass of the people, but the absentee landlords, who resent our having increased wages and improved the conditions of the working people, so that the Arab peasants now demand more pay and better treatment. But we are Zionists not only for the Jews but for the Arabs—for humanity. The Arab is superior to the Turk, and the Arabs have their own Jerusalem—Mecca. They have room in their own land for 50 times as many people as are there, and the Arab problem is in Arabia, not in Palestine.

"And so, like the Armenians and the Arabs in their own country, the Jewish people in Palestine have the task of building their own home land. The Jewish home land is no longer a subject of debate—it is a fact, since Versailles and San Remo have confirmed the Balfour declaration.

"We who have worked in a political way have built the framework. Great Britain has appointed a Jewish high commissioner for Palestine, Sir Herbert Samuels. But Great Britain cannot itself build the Jewish home land, nor would I, for one, be willing that it or any other nation should do so. That is the task of the Jews themselves.

Jews in Palestine.

"You will hear it said that the Jews in Palestine today are a minority. So are the Armenians in Armenia a minority — the Turk has seen to that. The Greeks were a minority in Greece, in the days when Lord Byron aroused the world to their wrongs. The Greeks received abundant help from European nations, and today Greece is a nation.

"Has not Judea been as important to the world as ancient Greece? Ideals of philosophy have changed, but the Ten Commandments, and the unity of God, which Judea taught to the world, never change. The Gentile peoples know that the promised land was indeed promised to the Jews—it is a connecting link between the faiths of Judaism and Christianity. Why not a Judea made over as Greece has been made over?

"The history of the Jews in Eastern Europe has been pogrom and relief, pogrom and relief, pogram and relief, for 40 years. The relief has been necessary, is necessary today, but for every dollar that you give for momentary relief, you should give $20 for lasting relief. That must come by giving the Jews not money or favors, but land and homes.

"We can have 3,000,000 Jews in Palestine, if we will invest the money to provide them. Palestine must be transformed from a neglected land. It can be made another California, by the means that have been used in California. Its present Jewish population is not capable of doing new things. We will take into Palestine hundreds of thousands of agriculturists and gardeners. Remember, there is no stock exchange in Palestine—agriculture must be the basis of Jewish life there. This is a humanitarian movement, a movement back to the land. It is our weakness that we have been separated from the land.

"Today, an anti-Zionist Jew is an anachronism. It used to be said, 'Why move Jews from the rule of the Czar to the rule of the Sultan?' and there was some force in the argument. But there is no Sultan over Palestine any more. And now that the home land is a fact, all the antis can do is to withhold participation.

"We wish to see a flourishing countryside, owned by those who cultivate it, and in its midst, Jerusalem, not a city of skyscrapers, but the queen of cities, its holy places protected and surrounded by walls not of brick and stone, but of respect and love—Jerusalem, again a true center for the life of humanity."

Zionist Hymn Sung.

The Zionist hymn "Hatikvah" (Our Hope) was sung twice by the audience, first after the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," in which Mrs. M. J. Slonim led. When she began the singing of the "Hatikvah," the audience joined in the plaintive melody without waiting for a signal. It repeated the song, spontaneously, when Sokolow was introduced.

Gustave Cytron and Judge Moses Hartmann were the presiding officers, and the principal introductory talks were made by Dr. Samuel Sale and Louis P. Aloe, acting Mayor. Aloe emphasized the important part which Sokolow took in obtaining the Balfour declaration of 1917, the formal announcement of Great Britain's purpose to make Palestine the national home of the Jews. Rabbi Saul Silber of Chicago and M. J. Slonim, national field director of the fund campaign, led in the appeal for subscriptions, which were received in amounts from $25 to $1000.

Sokolow's daughter, Dr. Celina Sokolow, is here with him. Col. John H. Patterson of the British army, leader of Jewish troops in Gallipoli and Palestine, was scheduled to come here, but has gone to Chicago instead.

GIRL, 6, KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO MONDAY, DIES

Maide Weldemann, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Weldemann, 4468 Vista avenue, died at her home at 6:30 o'clock this morning from injuries suffered when struck at 6:40 p. m. Monday in front of her home by an automobile driven by Clarence T. Link, 5231 North King's highway, in which, besides Link, were Harry S. Schulz, 5427 Union avenue, owner of the machine, and Miss Helen Bellison, 3835 South Compton avenue, and Miss Edna Bassler, 3638 Folsom avenue.

The machine was being driven west. The child tried to cross the street in front of it. Witnesses told the police that it was going fast and that it skidded about 50 feet before striking the child. It stopped, however, within eight feet after striking her. She was picked up and taken to the office of a doctor. Her right leg was fractured and she suffered lacerations of her right knee and her head and face.

Link was arrested at the time and gave bond. The inquest will be held tomorrow.

Two Persons Hurt in Auto Accident Yesterday.

Edward Martinez, 30 years old, of 117 Robert avenue, in crossing Kraus street, a few feet west of the Iron Mountain Railroad tracks, was knocked down and run over by a backing automobile at 4 p. m. yesterday. His left foot was crushed. Later the police arrested Edward Duffy, 7222 Michigan avenue, a candy manufacturer. He said that he was not aware that his automobile had struck anyone.

Theodore Korte, 18, of 3990 Meramec street, was thrown through the windshield of a motor truck at 1 p. m., when the truck collided with an automobile parked in front of 4434 Gravois avenue. Korte was cut on the face and head.

EXAMINATION ORDERED FOR VOGEL REAL ESTATE FIRM

Ability of Company to Satisfy Judgment for $3047.51 to Be Investigated.

A citation was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Hall against the Charles F. Vogel Real Estate Co., to undergo an examination on April 13 in regard to its ability to satisfy a judgment for $3047.51, which was obtained against it on March 16 by George Weimer.

The citation was issued at the request of Weimer, who alleged that an execution on the judgment had been returned as not satisfied and that no assets of the corporation could be located. The judgment was a balance due on notes executed in 1917 in favor of Weimer, for which, he says, he turned over property to the company amounting to $7500. Subsequently the business of the Vogel Co. was taken over by Frank L. Dittmeier. The city directory lists him as president of both the Vogel Co. and the F. L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co.

BELGIAN CONDEMNED TO DEATH FOR TREASON AGAINST ALLIES

Armand Jeannes Had Boasted He Was Instrumental in Betraying Edith Cavell.

By the Associated Press.

MONS, Belgium, April 5.—Armand Jeannes was condemned to death here last night for treason and espionage against the allies during the war. He had boasted that he was instrumental in bringing about the arrest and execution by Germans of Edith Cavell, British war nurse, but this charge was not mentioned in the indictment against him.

There was a burst of applause in the court when the sentence was passed.

GOV. SMALL LOSES IN PLEA TO HAVE WOMEN ON HIS JURY

Court Sustains State Attorney Who Recalls Executive Waived Rights to Challenge.

By the Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., April 5.—Gov. Small waived the right to challenge the jury list of Lake County when his attorneys several weeks ago agreed to the drawing of a venire for his trial from the names then in the jury box, the State told Judge Claire S. Edwards today in reply to the Governor's affidavit attacking the jury list because it did not include names of women voters.

"I agree with you absolutely on that, if the records show the defense did agree to that stipulation," Judge Edwards told Ralph Dady, who raised the point for the State.

Dady also charged the Governor had failed to allege he had been injured by the failure of the Board of Supervisors to compile a jury list based on the combined number of men and women voters. Any injury done the women by being omitted could not be grounds for complaint by the Governor, he said.

"I agree with you on that, too," the Court said.

Judge Edwards proposed a conference between attorneys and announced after the conference he had proposed a special plan of selecting a jury and had given the lawyers until 2 o'clock to accept or reject it.

It was indicated both sides were inclined to favor his proposal. Le Forgee and C. Fred Mortimer, State's Attorneys of Sangamon County, came out of the conference smiling and with their arms around each other's shoulders.

5-STORY WALNUT STREET BUILDING SOLD FOR $250,000

Property at 1112-14 With Frontage of 48 Feet Acquired by Unnamed Purchaser.

The sale for $250,000 cash of the five-story building and fee at 1112-14 Walnut street by the Swope estate to an unnamed purchaser, was announced today by the Schoenberg Realty & Investment Co.

The property has a Walnut street frontage of 48 feet and a depth of 112 feet. The sale was subject to the unexpired lease of the Kline Suit & Cloak Co., which has 51 years to run at a rental of $15,000 per annum, which will be increased to $17,500 for the majority of the term.

The Schoenberg agency recently leased the Swope estate property at the northeast corner of Twelfth and Walnut streets for a period of 107 years and a total consideration of $5,658,000.

RAILROADS AUTHORIZED TO MODIFY COAL RATES

Chesapeake & Ohio Charges to St. Louis Will Be Reduced.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5. — The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce rates on coal from West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky points to St. Louis in accordance with schedules proposed by the carrier last December.

The new rate will be $3.47 from Kanawha districts in West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky, as against a previous rate of $4.13, and from the New River district of West Virginia, $3.62, compared with a previous rate of $4.28.

The Louisville & Nashville road was authorized to modify certain coal rates along its lines to points in Southern Illinois, where competition with the new Chesapeake & Ohio schedules to St. Louis might result.

The coal rate reduction will have no effect upon the coal costs of the Laclede Gas Light Co., George B. Evans, vice president and general manager, said today. "We now get the great bulk of our gas coal over the L. & N., at the lower rate," Evans said. "The C. & O. merely is reducing its rate to compete for our traffic on even terms with the L. & N."

ST. LOUISAN ADDRESSES AD MEN

Advertising Is Store's News and Should Be Put in Newspapers, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, April 5.—The second and closing day of the conference of the National Advertising Commission of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World here today was attended by E. T. Meredith, former Secretary of Agriculture. Louis Blumenstock of St. Louis in an address declared that a store's news was its advertising and it should be placed where all the news is printed—in the newspapers. He also advocated the one-price system of advertising.

The commission decided today to conduct a campaign to advertise advertising by means of newspaper space and films, the object being to set forth the value of advertising, its economic utility and its service to industry, commerce and general welfare.

Bonnell Ordered Held.

Ben Bonnell, 42 years old, of 5248 Bischoff avenue, was ordered held for the grand jury by the Coroner following an inquest today into the case of Sam Balsamo, 26, of 2018 Cooper street, known in police circles as "The American Sport," who died at St. John's Hospital at 11 p. m., Monday, from bullet wounds inflicted at 6:10 p. m. by Bonnell. Witnesses at the inquest told the same story that was related to the police shortly after the shooting. Bonnell and Balsamo quarreled in a poolroom at 2126 Cooper street, they said, and Bonnell, after going to his home for a revolver, returned and shot Balsamo. Bonnell did not testify.

DIVORCE GRANTED TO MRS. W. G. O'FALLON

She Also Obtains Custody of Two Sons—Alimony Agreement Made Out of Court.

A divorce decree was granted today to Mrs. William Glasgow O'Fallon of 5089 Waterman avenue, formerly Miss Cora South Brown, in Judge Garesche's divisions of the Court of Domestic Relations, on ground of jealousy and indignities.

Mrs. O'Fallon obtained custody of her two sons, John Julius O'Fallon, 10 years old, and William Glasgow O'Fallon Jr., 7. It was stated that an alimony agreement had been made out of court, on terms satisfactory to Mrs. O'Fallon, and the matter of alimony was not included in the decree.

Mrs. O'Fallon is 31 years old and is the daughter of the late Dr. John Young Brown, who was a prominent physician. O'Fallon is 34 and is a purchasing agent for the Terminal Association. He was represented by counsel at the divorce hearing, but was not in court and did not contest.

The wife testified in support of her allegation that her husband had shown an unfounded and unwarranted jealousy regarding her, and that he had been responsible for indignities to her as a result of this jealousy.

Jealous of Relatives, She Stated.

She testified that her husband's jealousy was shown not only toward male acquaintances, but toward her relatives, or any acquaintances, and that this jealousy was displayed both in private and in public. In expressing his feelings, she testified, he would talk loudly and profanely, whoever might be present.

Mrs. O'Fallon said her husband would refuse, after taking her to a theater, to take her to a hotel dance after the play, because of this habit of jealousy.

Judge Garesche asked, as is his custom, whether either party to the suit had been married before, and Mrs. O'Fallon replied that her husband was married and was divorced before his marriage to her in 1911.

Character Witnesses Heard.

Mrs. Julius S. Walsh Jr., a character witness, testified that O'Fallon treated his wife "like a dog." Mrs. George R. Wendling testified that O'Fallon was insanely jealous, and that because of this Mrs. O'Fallon would leave parties and entertainments early. Mrs. W. R. Cady testified that Mrs. O'Fallon treated her husband with courtesy, but that he did not treat her in like manner.

STRIKING STUDENTS TO RETURN

Will Not Check Efforts, However, for Teacher's Reinstatement.

By the Associated Press.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., April 5.—Members of the sophomore and senior classes of the Gloucester High School, who went on strike yesterday in protest against the suspension of William Katcher, hygiene teacher, decided to return to their classes today. They announced, however, that they would continue to fight for the reinstatement of Katcher, who was suspended following charges that he spoke too frankly in lectures on social hygiene before mixed classes.

Citizens also took a hand in the affair when a committee called on Katcher and requested him to explain his side of the matter before a public meeting in the town hall tonight.

MAIL STOP ORDER ISSUED

Postal Authorities Halt Plans of Deep Seas Trading Company.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., April 5.—Postal authorities today issued a stop order on all mail addressed to the American Deep Seas Trading Co. upon receipt of a letter announcing a plan to form a company capitalized at $400,000 to transport whisky from Liverpool, England, to the three-mile limit off the arid coast.

The letter inviting subscription to its stock and suggesting possible return of $2250 on a $10 investment was given to the postal authorities after it was received by a church

K. S. D. PROGRAM IS HEARD IN IOWA

Post-Dispatch Radio Program Received Clearly; Accordion Music Given.

Iowa is a new State to be added to the list of those in which the programs of K S D are being heard. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Oklahoma have already been reported. Otto Luhring of Hampton, Ia., a member of the American Radio Relay League, whose station is 9 D O F, sends the following to the Post-Dispatch:

"Your music and addresses are heard here every night very Q S A. (This the code signal for clearness). I can hear you 30 feet away from the phones. I am using a regenerative receiver without amplification. Aerial consists of six wires, inverted L type, 70 feet long."

Volunteer Musical Number on Program.

In addition to the regular program last evening the K S D audience was unusually fortunate in having a volunteer musical number by Irving Aaronson and Al Lentz, who are appearing in Bessie Clayton's musical revue, the headline act on the current bill at the Orpheum Theater this week. With Mr. Aaronson at the piano, Mr. Lentz sang their own composition, "Boo-Hoo-Hoo," in a way that brought requests for encores, but the two performers were obliged to leave hurriedly in order to go on at the theater.

A special musical program was given by the Harmonious Trio, including John McKinnon, Steve Cady and Les Hodgins, with Ted Florito at the piano. These singers were present through the courtesy of Joe Turnis, manager of the Arcadia. Following "By the Light of the Moon," "Gin, Gin, Ginny Shore" and "Gypsy Lady," came an accordion solo by Frank Pappilo, who played St. Louis Blues, followed by "Soothin'." This is the first time accordion music has been transmitted by radio and operators at the K S D studio were gratified at the many phone messages reporting that it was received clearly.

"Selling St. Louis."

Wheaton C. Ferris, president of the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co., made a short address on "Selling St. Louis." He predicted that St. Louis would be built solidly out to the shores of Creve Coeur Lake within the time of most of his listeners.

Mr. Ferris declared St. Louis had as much to boast about as any other city in the country, and in enumerating some of the things about which he said St. Louisans should "brag," he mentioned the city's newspapers, and particularly the Post-Dispatch.

"The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, merely as a purveyor of news, is not surpassed by any other newspaper in any city of the same size," he said, "but the Post-Dispatch is something more than a news disseminator. It is an institution founded 44 years ago by Joseph Pulitzer and developed by him and his successors as an expression of an ideal—an ideal of service in the public good. Its annual Christmas Festival for poor children is one illustration, its Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is another. This broadcasting of news, music and talks is another service given to the public by the Post-Dispatch from which it derives no direct profit—a fine example of this newspaper's enterprise."

Boy Scout Movement.

A particularly enjoyable talk on the Boy Scout movement was then given by Mr. A. F. L. Schmidt, who has been actively identified with this work for boys in St. Louis. "Scouting teaches many wonderful things," Mr. Schmidt said, "but, above all, it instills that wonderful asset which makes men; that is, of finishing the job that you start." The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt was enabled through a receiving set at the family home in Webster Groves to "listen in" on his father's talk to scouts and those sincerely interested in American youth.

The youngest recruit to the growing army of radio fans, so far reported, is master Bobby Bennett of 4024 Camelia street. Bobby is a year and a half old today. Yesterday afternoon his mother telephoned K S D studio to say:

"I want you to know of your youngest listener. Bobby had just finished his afternoon nap when the 4 o'clock program started. I put the receivers to his ears, and you should see how delighted he was to hear the music."

The receiving set in the Bennett home, by the way, is home-made, constructed according to the specifications in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine of March 12. It works perfectly.

COMPTON CONTEMPT CASE DISMISSED IN CIRCUIT COURT

Phase of Proceedings in Connection With Alimony Case of Doctor's Former Wife Closed.

Contempt proceedings against Dr. J. Roy Compton, 300 South Jefferson avenue, for failing to provide a $2500 bond to secure payment of alimony to his former wife, Mrs. Edna Marie Compton, were dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Calhoun.

The bond was ordered when Mrs. Compton complained that for several months only half of the monthly payments of $150 had been paid. Judge Calhoun held hearings last week to determine whether Dr. Compton was guilty of contempt in failing to comply with the order.

An account of the proceedings, in Friday's Post-Dispatch, made it appear that the total award was $75 and that Dr. Compton had paid none of it. The order of the court was that he pay his former wife $75 a month for herself and $25 a month for each of the three children.

SUES HUSBAND FOR ACCOUNTING OF $500,000 ESTATE

Mrs. B. J. Mueller Objects to Management by F. J. Mueller of Property Inherited From First Husband.

SEQUEL TO DIVORCE AND DAMAGE SUITS

Woman's First Husband Was Henry J. Mueller, but No Blood Relation to Defendant in Case.

Litigation between Mrs. Bertha Johanna Mueller of 3438 Halliday avenue and her husband, Fred J. Mueller, over the $500,000 estate of her first husband, Henry J. Mueller, is the sequel to divorce and damage litigation which preceded the marriage of Fred and Bertha Mueller a few years ago.

At the Halliday avenue home today it was stated that no separation had occurred, and that Fred J. Mueller and his wife, Bertha Mueller, were still living there. In a suit filed yesterday, Mrs. Mueller and her three children demand an accounting of the estate of Henry J. Mueller, who died Nov. 27, 1907. While the amount named in the petition is $150,000, lawyers in the case say that approximately a half-million is involved.

Previous Suits Recalled.

Fred J. Mueller's first wife, Mrs. Mary Mueller, was a sister of Henry J. Mueller. Fred and Henry Mueller were not blood relatives. After the death of Henry J. Mueller, Fred J. Mueller became the adviser of Henry's widow. Mrs. Mary Mueller sued Mrs. Bertha Mueller on a charge of alienating Fred Mueller's affections, and obtained a judgment for $50,000.

Fred Mueller sued Mary Mueller for a divorce, but the petition was dismissed on the ground of collusion, when it appeared that he and Bertha Mueller had jointly paid $11,000 to Mary Mueller, to keep her from contesting the suit. However, Mrs. Mary Mueller did contest the divorce suit.

Later, Mrs. Mary Mueller compromised her judgment against Mrs. Bertha Mueller, and then proceeded to obtain a divorce from Fred Mueller, and he was subsequently married to Mrs. Bertha Mueller. Mrs. Mary Mueller's lawyer said that it cost Mrs. Bertha Mueller about $30,000, in all, to meet Mrs. Mary Mueller's claims.

Assets of the Estate.

The assets of the Henry Mueller estate, for which Fred Mueller is now asked to account, included a majority of the stock of the Schneider Wine and Liquor Co., 905 Franklin avenue. Fred Mueller was manager of this business at the time of Henry Mueller's death.

Mrs. Bertha Mueller's petition declares that Fred Mueller was under a contract to receive $200 a month as manager, but that he took an amount greatly in excess of the stipulated salary, the amount being estimated at $1000 a month.

Fred Mueller continued as manager until 1919, it is stated, and sold the business for $24,000. The petition states that Fred Mueller failed to account to Mrs. Bertha Mueller and her children for any of the profits of the liquor business during the period of his management, and she estimates these profits as more than $30,000.

Real Estate Also Involved.

Besides the liquor business, Mueller is asked to account for the disposition of valuable realty. It is alleged that he caused a partition suit to be filed in the name of one of his stepchildren, who was not of legal age, and that he, through a company controlled by him, bought in the children's interest at $17,050. The rental value of this realty is said to have been $500 a month. The children have not received their portion of the rent, it is asserted.

It is alleged that Mueller used the money from the business and from the sale of realty to invest in other realty; that he bought 15 acres in Overland, St. Louis County, valued at $32,000, and 257 acres in Lincoln County, known as the Prairie Hunting and Fishing Club, and valued at $15,000. The petition states that he also bought a shoe store at 2804 South Jefferson avenue, on which he has expended $10,000. The plaintiffs ask that they be declared to have an interest in all this property, and that he is enjoined from disposing of it.

LIQUOR CASE IS NOLLE PROSSED

Policemen being uncertain where an autographed dollar bill was found in the soft drink stand of Daniel Doder, at 2900 Chouteau avenue, and other testimony being confusing, the liquor selling charge against Doder was nolle prossed in the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday by Miss Lena Frank, associate Prosecuting Attorney.

Doder was arrested March 26 when an informer, to whom Police Captain Kirk had given a bill with his name written across it, signaled to policemen outside of Doder's place that he had succeeded in buying liquor.

COLLAPSE ON RUTGER STREET AN EXAMPLE OF NEED FOR NEW SEWERS

CITY OFFICIALS point to the collapse of a section of the Rutger street sewer, between Second and Merchant streets, Monday, as an example of the need for new sewers.

A motor truck loaded with 6½ tons of coal fell into the sewer when the pavement above the collapse gave way, but was extricated without serious damage. The hole in the street was nearly six feet deep and about 4x8 feet in area.

William Clancy, superintendent of sewers, said today that the Rutger street sewer was one of those which Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk has declared "are holding together by the grace of God." The condition of this sewer, which was built 75 years ago, has been known to be bad, Clancy said. It has been recommended that $40,000 for the reconstruction of this sewer, from the river to Ninth street, be included in the item of $3,500,000 for sewer work in the proposed municipal bond issue.

ALLIES PLAN SUPPORT FOR CHARLES' FAMILY

Ambassadors' Council Said to Be Determined Other Countries Shall Share.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 5.—The Council of Ambassadors today took up the question of providing for the family of ex-Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary, who died in exile at Madeira last Saturday. The allies are ready to contribute to the support of the family, but some of the countries that benefited by the parts of the fortune of the Hapsburgs, including Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia, are declared to have refused to release for this purpose any part of the property of the imperial family that was handed over to them.

The Ambassadors postponed a decision of the question, pending further negotiations. The allies are understood to be determined that the countries that received part of the former Austro-Hungarian territory shall assume a share of the burden in caring for the ex-ruler's children and his widow. Rumania, it is stated, already has consented to bear her share.

Papers Publishing Charles' Successor Item to Be Seized.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, April 5.—The State Prosecutor has ordered seizure of all newspapers which published the legitimists' proclamation Monday proclaiming Francis Joseph Otto, eldest son of the late former Emperor Charles, as King of Hungary.

The proclamation read: "With the death of Charles, Otto II is King of Hungary, although temporarily prevented from coronation."

Third Son of Charles Is Reported Ill at Funchal.

By the Associated Press.

FUNCHAL, Madeira, April 5.—Archduke Felix, third son of the late Emperor Charles and Empress Zita, is ill here. His illness is not regarded as serious. The family of Charles is at Monte. The people of Funchal, rich and poor, are sending a profusion of flowers for the bier of Charles. Thousands of persons are expected to view the body today and line the route of the funeral procession to the church.

Duchess of Parma Carries Medicines to Zita's Family.

LISBON, April 5.—The Duchess of Parma, here on her way to Madeira to attend the funeral of former Emperor Charles, had with her a large quantity of medicines for the former Austro-Hungarian royal family.

ORDER FOR ADJUDICATION IN BANKRUPTCY FOR CONCERN

An order for adjudication in bankruptcy was obtained today for the Best-Clymer Food Products Co., a receiver for which was appointed several months ago, by attorneys for creditors of the company, from Federal Judge Faris.

This order means that the bankruptcy proceedings will be carried to a conclusion, and that a trustee will be appointed to take over the assets of the company and its operations. William C. D'Arcy, the receiver, will continue in charge until the creditors elect a trustee, under the direction of Referee in Bankruptcy Coles.

SEX SEGREGATION IN SCHOOLS TO BE URGED

A motion that discussions be held by the Woman's Chamber of Commerce with members of the Board of Education, to determine if it is not advisable to segregate sexes in the St. Louis high schools by having separate schools for boys and girls, was adopted at the annual business meeting of the woman's organization at the Planters Hotel today.

The motion also stipulated that the opinions of the school officials be sought on whether the dress of high school girls be standardized. The Woman's Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as favoring the latter proposal.

8 to 5 for Segregation.

Passage of the resolution followed discussions by the women, during which eight of them went on record as favoring sex segregation in high schools. Five opposed the proposal. Other women present, who were asked for expressions, said they desired to keep an open mind on the question until after future discussions.

The discussions arose after several women had mentioned the standardized dress proposal, during which references were made to the "unfortunate incident" that arose shortly after. This reference concerned the unproved allegations of Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board, that he knew of an immoral club of boys that existed in Soldan High School, and that he had received information there also was such a club of girls.

At this point Mrs. J. Alex Goodwin, president, said several persons had asked her about the attitude of the organization, not only on the dress question, but on the question of separating boys and girls during high school age. Mrs. Goodwin explained she wished to get a consensus of opinion from members of the chamber, so some action might possibly be taken in future.

Boston Conditions Cited.

Mrs. M. Sternberger, vice president, said the plan of sex segregation in the high schools of Boston, where she formerly resided, had worked out wonderfully and that she favors segregation in high schools. She said arrangements should be made to have Board of Education officials discuss the matter with the chamber.

Mrs. Hattie E. Hewgill, treasurer, does not believe in segregation in any walk of life and expressed the opinion that the habits of children in school hinge very greatly on what the training of the child has been in the home. "I have a grown son, and until after he was 19 and 20 years old, I always knew where he was," Mrs. Hewgill said. "I think if more mothers followed the plan of keeping close tab on their children and advising with them the children would get along better in and out of school."

Sex Education Suggested.

Mrs. R. M. Billings declared it has been her observation that children get ideas in school that they do not receive at home, and that this makes home training a difficult thing.

Miss Fannie Robb suggested that sex education be given high school pupils in separate classes by expert teachers. She said some parents do not know how to teach their children in some matters, and the child learns outside.

When the resolution was put to a vote, following a discussion of Mrs. Norman P. Windsor, advocate of the standardized dress, there were several scattered "Noes."

Election of officers for the year was announced as follows: Mrs. Goodwin, president; Mrs. Sternberger, vice president; Mrs. Hewgill, treasurer; Mrs. E. George Payne, auditor, and Mrs. J. T. Addis, recording secretary.

PENNSYLVANIA TRAIN ENGINE DERAILED AT UNION STATION

Engineer and Fireman Jump When Locomotive Tilts in Accident at Switch.

The Pennsylvania train due here from New York at 5:51 p. m. yesterday, was derailed at the entrance to Union Station when the front wheels of the engine followed one course on a "frog switch" while the rear wheels took another. The engine tilted on its side to an angle of about 45 degrees, but, other than shaking up 75 passengers in the three coaches behind the engine, no damage was done.

The engine was replaced on the tracks in a short time and proceeded under its own power to the shops. It was damaged slightly.

WIFE SUES RALPH ROBINSON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—Mrs. Ralph Robinson, daughter of Supreme Court Judge Woodson, has filed suit for divorce from Ralph Robinson, son of former Supreme Court Judge W. M. Robinson of Joplin. Mrs. Robinson charges general indignities and that her husband deserted her about March 14. They had been married about 12 years.

Judge Woodson recently slapped Robinson following an altercation on the street here. Judge Woodson said at that time that Robinson had been bothering him by insisting on arguing and that his efforts to persuade Robison to "go away and leave me alone" had been unsuccessful. Mrs. Robinson at that time had asked the Jefferson City police to watch her husband.

SAYS MANY DIVORCES START IN KITCHEN

Domestic Science Expert at National Food Show Gives Pointers on Avoiding Rows.

"Many divorces can be traced directly to the kitchen, and it's not because the wife can't cook, either," Miss Ida Bailey Allen, domestic science expert and hostess for the National Food Show at the Coliseum, declared in the first of two lectures at the show yesterday afternoon. About 250 women and half a dozen men heard her addresses.

"Breakfast starts the day off, and usually off wrong, in those homes where the husband has to get his own breakfast, or see his wife in her second best kimono, her hair in curl papers and her feet in slippers that flap and flop as she moves about. A little powder on the nose before breakfast is a great divorce preventive.

"Don't Forget Good Coffee."

"And don't forget good coffee, not the muddy, murky kind that ends in dregs instead of happiness. For the rest of it, start the meal with fruit, see that the remainder is well balanced, and serve in a room that's neat and tidy. A dirty tablecloth leads easily to peevishness and the divorce court."

Mrs. Allen gave as an example of a breakfast containing the proper food values one consisting of baked rhubarb with raisins, Swedish omelet, spring style; rice muffins and butter, coffee for the adults and milk for the children. The rhubarb, omelet and muffins were prepared and cooked by her as she talked.

In "Vitamines and Jazz," her second lecture, Mrs. Allen defined jazz as "energy, pep," and declared these qualities dependent on eating foods rich in vitamines—milk, cheese, eggs, whole meats, acid fruits, lettuce, vegetables, "the simple, natural foods."

Where Vitamines Are.

"Vitamines, the fundamental element in foods, have been discovered beneath the skins of potatoes and apples. We lost these in paring, just as we killed vitamines by overcooking. Long ago we worked out balanced rations for dairy cows, hogs and cattle; now we're just finding out what the human body needs.

"A little candy after a long walk or hard exercise is all right," said Mrs. Allen, in reply to a question, "but bonbons, a bed and a book, that means, not health, but headaches."

Foods suited to each member of the family are to be taken up by Mrs. Allen this afternoon in three lectures under the general head of balanced meals, while tomorrow she will speak on "Hospitality," with "Serving a Company Dinner With a Maid," and "Late Evening Refreshments," as subdivisions. The proper table services will be shown at the Thursday addresses.

ANOTHER DRIFTING MINE SEEN

Radio Warnings Are Sent Out to Craft Plying Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A drifting mine was sighted Monday directly in the pathway charted for liners plying between Boston and Europe. Warning of its presence was immediately sent by radio broadcast to all mariners. The vessel gave its position as south of the Grand Banks and west of the junction at sea where ships bound from Europe to Boston leave the track of the Europe-New York liners and bear almost due west into port.

Since Jan. 1, 1921, eight floating mines which drifted from the remaining mine fields of the war overseas have been definitely reported in the North Atlantic area immediately off the American coast. During the same period two mines were reported off the southern part of the American coast.

If Ruptured Try This Free

Anyone ruptured, man, woman or child, should call at our office at once for free trial of the Rice Method, including the wonderful Lymphol Stimulating Application. Just put it on the rupture and the muscles begin to tighten; they begin to bind together so the opening closes naturally and the need of a support or truss is done away with. Don't neglect to call or send for this free trial. Even if your rupture doesn't bother, what is the use of wearing supports all your life? Why suffer this nuisance? Why run the risk of gangrene and such dangers from a small and innocent little rupture, the kind that has thrown thousands on the operating table? A host of men and women are daily running such risk just because their ruptures do not hurt nor prevent them from getting around. Follow the example of the thousands who have accepted our great free trial offer and later reported solid and lasting cures. It is certainly a wonderful thing that has aided in the cure of ruptures that were as big as a man's two fists. Try and call today before serious trouble comes. Office hours: 9 to 12 a. m., 1 to 5 p. m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9. Sundays, 10 to 1. If you cannot call at once, phone Olive [illegible] or Central 1561, or write, and a free demonstrating trial and book of information about rupture will be sent you without charge. William [illegible], Calumet Bldg., Room 21[illegible] North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

HEARINGS OPEN ON COMPENSATION LAW REFERENDUM

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—Wholesale irregularities in signatures on referendum petitions against the workmen's compensation act purporting to be those of voters of the Twelfth (St. Louis) Congressional District, were charged by former State Senator Alroy S. Phillips of St. Louis in a hearing here yesterday before James W. Walsh, Special Commissioner.

The proceeding is to take testimony in a suit brought by Phillips for a committee of St. Louis business men to knock out the referendum by which the compensation act, enacted by the last Legislature, has been suspended pending its submission to a vote in November.

The suit, filed in the name of Thomas M. Sayman, head of the T. M. Sayman Product Co. of St. Louis, against Secretary of State Becker is pending in the Circuit Court of Cole County. It seeks injunction to prevent submission of the act.

Charges of Phillips.

Phillips charges that of the 3521 signatures on petitions filed from the Twelfth District, from 1800 to 2000 are invalid. He has to establish the invalidity of only 1205 signatures from the Twelfth to knock out the entire referendum as the Constitution requires signatures of 5 per cent of the qualified voters of two-thirds of the congressional districts. Eleven is the minimum number of districts and petitions against the compensation act were filed from only 11 districts. Those from the Twelfth must bear 2517 valid signatures to stand, hence if 1205 are shown to be nullities, petitions from the Twelfth would fall, and with them the whole movement.

Affidavits of Charles Claudius, 4630 Nebraska avenue, for 19 years an employe of the Board of Election Commissioners of St. Louis, were presented to show that 485 signers of the Twelfth District petitions do not live in that district but reside in oher districts. Several affidavits by John H. Coakley, for 23 years an employe of the St. Louis Police Department, 14 years of which time has been spent as a handwriting expert in tracing forged checks, were introduced. Coakley made oath that more than 100 signatures on the petitions are duplicates, some of them written more than once in the same hand, apparently.

Other affidavits by Claudius, Coakley and Bernard W. Peck, another Election Board employe, attacked 889 other signatures on various grounds. After the general affidavits had been presented, individual affidavits from a large number of voters were brought forward to show that these persons, whose names appear on the petitions, had not signed the petitions and had not authorized anyone to sign for them.

Petitions Being Examined.

Three sheets of signatures, bearing 150 all told, were examined yesterday, name by name, detailed charges being made against 140 of the signatures and technical objections against all of them. In many instances errors in printed lists of voters gotten out by the Election Board from the registration books, appeared in signatures on the petitions, which, persons at the addresses given and of about the same names, declared, had not been signed by them.

The law requires that a copy of the bill at which a referendum attack is aimed shall be attached to each petition, yet, instead of a copy of the compensation act, the first sheet of names has attached to it a copy of a new personal injury act, for which initiative petitions were in circulation at the same time as the referendum petitions.

Phillips declared to Commissioner Walsh and Frank Farris, attorney for Thomas J. McNamara of St. Louis, president of the Building Trades Council, who, as an intervening defendant to the suit, is defending the petitions, that he believes one whole sheet of names under discussion yesterday, had been merely copied from registration lists.

Trade Unionists Interested.

Only a casual defense for the petitions is being made by Albert Miller and Robert W. Otto, assistants to the Attorney-General. The real defense is being made by Farris at the instance, supposedly, of a faction of St. Louis trade unionists who fought passage of the compensation act and circulated the referendum petitions. The hearing is expected to continue the rest of the week here, after which it will be transferred to St. Louis.

Only the twelfth district petitions are being attacked by Phillips, who took the petitions to St. Louis and had a detailed examination made some time ago, examiners going from house to house with notaries to take affidavits.

Don't Wait for Lower Bond Prices

Investors, large or small, who contemplate the purchase of bonds should BUY NOW! Six months ago bonds could be bought on a better basis than now, and quite likely they can be bought now more advantageously than will be possible three or six months hence.

The condition of the bond market today is probably temporary and the time may soon come when all the issues of good bonds will recover in price and show handsome profits to those who buy now for long term investment.

The bottom apparently has been reached and the swing upward seems to have the needed momentum to make it safe to say that in all probability bond prices will never again be lower or interest rates higher—the constant price tendency seems upward and the interest rates downward.

Anyone versed in financial affairs knows the reputation for safety of principal and interest which properly chosen bonds have always borne.

Insurance Companies, Trust Companies, Banks, trustees for large estates and wealthy individuals—those who are seasoned financiers—have always been the largest buyers of bonds, because they know the investment is sound.

The sale of Liberty Bonds brought to the attention of the small investor the advantage of buying safe bonds of small denomination. Thousands of investors of this class are now purchasing industrial and municipal bonds as rapidly as they accumulate a small surplus.

Both present and future security is provided for by investing now in good bonds through those reputable investment houses, trust companies and banks which advertise regularly in the POST-DISPATCH. Read their announcements closely and constantly and call on any of the advertisers for detailed information and unselfish advice.

SENATE DEBATES HARDING'S CIVIL SERVICE ATTITUDE

Clashes Occur When Resolutions Relating to President's Dismissal of Printing Chiefs Come Up.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Senate Republicans and Democrats clashed again today over the question of whether the Harding administration has been observing or violating civil service regulations.

Without much fuss or flurry, two Democratic resolutions on the subject were disposed of temporarily, but a third caused protracted debate.

The two resolutions of Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, relating to President Harding's discharge of 29 executives of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing were referred, with the Senator's assent, to the Senate Civil Service Committee. One proposed an investigation of the bureau case by a special Senate committee and the other would ask the President for his reasons for the bureau dismissals.

Right of Congress Questioned.

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, questioned the right of Congress to ask the President for reasons for dealing with Government employes.

"If the President violated the law there is a way to reach him," said Borah.

"Yes, we could impeach him," interrupted King, Democrat, of Utah.

Senator Borah rejoined that a former Democratic President had told Congress that his management of executive employes was none of its business.

Prior to reference of the Caraway resolutions, Curtis of Kansas, acting Republican leader, said he and other Republicans did not object to the requests for information if the preambles were stricken out. This Caraway declined to do.

Another Sharp Clash.

The sharpest clash came over a resolution by Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, asking the President for the names of all persons appointed by executive order without regard to civil service rules. Republicans sought to refer this also to the Civil Service Committee, but Harrison said he didn't want it buried that way, and a number of roll calls, divided in party lines, followed.

Senator Harrison finally failed to get action on his resolution, but the Republicans also failed to have it referred to the Civil Service Committee. Under the rules, the resolution went to the calendar when it was displaced automatically by the bill to create more Federal judges. Senator Harrison was prevented from discussing his resolution and the Republicans defeated a motion by him to direct the Civil Service Committee to report out the resolution without delay.

Gradual reorganization of Government departments along the lines of effecting a maximum of efficiency was said today in official circles to be the program of the administration, already begun, which is to result in changes wherever the infusion of new blood is judged necessary.

Operation of the civil service rules will not be allowed to hinder efforts to bring the administration of the Government to the highest peak of service, according to advisers close to President Harding who believe that the President is empowered to make whatever changes in official personnel may be deemed expedient in the interest of the country at large, although, if necessary, enabling legislation may be obtained from Congress.

The President was represented as holding the view that, under the Constitution, the chief executive, is charged with the duty of exercising the best judgment in the administration of the office intrusted to him.

Other Changes Planned.

Many changes already have taken place. In some quarters the view was advanced that reorganization would proceed regardless of party affiliations until installation of new personnel would wipe away all old methods now considered faulty to make way for the most modern procedure.

Reorganization is planned, it was said today, in the Internal Revenue Bureau, and will involve, it was declared, about a dozen important places. As soon as the Internal Revenue Bureau reorganization is finished the next bureau to be given attention is expected to be that of prohibition enforcement. Just how many "key positions" are involved in this bureau are not known, but it is understood they are considerable.

President Harding's dismissal of 29 Bureau of Engraving executives was the center of another storm of Democratic protest in Congress yesterday.

Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, denounced what he described as "deliberate efforts to subvert and destroy the civil service as applied to the postoffices of the country," adding that the Engraving Bureau dismissals were not the only evidence of hypocritical efforts to observe the law on the part of the present administration.

Cites Democratic Record.

Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, in reply, declared that he had no defense to make of violations of the civil service law and then read from the Congressional Record of early 1919 to show Hitchcock that he and his party had done "exactly the same things with respect to getting the other fellows out and the Democrats in."

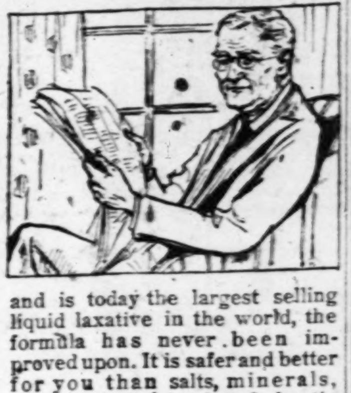
Norris denied that Republicans had spread the doctrine of a return to the spoils system, saying that he believed most of them were in favor of observing the civil service law.

"I preached a return to the spoils system," interrupted Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire. "I it because I believe an administration should be surrounded by its friends, always have believed it and always said so."

"Then the Senator ought to have been defeated," retorted Senator Norris.

"But I wasn't," replied Moses. "I got the biggest vote any Republican ever got in New Hampshire and that is evidence enough for me."

SYRUP PEPSIN IN OLD AGE



Much used by elderly people for constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc.

MANY men and women, as they grow older, suffer constantly from little ills. The cause is the poisons produced by chronic constipation, resulting in headaches, depression, bloating, sour stomach, bad breath, etc. A single bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will prove to you that you can so regulate yourself that elimination will occur promptly every day. Increased doses are not necessary. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin. The cost is only about a cent a dose.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market 30 years and is today the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, the formula has never been improved upon. It is safer and better for you than salts, minerals, calomel, coal tar and such drastic purgatives.

Half-Ounce Bottle Free

Few escape constipation, so even if you do not require a laxative at this moment let me send you a Half-ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will have it handy when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Write me today.

and the Rest of the Week

Have you calluses or bunions? Do your toes cramp? Do your feet swell? Have you any general fatigue and body weariness after much standing or walking? This is your opportunity to be advised without charge by an expert.

This man was trained by Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, the international authority on the relief of all kinds of foot troubles. He will be here tomorrow and the balance of the week. He will work with our own Foot Specialist, also a graduate of Dr. Scholl's, who is regularly in attendance at our store for the convenience of our patrons.

Please do not miss this splendid opportunity to gain foot comfort whether or not you are a patron of this store. Come in tomorrow. A special private fitting room has been provided.

SPIRITED ELECTIONS THROUGHOUT MISSOURI

Unusually Heavy Vote Reported in Municipalities All Over the State.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5.—The municipal elections held throughout Missouri yesterday were the most spirited in years, belated returns received here today showing an unusually heavy vote over the State. In many cities party lines were sharply drawn, while in others, the elections were nonpartisan in character.

In Jefferson City the Democrats elected four of five Aldermen and carried the city by nearly 500 votes. Returns from St. Joseph indicated the election of a Republican Mayor and the whole Republican ticket with exception of auditor and treasurer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., April 5.—R. A. Waller, Democrat, running on a citizens' ticket, was elected Mayor here yesterday by a majority of 394 votes over Charles Burkhart, Republican. It was the first time in 35 years that a Democrat has been elected Mayor in Macon. Waller carried the rest of the ticket with him but he ran behind. The Republicans gained control of the Council by having three holdover members and electing two today. Burkhart entered the mayoralty race only five days before the election, taking the place on the ticket received by the party nominee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—Democrats elected four out of five Councilmen who were chosen in the municipal election here yesterday and material Democratic gains were shown in every ward, over the normal Democratic vote, despite the number of Republican votes brought here by the State administration, which is Republican throughout.

The Councilmen elected by wards are: First, W. A. Curtis; Second, John E. Rovira; Third, Henry Wallau; Fourth, E. T. Case, all Democrats; Fifth, W. B. Fink, Republican. The five Democratic candidates polled a total of 1879 votes against 1419 for their Republican opponents, a Democratic plurality of 460. Emil Schott, banker, T. A. Dumm, lawyer, and W. T. Carrington, former State Superintendent of Schools, were elected members of the Board of Education, there being no contest.

Republican Elected Mayor of St. Joseph by Large Majority.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 5.—George McIninch, Republican, was elected Mayor of St. Joseph Tuesday over Dr. J. C. Whitsell, the Democratic candidate by one of the largest majorities ever given a candidate for the mayoralty here. McIninch polled a total vote of 10,538, while Whitsell received 5773. The Republicans elected their entire ticket with the exception of Treasurer and Auditor. Treasurer Weis was re-elected on the Democratic ticket over Myrtle Maxwell, the vote being 9727 to 6541.

Woman on Columbia Board of Education.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 5.—Mrs. Louella St. Clair Moss, president emeritus of Christian College, was elected member of the Columbia Board of Education in yesterday's election. She is the first woman ever elected to this position here, though several have made the race in the past. She led the school ticket. All Republican candidates for Alderman were defeated. A tax for a half-mill assessment for the establishment and maintenance of a public library carried by a vote of 643.

Other Missouri Returns.

By the Associated Press,

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 5.—J. A. Barks, Republican, was elected Mayor over Walter Black, Democrat.

By the Associated Press.

SEDALIA, Mo., April 5.—The Democrats carried the city administration offices here for the first time in many years in the election yesterday. The Republicans elected Aldermen in three out of the four wards.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., April 5.—F. Taylor Snapp defeated Charles A. Patterson in the nonpartisan election for the mayoralty by 127 votes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., April 5.—In the city election W. H. Hulen, C. B. Bysart, Joe T. Kirby and H. C. Worlledge were elected Councilmen. W. I. Bohannon was elected Police Judge in a field of seven candidates. For the assessorship Mrs. Ham Robertson won by a big majority over her opponent, Mrs. H. A. Hatfield. Dr. A. M. Furnish and A. B. Chamier were re-elected school directors. The school levy carried by a big majority.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ELSBERRY, Mo., April 5.—At the school election, J. M. Gibson and W. W. Watts were elected School Directors, to serve three years, defeating Roscoe Cannon and George Levengood. A nine months' school was voted and a rate of 60 cents for maintenance. The proposition of 40 cents for repairs was lost. Wallace S. Reid was re-elected Mayor, defeating J. B. Ellis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., April 5.—The entire Democratic ticket was victorious in the city election. J. W. Gallaher was re-elected Mayor by more than 400 votes. The propositions to build an incinerator plant and increase the school tax levy were defeated.

How to Make Orange Jelly

Anyone Can Do It In Few Minutes' Time

Serve It Tonight.

Orange jelly is delicious and quite easy to make if you have the right recipe. Take twelve oranges (pick out the juicy ones) and grate off the yellow part of the rinds into a dish, Cut fruit into halves and squeeze out the juice. Mix juice and grated rind and squeeze through strong, fine cloth to remove rind and pulp. Measure carefully 3 cups of juice and 7 leveled cups (3 lbs.) of sugar into a large saucepan, stir and bring to a boil. Then immediately add one bottle (scant cup) of Certo, stirring constantly. Continue to stir and bring again to a hard boil for one-half minute, constantly stirring. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly into glasses. This will make about 12 six-ounce glasses at a cost of only a few cents a glass. You will find it delicious both with hot breads and the meat course.

The above recipe, as well as recipes for quickly and easily making Apricot Jam, Grapefruit and Orange Marmalades and all kinds of jellies and jams from bottled fruit juices, canned fruits, dried fruits and all fresh fruits, are found in the CERTO Book of Recipes. Get a copy today with a bottle of Certo from your grocer or druggist or write for free copy to Pectin Sales Company, Inc., Dept. 9, Rochester, N. Y., and learn the new, easy and inexpensive way of making the finest jams, jellies and marmalades you ever tasted.

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

NASH

PERHAPS no other single feature of the Nash Four has inspired so much favorable comment as the remarkable riding comfort with which it is endowed.

The reason for the surpassing ease with which it travels the roughest roads goes straight back to the new-type Nash springs which are formed of one great masterleaf, an increased number of scientifically graduated thinner and more flexible leaves, and a rebound plate that, in effect, forms a cushion between the body of the car and the rushing recoil from a road blow.

News of the Business World

By Wire to the Post-Dispatch

APRIL 5.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Pennsylvania is harder hit by the coal strike than any other State, as fully one-third of the miners out are in the anthracite and bituminous fields of this State. Nowhere have miners been more prosperous for the last three years than in the anthracite region. There they lived well and saved money. Some of the foreign-born miners, seeing labor trouble ahead, have gone back to Europe, taking with them sums which in their old homes will be regarded as small fortunes.

Those who remain soon will begin to draw on their savings for living expenses. The sudden loss of buying power which the strike of more than 200,000 men of this State has entailed, is beginning to affect many lines of retail trade and through them the jobbers and wholesalers. It is not believed industries here will suffer from lack of fuel unless the strike is prolonged unduly.

Steel is on the upgrade for the second quarter of the year. Orders are piling up with the local steel companies because of the large prospect. More furnaces are being put in blast each week and the amount of construction work in prospects for a prosperous year for the industry is growing brighter.

MILLINERS BLAME WEATHER.

CHICAGO.—Milliners here are down-hearted. Their chic creations in bright colors are not selling rapidly and they are blaming that fact on the weather. Easter frocks, however, are in splendid demand. Trade in fabrics at the large State street department stores has been heavier since Saturday than for a long time and one company admits its business has been better in the last two weeks than for months. It is believed that a few days of bright, warm weather will revive the millinery demand and bring a taste of the prosperity which other retail lines are enjoying.

Men's clothing and furnishings are commencing to move in better fashion. Most of the merchants are advertising an extra pair of trousers with their suits as an inducement to trade. Merchants generally seem to agree that the present betterment is something more than a seasonal revival.

The steadily increasing sales of the mail order houses is regarded as an encouraging sign. The mail order houses report that farmers are not buying many pianos, phonographs or expensive luxuries, but are in the market for household goods, hardware and farming tools. The latter are being sold close to cost to help restore conditions.

Steel production in this district continues to gain with the Gary bar mills running close to capacity for the first time in more than a year.

GAINS AT NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS. — Warmer weather and preparations have brought about a marked betterment in retail sales in this district. March was one of the poorest months the retail merchants have had for years, but April has started off with every indication that its gain will offset the March dullness. The largest gains have been made in silks, light underwear, millinery, gloves and hosiery. Household goods and furniture are somewhat less active.

Wholesale trade is holding up well except in a few lines, although sales of dry goods are somewhat smaller because of the fact that interior retailers covered their needs pretty well last month. Fear of floods in the Mississippi valley is restricting trade to some extent.

Investment bankers and brokers report the best demand for investment securities they have had for many months, and are finding it difficult to obtain enough attractive new issues to supply it.

Shipment of early vegetables has been delayed by the freeze of last month and is not expected to begin in earnest until about April 15. Planting has been heavy despite the fact that returns from winter shipments did not meet expectations.

GENERAL TOPICS.

DETROIT, Mich.—The listing of the Michigan State Telephone Co. numbers 140,000, an increase of 3500 subscribers over the total in December. Officials of the company declare requests for office extensions and duplicate trunk lines are coming in at an unprecedented rate and these trends show that business expansion is taking place.

BOSTON.—The number of freight car loadings on the New England roads have shown a marked increase since the first of the year. Some increase was expected from seasonal business, but the improvement has been greater than normal.

ROUNDUP, Mont.—In order to stimulate building, carpenters voluntarily have made a reduction of $1 a day in their wage scales. This is the second time they have done this in three months. The scale now is $8 a day.

AUTOS.

MUSKEGON, Mich.—The Continental Motors are re-employing all former workmen who had been laid off and other plants here are following suit.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—There is an increased demand for automobiles in West Texas and dealers estimate that they will be hard pressed to supply the demand.

COTTONS.

LAWRENCE, Mass.—Executives of the Pacific Mills, second largest cotton mill in the world, about half of whose operatives are on strike, declared today they would not arbitrate the wage question which is an issue.

HARDWARE.

SEATTLE, Wash.—Dealers in wholesale and retail builders' hardware and plumbing supplies report that more work has been figured on in the last 30 days than at any time for two years. Inquiries are coming mostly from home builders.

LUMBER.

NEW ORLEANS.—The general average wage paid laborers in the lumber industry of the South has decreased 20 per cent from last year. The average hourly wage in the woods department is 25.7 cents and for the plant department, 27 cents.

CARPETS.

CLOTHING.

EL PASO, Tex.—The demand for men's clothing in the West Texas towns is improving and retailers are preparing for a heavy summer's trade.

STEEL.

PITTSBURG, Pa.—Virtually all makers are naming the following prices on sheets: Blue annealed, $2.40, an advance from $2.25; black, $3.15, an advance from $3; galvanized, $4.15, an advance from $4; Bessemer and open hearth bars are

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACKHEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation—then, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of calonite powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft, and the pores in their natural condition—anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.

WIFE NO. 1 SAYS HE WROTE HER WHILE HONEYMOONING WITH 2D

Dramatic Scene at Hospital, Where One Is Ill; Each Wonders Where "Husband" Can Be.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Exactly 17 day after he married Ellen Curley McIntyre, in Youngstown, last Nov. 28, Joseph Donald Grafton, son of a Pittsburg furniture manufacturer, married Peggy Davis, 17-year-old dancer in the "Follies," in New York. This became known when both "wives" produced their marriage certificates here, following a dramatic visit by Mrs. Grafton the first to the sanitarium where the second Mrs. Grafton lay seriously ill.

The two Mrs. Graftons have not met. Mrs. Grafton the first told her story to "Peggy's" mother because "Peggy" was too ill to be informed of the marriage mixup.

"Every day he was on his honeymoon with Peggy he wrote me the most loving letters," said the first Mrs. Grafton. "The third day after I married him I read an advertisement in a weekly publication in which a woman whose name was not given asked that Joseph Donald Grafton of Pittsburg, husband of her daughter, be located, as his wife was seriously ill."

Representatives of both wives today are seeking Grafton, whose whereabouts is unknown. Last Thursday he is said to have entered secretly the apartment he and "Peggy" occupied and removed all his effects. Before that he had been writing to "Peggy" and her mother from points in Pennsylvania, telling of his struggles to obtain sufficient money to pay for "Peggy's" sanitarium treatment.

Increasing Number of Roberies Is Thought to be Cause of Applications.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Is New York an armed town?

It developed today that between 10,000 and 12,000 bankers, brokers, and employes of such had taken out permits within the last few months to carry deadly weapons.

Deputy Commissioner John J. Cray said that the price for pistol permits had been increased from $1 to $1.50 through a new enactment by the Legislature. Between Jan. 1 and yesterday morning the number of permits for citizens to carry revolvers totaled about 25,000.

The great number of applications, it is thought may be because of the constantly increasing number of holdups, office burglaries, pay roll robberies, house invasions and the like.

ILLINOIS LOWLANDS FLOODED

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., April 5.—With the dike on the Tazewell side of the upper free bridge washed out and damage estimated at several thousands of dollars caused in the low lands, recent rains upstream are expected to bring the Illinois River to a stage of 23 feet by noon today. The water is lapping the bottom of the T. P. & W. Railroad bridge for a distance of 100 feet on the east side.

The upper free bridge was last night swung, halting all traffic over the road. Levees further down the river at Liverpool, near Havana, have gone out with more than 3000 acres flooded. Damage to wheat crops has been estimated at thousands of dollars. Cass County thus far has suffered heavy damage, with more than a foot of water to pass through the river before the crest is reached. A sand-bag levee is under construction to keep out the floods and patrols are kept night and day on the La Marsh dike on the Peoria side.

SARNIA, Ont.—The Dominion Steel Corporation, recently organized to make alloy steel, will establish a plant here.

CEMENT.

DETROIT, Mich.—Cement and masonry contractors report that an unprecedented number of inquiries for cost estimates have been received the last month. A leading firm says that if only 25 per cent of the inquiries result in contracts they will have a fairly normal season.

HORSES.

PITTSBURG, Pa.—Demand for horses is so keen and the movement from the West so large that there is an acute shortage of "palace horse cars." Within the last few days many cars of horses have passed through here.

TACKS.

FAIRHAVEN, Mass.—The Atlas Tack Co. is running about 60 per cent of normal capacity, compared with an average of 50 per cent in 1921. General hardware trade customers are buying more freely, but shoe finding lines are quiet.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—It is estimated that there is $50,000,000 of new building construction in sight which will be completed in the next four months.

GLASS.

PITTSBURG, Pa.—With the arrival of more favorable weather for building, window glass is in increased demand and various plants are speeding up production.

RAISINS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Demand for raisins has been irregular. There is considerable stock on hand and prices are inclined to show a softer tendency.

WATCHES.

WALTHAM, Mass.—The business of the Waltham Watch Co. has shown a steady improvement since Jan. 1. Sales in both the watch and speedometer departments are running well ahead of those of 1921.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST

The familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label is the only form in which Fleischmann's Yeast is sold

THOUSANDS of men and women have found relief from various digestive disturbances by eating Fleischmann's Yeast.

It is human nature to want to find out "why." So far as science can tell us this is the reason:

Fleischmann's Yeast is a food abundant in certain elements which are necessary to health and life itself. It promotes the flow of bile and of pancreatic juice. It has a remarkably beneficial effect on the whole digestive system. It cleans a coated tongue.

Try Fleischmann's fresh yeast in orange juice or, if you prefer, in milk. Men like it in milk shakes and malted milks. Women like it spread on bread or crackers.

Keep your digestion in the pink of condition and your tongue clean and healthy by eating 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast fresh every day before or between meals. Get Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily from your grocer.

EDWIN BEECHER NEW MAYOR OF KIRKWOOD

School Tax Proposal Carried There—Election Results in Other St. Louis County Towns.

Clayton: Julius Nolte, a Republican attorney, elected Mayor, without opposition, to succeed Fred L. Kerth; Joseph Heller re-elected Marshal; Mrs. Bernadine Merton and George W. Lamke, registrar of Washington University, elected on School Board, Mrs. Merton succeeding herself.

Kirkwood—Edwin Beecher, vice president of the D'Arcy Advertising Co., elected Mayor, to succeed Joseph Matthews, who served for 10 years and declined to run again; Frank Weiss re-elected Marshal; Justice of the Peace George W. Jacobi re-elected Police Judge; J. G. Hawken re-elected Collector; R. J. Compton and Collins Thompson re-elected to School Board; proposal to increase the school tax rate from $2 on the $100 valuation to $2.50 for building purposes, carried.

Richmond Heights: "Administration ticket," except for some members of the Board of Aldermen, re-elected; James M. Jensen, who held the office for 12 years, or since the town was incorporated, Mayor; W. Clark Mitchell, Collector; George W. McCready, Marshal; Edward J. Houlihan, Police Judge; J.L. Jeffries, Frank J. Grutch, F. A. Whitten, John Maloney and Harry J. Talbot Jr., Aldermen.

Mitchell defeated the only woman who was a candidate in the county for an office, except for membership on school boards, Mrs. Hazel E. Messenger, of Dale avenue and Maryland boulevard, who carried on a "bonbon campaign," which attracted more general attention than any other feature of the county elections. Her candy tokens failed to coax sufficient voters to desert the regular ticket. Jensen defeated Harry J. Talbot, progressive candidate for Mayor, by a close vote.

Mrs. Messenger said today that she would try for the election again, in 1924, and that, instead of running independently, she would align herself with the Progressive League, which opposes the administration group. She attributed her defeat to failure to join the progressives, but added that she had only decided to run two weeks ago. She polled 160 votes, while Mitchell got 382, and there were two other candidates.

Webster Groves—Carried bond issue of $25,000 for new city hall and additional fire apparatus. The school tax of $1 general fund and 90 cents building fund, an increase of 15 cents over last year, carried. The Board of Education is empowered to levy taxes necessary to pay interest on outstanding school bonds, and this last year brought the tax to $2.35. It will probably be about the same this year. James S. Cook and George A. Shepardson were re-elected to the School Board without opposition, and E. H. Teeney and E. L. Curtis, unopposed, were elected to fill unexpired terms.

Wellston—Henry Briemeyer and James B. Williams were elected to the School Board.

Shrewsbury—Mayor, Joseph B. Ackfield; Aldermen, First Ward, Christ H. Frederick, and Second Ward, William G. Schlueter; City Clerk, Vincent J. Schulte; Marshal, Robert W. Hagens. Ackfield and Schulte succeeded themselves.

Jennings—Christ Blumenthal and William Wiebrock, unopposed, were re-elected to the School Board. The school tax was increased from 65 cents to $1.

Ferguson — Aldermen: First Ward, William Donovan; Second Ward, Charles Lippman; Third Ward, Edward Goff; Fourth Ward, S. F. Frazier; Fifth Ward, H. C. Grimm. In the election for vacancies on the School Board, Charles Howard and Edward Chase, who were unopposed, were re-elected.

Brentwood: Board of Trustees re-elected—Charles M. Meyer, Edward Smith, W. L. Winthrow, A. Buerch and L. W. Webster. This "administration" group has opposed efforts to disincorporate the town, which, it has been charged, were backed by roadhouses which wanted to escape taxes imposed on them. L. D. Denny and F. L. Bishop re-elected School Directors.

University City—Aldermen — Eugene D. Ruth Jr., Reynold C. Frampton and Fred Robinson, Frampton's ward being the only one in which there was a contest. A proposal carried for a tax of 1 mill on the $100 valuation for the establishment of a park and playgrounds. It has been estimated that this will yield $12,000 a year.

Valley Park: Incumbents re-elected—Robert Sargent, Mayor; Justice of the Peace J. O. Sturdy, Collector; James O'Brien, Marshal. City Attorney Glenn Jones and William Young, a saloonkeeper, elected to School Board, two of their three opponents having been women.

HEARING AGAIN ADJOURNED

When the hearing of the complaint against members of the St. Louis Livestock Exchange, charged with restraining trade by boycotting nonmember commission firms, was resumed at the National Stockyards at 11 a. m. today, following an adjournment Monday, H. M. Gore of the Trade Practice Division of the Department of Agriculture asked another adjournment to 3 o'clock.

He said negotiations were on between the respondents and attorneys and that an adjournment would facilitate a settlement. Examiner Ellis adjourned the hearing to 3 p. m.

Russian Trades Unions Whipped Into Submission by Bolsheviki; Yet Emma Goldman Sees Hope

Labor Organizations, She Declares, Have Become Military Barracks for the Mobilized Army Forced Into Membership by the State.

The Post-Dispatch herewith presents the tenth and last article in the series by Emma Goldman on conditions in Russia as she found them. She spent two years there following her deportation from the United States by order of the Department of Labor for disloyal utterances during the war. After being barred from several other countries through the intrigues of the Bolsheviki, she was permitted to enter Sweden and it is from that country that she sent her communications on her experiences to the Post-Dispatch.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March—The much praised achievement of the Bolsheviki in the matter of trades unions reminds me of Mrs. Alving's remark in Ibsen's "Ghosts": "I only wished to pick at a single knot, but when I got that undone the whole thing raveled out. And then I understood that it was all machine sewn."

Among the first things called to one's attention when one arrives in Russia are the trades unions. Think of it, seven million workers organized into one body, having their magnificent labor temples, their educational and cultural courses, their grand meetings and concerts. What other country can make such a showing? You are overwhelmed. But no sooner do you begin to pick at one knot when the whole seam ravels out. You come to see that trades unions, more than any other Bolshevik institution, are machine sewn—sewn by the machine of the Communist state.

In fact, it is most confusing to talk of trades unions under the Bolshevik regime. After all, trades unions have a definite historic meaning, at least to workers outside of Bolshevik Russia. They represent, in their conservative sense even, the fighting arena of organized labor for economic improvement. In the revolutionary sense the trades unions, or rather the industrial and syndicalist unions, are the economic training school of the militant masses for the overthrow of exploitation and the management by the workers of production in a liberated society.

Yet neither in the conservative nor even in the revolutionary sense do the trades unions represent in Russia the needs of the workers. What they really are is the coerced and militarized adjunct of the Bolshevik state. They are "the school of communism," as Lenine insisted in his thesis on the functions of trades unions. But they are not ever that. A school presupposes the free expression and initiative of the pupils, whereas the trades unions in Russia are military barracks for the mobilized labor army forced into membership by the state driver.

Unions Quickly Shorn of Power by Rulers in New Dictatorship

The trades unions in Russia, though young in years (they came into being in 1905), were very militant organizations. They had to be in order to withstand the cruel persecutions under the Czar. But though they led an underground existence most of the time, they were none the less an important factor in the economic struggles of the Russian worker. That fact was demonstrated forcibly early after the February revolution.

The trades unions, imbued with the new spirit that had come to Russia, were not content with mere political changes. Their aim was to get the workers in possession of the economic structure of the country. Even before the workers expropriated the shops and factories the trades unions had organized shop and factory committees for the control of the industrial life of the community.

These committees later gave birth to the All-Russian Trades Union Soviet, which worked in close unity with the other soviets. In other words, the trades unions were, even before the bolshevik regime, the organized expression of the demands and aspirations of the workers. Thus, the third Conference of Trades Unions, held in Petrograd in July, 1917, already sent 210 delegates representing a trade union membership of 1,475,425.

The advent of the dictatorship of the proletariat quickly made itself felt in the trades unions. Adherence to labor organizations became compulsory, everyone who worked being automatically enrolled in the union and compelled to pay for the pleasure, whether he enjoyed it or not. The 3 per cent dues were simply deducted from his wage, so that the Russian worker had to stand the cost of the very organizations which destroyed every symptom of initiative and self-direction in the Russian trades unions.

The All-Russian Soviet.

The All-Russian Trades Union Soviet consists of 120 members. Its Central Executive Committee has 11 members, and practically only communists can get elected to either body. The result is that the trades unions have become a mere branch of the State machinery, completely controlled and directed by the latter in its policies and functions. The average member has no say whatever in the activities of his organization nor are regular meetings of the unions held, in the Western sense, except such as are thoroughly dominated and managed by the bolshevik faction in each union.

If any union should venture to exercise the function of a real union it is quickly given to understand that whatever trades unions may do in Western Europe or America, in the communist state they must obey the law and keep their mouths shut.

To illustrate. The bakers of Moscow, representing a large and militant union, went on strike in the summer of 1920 for an increase of their bread allowance. The Government did not trouble itself much about the matter. The striking local was simply dissolved, its leaders expelled and some of the most active members arrested. The more prominent spokesmen of the strikers were forbidden to participate in any union gatherings and deprived of the right to hold office.

Similar tactics were followed by the bolsheviki in various other strikes. An interesting incident of this character was the Moscow printers' difficulty. In their case it was not even a strike; it was merely the "impudence" of having called a meeting to which members of the British Labor Mission, then in Moscow, were invited.

At that meeting Chernoff, leader of the Social-Revolutionists, and Dan, a prominent Menshevik, committed the unpardonable sin of telling the British labor men a few facts about the trade union and labor conditions in Russia. Immediately after that all the officials of the printers' union were suspended and some of them thrown into jail.

Throughout the country, in all official papers, the Moscow printers were heralded as counter revolutionists, traitors and "skinners of labor" and denounced in bitterest terms that served to awe and terrorize the rest of the proletariat of the country.

Absorbed by State.

So absolute and crushing is the tyranny over the trades unions that the least protest is denounced as a breach of revolutionary and labor discipline and a crime against the revolution. When, during the Petrograd strikes of February, 1921, the workers of the Baltic shops protested against the arrest of 22 of their members, they were told by Antselovitch, the chairman of the Petrograd Trades Unions, that they all belonged in the Cheka, and several days later a raid took place at the shops, resulting in the arrest of numerous workers.

In short, the trades unions in bolshevik Russia have been entirely absorbed by the State and have no other meaning or function than to do police duty for the State.

Naturally such conditions could not last very long without arousing the most bitter discontent on the part of the workers. In fact, in 1920 this discontent became so general and threatening that the Government saw itself compelled to give serious consideration to the situation. The issue of the functions of the trades unions was taken up by the end of 1920 and it soon became apparent that even within the communist party itself there raged conflicting views on that important question.

All the leading communists participated in the heated verbal contest which was to decide the fate of the trades unions. The theses presented disclosed four main tendencies.

First, the Lenin-Zinovieff faction, which held that "the trades unions have only one function under the proletarian dictatorship"—that is, to serve as schools of communism.

The second tendency was represented by Riasanoff and his adherents, who insisted that the trades unions must continue to function as the forum of the workers and their economic protector.

The third faction was that of Trotzky, the military genius who can think only in terms of militarism. He advanced the thesis that the trades unions will in time become the managers and controllers of the industries, but that for the present the union management must be appointed by military methods.

Last, and most important, was the Labor Opposition, led by Mme. Kollantay and Schliapnikoff, who really represented the actual sentiment of the workers and had their support.

Revolt of Opposition.

This opposition insisted that the militarization of the trades unions had destroyed the interest of the workers in the economic reconstruction of the country and paralyzed their productive capacity. They demanded the liberation of the masses from the yoke of the bureaucratic state and its corrupt officialdom and giving the people opportunity for the exercise of their creative energies.

They pointed out that the October revolution had been fought to enable the masses to be in control of the industrial life of the country. In short, the Labor Opposition voiced the accumulated protest and discontent of the rank and file.

It was a battle royal, with Trotzky and Zinovieff chasing each other over the country, in separate special trains, to disprove each other's contentions. In Petrograd, for instance, Zinovieff's influence was so powerful that it required a big struggle before Trotzky received permission to address the communist local on his views about the controversy.

The latter engendered intense feeling and came near disrupting the communist party. But God loves Lenin. Always when his structure begins to totter the Lord sends him some prop. The great labor unrest and numerous strikes in Petrograd in February, 1921, and the Cronstadt insurrection proved that prop. Communist unity was to be maintained at all cost. And so the Little Father took his unruly children, one by one, and taught them their manners.

Lenin denounced the labor opposition as anarcho-syndicalist, middle class ideology and ordered its suppression. Schliapnikoff, one of the opposition's most influential leaders, was referred to by Lenin as a "peeved commissary" and was subsequently silenced by being made a member of the Central Committee of the communist party.

Mme. Kollantay was told to hold her tongue or get out of the party, and her pamphlet—setting forth the views of the opposition—was suppressed.

Some of the lesser lights of the labor opposition were given a vacation in the Cheka, and even Riasanoff—an old and tried communist—was suspended for six months from all union activities. As to Trotzky, whom Lenin held up to the party's scorn as an "ignoramus in fundamental Marxism," he was hustled off to Cronstadt to bring there the "peace of Warsaw." Lenin and his saint, Juste Zinovieff, scored a victory. The trades unions remained the "school for communism."

Lenin Fixes Their Status.

The new economic policy is fast reshaping the whole structure of Russia. The trades unions are among the first to feel its effects. At a session of the Central Committee of the communist party, held in Moscow in December, 1921, the functions of the trades unions under the new economic policy was discussed. A commission consisting of Lenin, Rudzyutak and Andreyeff, was chosen to prepare a thesis on the subject. Later their thesis was accepted, as usual, unanimously by the All-Russian Central Soviet of Trades Unions.

(1) Compulsory enrollment of the workers in the labor organizations brought about bureaucratic deterioration of the trades unions and alienated them from the masses (for saying the same things many workers had been denounced as counter revolutionists and "skinners" and were sent to the Cheka); it is therefore now necessary to establish voluntary membership in the unions.

(2) The workers joining unions must not be interfered with or harassed on account of their political or religious faith. Shades of the numerous victims who were discriminated against and browbeaten because of their political views unsympathetic to the bolsheviki!)

(3) The economic reconstruction of Russia necessitates the strictest concentration of power in the hands of individual management; therefore the labor unions must not seek to control the industries leased or owned by private capitalists.

It is evident that the new economic policy, supported by Lenine's thesis on the role of the unions, is opening the door to new labor problems and inevitable conflicts. The settling of all coming labor conflicts will be in the hands of a "higher body," outside of the trades unions. Lenine's commission has already indicated that this "highest authority" of forced arbitration of labor disputes is to be no other than the communist party and the Third International.

It is apparent that the communist International means to preserve its domination of the labor movement of Russia while it is at the same time bending every effort to gain control of the labor organizations in Western Europe and America.

Losing His Privileges.

Meanwhile the Russian worker, under the new economic policy, is faring even worse than since the revolution began. He has lost even those guarantees, few as they were, that accrued to him as a result of the revolutionary changes. Especially is this true in regard to the hours of work.

The eight-hour day, practically universal in Russia for the last four years, has now been abolished de facto. According to the official organ, the Moscow Pravda, of December, 1921, the situation is as follows: Only 86 out of 695 industrial establishments have retained the eight-hour work day.

The bakers are the most exploited and work longest hours, from 12 to 18. These data refer to conditions in Moscow, the capital of Russia. In the provinces the situation is even worse. Thus in the Don coal district the miners remain at work 16 to 17 continuous hours. In the state leather factory at Vitebsk 12 hours constitutes the normal work day; in the Astrakhan fisheries, according to the local representative at the Second All-Russian Conference for the Protection of Labor, the work day is virtually unlimited.

The Russian revolution, however, has not been entirely in vain. It has uprooted many of the old notions of the Russian masses, and the worker is no longer the docile slave he used to be. He has been fed on politics ad nauseum; he no longer believes in it. Now that he will be able to combine with his fellows in new labor organizations he will no doubt try more direct methods to assert himself.

Lenine and his retinue are sensing the danger. Their attack upon and the persecution of the labor opposition and the anarcho-syndicalists are continuing with ever greater intensity. Is it that the anarcho-syndicalist star is rising in the East? Who knows—Russia is the land of miracles.

FOR RESUMPTION OF WORK ON WILSON DAM

Senate Agriculture Committee Recommends an Appropriation of $7,500,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5. — Resumption of work on the gigantic Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals, Ala., under charge of army engineers, was recommended today by the Senate agriculture committee.

The committee voted unanimously to report an amendment to the army supply bill when it is presented to the senate providing an appropriation of $7,500,000 to finance work on the dam for one year beginning July 1 next.

Committee members agreed with Chairman Norris that the action was taken solely in order to expedite completion of the project and was entirely without prejudice to the offers for operation, completion, purchase or lease of the Muscle Shoals project, received by the Government from Henry Ford, the Alabama Power Co., Frederick E. Engstrum or others.

Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, suggested that the Agriculture Committee should communicate its intention to the Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the army bill, and, if possible, obtain its approval of the proposed amendment. Senator Norris said he would see the appropriation members and endeavor to win their support for the proposition.

Radiophone Traffic a Perplexing Problem

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Storm-tossed on a turbulent sea of conflicting wave lengths, the United States Government admittedly is at a loss to know what to do with the growing radiophone traffic. New laws must be passed on the subject but no one apparently knows just where to begin with them.

The suggestion seriously is being considered of giving the Interstate Commerce Commission control of the air so far as the mainland of the United States is concerned.

But this brings up the question whether the air over a state belongs to that state or to the United States. Have not the radio residents of the sovereign State of Georgia the right to use the air of that State as they see fit, without interference from the Federal Government? Once more the specter of "states' rights" raises its head.

Of course, the Government contends that you cannot start an ether wave in Georgia and stop it at the State line. It is bound to ignore fixed boundaries and therefore becomes interstate "business" and subject to Federal rules and regulation.

Furthermore, the radio waves generated on the mainland at any point near the coast spread to sea. They take no heed of the three-mile limit, and, invading the ozone of the open sea, become a subject for international consideration.

May Be International Problem.

"One thing is certain," said Judge William E. Lamb, Solicitor of the Department of Commerce, today. "We need an entire new code of laws to cope with the wireless situation. The laws under which we are now operating were based upon the wireless conventions of 1913. The whole use of the wireless telephone has grown up since that time and with it have come entirely new problems.

"I do not see how we can reach anything like a permanent solution of the problem without another international convention and someone will have to take the initiative in calling such a convention in the near future."

A wireless commission now is considering what steps can be taken to curb some of the antics of the wireless amateurs, but the task is a thankless one. It is realized that Congress is not going to act with any rapidity in "squelching" the amateur when it is known that the ranks of amateurs are growing by leaps and bounds day by day. It is also realized that Congress will be slow with restrictive measures which might interfere with the new "infant industry" of this country—the manufacture of wireless sets. The wireless makers are working their factories night and day, but, despite their strenuous effort to keep up, are falling steadily behind in their orders.

Air Getting Overcrowded.

All of the radiophone broadcasting stations are working with licenses, but there is still the prohibition that they cannot invade the wave lengths reserved strictly for the Government—600 to 1600 meters. But even these restrictions may have to be modified. The air below 600 meters is getting overcrowded. One can hardly hear one's self think at the receivers any more. When a "Beethoven sonata" and a market report of curb prices become involved at the same wave length, the commotion in the air is akin to that lashed up by a harpooned whale in midocean.

The two great political parties are viewing the possibilities of the wireless telephone for the campaign this fall with both interest and alarm. In the absence of reserved wave lengths below the 600 mark, there really is nothing to prevent a lot of mischievous "interference." For instance, if it be announced that a certain prominent Republican will speak to his constituents at 360 meters at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, there is nothing to prevent a prominent Democrat from tuning up to exactly 360 meters the same hour of the same night and sending his speech in the same general radio direction.

Perhaps this is what caused some of the protests against the recent use of the navy wireless by Senator New of Indiana. He made his speech within the reserved Government wave lengths, and, being thus "safely within the law," there was no chance to interrupt or heckle the speaker.

If There Were Some Law.

If there were only some law by which the Republicans could be assigned 360 meters and the Democrats 440—with heavy penalties for malicious interference—the political use of the radiophone would wax apace, but there is no such law and none in immediate contemplation.

There is a possibility that the Government air space may be placed at the 1000-meter mark and over. This would open 400 additional meters to the amateurs and to the commercialized use of the air. Every one of those additional meters apparently is needed.

Meantime, radio melees are bound to continue. There are no laws to prevent, and everyone is convinced that during the time it takes to put a law through Congress in these modern days the whole field of wireless telephony may take a new range. The big department store is just as free to broadcast its Friday bargains as Paderewski is to send out a minuet.

GOV. REILY WITNESS BEFORE GRAND JURY IN PORTO RICO

Body Said to Have Gone Into His Trip to Washington and Other Matters Affecting Him.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, April 5.—The grand jury has not yet made its report on the hearings it held recently at which Gov. E. Mont Reily was a witness, but the report is expected to be given within a reasonable time.

The grand jury inquiry has been held with the usual secrecy of such proceedings, but it is understood to have gone into the Governor's recent trip to the United States with a commission and other matters concerning his administration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The administration of E. Mont Reily as Governor of Porto Rico was approved and the opposition to Gov. Reily attacked in communications received yesterday by the Senate from minority members of the Juncos, Porto Rico Assembly. The communication declared the fight against him was started by President Euchi of the House of Delegates and Barcelo of the Senate when they saw "their influence waning." The message was signed by Carlos Feition and Salvador Silvestrez, Socialist members of the Juncos Assembly.

MUSCLE SHOALS TO PENSACOLA RAILROAD CHARTER IS GRANTED

New Line Authorized by Florida Is Capitalized at $2,500,000.

By the Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 5.—A charter has been granted for operation in this State of a proposed railroad between Muscle Shoals, Ala., and Pensacola, Fla.

The enterprise, incorporated under the name of the Muscle Shoals, Birmingham & Pensacola Railroad Co., is capitalized at $2,500,000.

Mexican Repatriation to Cease.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—Wholesale repatriation of Mexicans from the United States and elsewhere must cease, according to Secretary of the Interior Calles, who declares the Government is spending too much money for such purposes. He intimated that many Mexicans were imposing on the Government by seeking financial aid when this was not absolutely necessary.

CHARGES HOUSE IS CONTROLLED BY ANTI-SALOON BODY

ASSAILS IT FOR NOT FILING EXPENSE LISTS

Republican's Statement Is Listened To by Wayne Wheeler, Who Issues Reply, and Brings On Debate

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Demand for investigation by the Department of Justice of charges that the Anti-Saloon League of America had failed to report campaign expenditures as required under the corrupt practices act was made in the House yesterday by Representative Tinkham, Republican, of Massachusetts.

Making the charges himself, Tinkham declared it would be "absolutely futile" to expect an investigation by Congress because of the "complete control of the House by the Anti-Saloon League and its abject obedience to the dictates of the league."

Tinkham charged specifically that the league had violated the corrupt practices act by not making returns from 1910, the year of the law's enactment, until 1920; by not giving the names and addresses of all persons receiving $10 or more in the returns filed by Wayne B. Wheeler, its general counsel, "under protest" in 1920, and by the nonreporting under the act of branches of the league in West Virginia, Maryland, Wisconsin, Colorado, Oregon and Iowa.

"Complete failure" also was charged by the Massachusetts House member "to file returns with the clerk of the House of numerous other State branches of the league which received or disbursed money in connection with the congressional election in 1920, notably the states of New York, Pennsylvania and Minnesota."

Alleges "Many Failures."

"The records of the clerk of the House disclose a failure of the league and its subsidiaries to obey Federal statutes," Tinkham declared. "Not only in one case, but in many."

He said he desired to "draw attention" to a leaflet recently issued by Parker Shields, superintendent of the Tennessee Anti-Saloon League, asking for contributions, which, he said, contained this statement:

"A number of Congressmen who hold the balance of power and pile up majorities in Congress come from the southern and western states, where money for organization and educational purposes is scarce. They always had to have help from the national league."

"This would clearly show," the Massachusetts Representative declared, "that the Anti-Saloon League was systematically and liberally financing congressional campaigns and placing Congressmen of the United States under obligation to vote in Congress in accordance with its dictation."

Tinkham also read from the Tennessee leaflet that funds from that State also helped to provide for the maintenance of the national organization and for the Washington office, "under the very successful management of the honorable Wayne B. Wheeler, one of the greatest diplomats and attorneys in America." It also stated that "from this office needed legislation is initiated, a constant watch is kept on the actions of Congress and when opposition appears, danger signals are flashed to every state in the Union."

"End of Free Men."

Laying aside the publication, Tinkham said:

"It undoubtedly will be interesting to the country to learn that legislation is initiated in the national office of the Anti-Saloon League of America in Washington and not in the Congress of the United States. Think of it! To what degradation, to what debasement has Congress fallen that its shame thus can be heralded to the world. There, verily, is an end of free institutions and free men. Cowardice, indeed, has completed their destruction and dishonor."

The statements of Representative Tinkham brought on somewhat extended debate and a statement from Wheeler, who was seated in the gallery.

Immediately Tinkham concluded, Wheeler issued his statement declaring "Mr. Tinkham's attack on the Anti-Saloon League in committee and in the House is simply part of the wet propaganda for a beer and wine amendment."

He added that most of the State branches of the league had not filed campaign expenditure reports "because the law does not require State organizations interested in the election of Congressmen in only one State to file reports."

Representative Cooper, Republican, of Ohio, asked Tinkham if he did not know that the National Association opposed to prohibition had been spending large sums to bring about a modification of the Volstead law and trying to defeat Representatives standing by it.

"The representative of only the Anti-Saloon League appeared before the committee," said Tinkham, "and I have no knowledge as to what organizations are operating. But all, whether for or against the law, should be required to report their expenditures."

Points to Wheeler in Gallery.

Pointing to Wheeler in the gallery, and calling him by name, Representative Hill, Republican, of Maryland, asked Tinkham:

"Do you think it proper for a man who acts as treasurer of the league in its efforts to elect Congressmen should also be its legislative agent in appearing before Congress for favors?

Representatives Cramton, Republican, Michigan, and Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, took issue with Tinkham, Cramton describing him as "a jewel of inconsistency."

"I am not concerned with Wayne B. Wheeler or the Anti-Saloon League," said Cramton, "but with the thousands in this country who ask and stand for law and order and the Eighteenth Amendment."

Barkley said that the "cross-examination of Mr. Wheeler by Representative Tinkham before the Appropriations Committee was conducted as if he "was examining a crapshooter."

BOND ISSUE CAMPAIGN HALTS WHILE COMMITTEE SEEKS HEAD OF "A DESIRED CALIBER"

Meeting Will Be Held Tomorrow, to Determine Whether to Await Return to City of Man Agreed Upon or Choose Another.

A LAPSE of two weeks since their appointment has prompted an inquiry by the Post-Dispatch among members of a nominating committee as to what progress has been made toward obtaining a chairman for the General Council on Civic Needs, an organization of 200 men and women, who are expected to conduct a bond campaign to supply the city's lacks.

L. Wade Childress, chairman of the committee, replied that the committee had not yet gained the consent of a man of desired caliber to head the movement. He said that the committee had determined upon such a man and had been awaiting his expected return to the city on April 1. Childress said he learned yesterday, however, that the nominee has postponed his return until April 15. Consequently, he said, he had called a meeting of the committee for tomorrow to determine whether to await the return of the original choice or to seek service among other men whom the committee regards as eligible.

"Personally, I am unwilling to report the name of any man not capable of uniting all the elements necessary to the success of any movement," Childress said. "Such men are very hard to find. The service will require virtually total-time attention."

"Proceeding Carefully," Says Hidden

Edward Hidden, another member of the committee, said that the committee was proceeding slowly upon the theory that the organization, which will consist of a chairman, four sectional vice chairmen, a chairman for a Financial Committee, a secretary and a publicity man, must be very carefully picked. "In my opinion," Hidden said, "the committee has made progress toward the formation of an organization which will command the confidence of the public and will be able to successfully conduct whatever may be undertaken."

C. F. G. Meyer, president of the Meyer Bros. Drug Co., said likewise that when the committee reported it would have an administrative personnel, which would be efficient and of high standard, embracing every interest to be served. "I believe," Meyer said, "that if a bond issue is the remedy adopted, that a bond issue will be passed."

President Vesper of the Chamber of Commerce said that members of the council, while awaiting the Nominating Committee's report, were visiting civic organizations making sure that they will be unanimous and that their membership will be unanimous for a bond campaign.

The experience of the Nominating Committee that the right man is "hard to find," coincides with the experience of those officers of the Chamber of Commerce who organized four "civic needs" luncheons to determine whether an accurate recital of the predicament of the city with regard to public works would result in a demand for a bond issue to keep the city in stride with other cities.

Support of Big Business Men Desired

It was common opinion that a bond issue, to have greatest chance of success, must have the active, not mere passive, support of those men commonly referred to as "big business men." Their money would be needed to finance a bond campaign and their personal participation in the campaign was thought necessary to enlist a public confidence that could be converted to votes at the polls.

Personal interviews found these men acquiescent to a bond issue, but unready to pledge the degree of individual service sought. Some were expecting to be absent from the city; others cited the press of their individual cares. The inability of Festus J. Wade to serve as chairman of a committee to obtain funds for the campaign raised some doubt that the money would be forthcoming in the sum thought necessary for a thorough campaign. It was clear that anything short of a thorough campaign might result in failure and failure could not be tolerated. A defeated bond issue, it was felt, would be worse than none attempted.

It is known that, although the expressed reason for the declination of John G. Lonsdale to head the movement was business arrangements previously made, Lonsdale would have sacrificed those arrangements had he felt certain that he could count on the active co-operation of "big business men." He did not decline service for 10 days after his nomination, a time sufficient for him to determine to his own satisfaction the character and extent of support that would be accorded him.

GERMANY AFTER U. S. MONEY

Stocks to Be Offered in U. S. for First Time Since War.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—For the first time since the close of the war an investment trust has been formed in Germany to float securities of German corporations in this country, it was announced here last night.

The first offering of these bonds, secured by industrial collateral, will be made immediately through the investment house of Robert C. Mayer & Co. The total issue is 96,000,000 marks with a coupon rate of 5 per cent.

Britain Frees Last of Sinn Feiners.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—Fourteen Sinn Feiners were released from English prisons during the week end, on orders from the Government. They are believed to be the last of such prisoners convicted of offenses in this country. It is reported their release was pursuant to a Government decision to grant amnesty to all Sinn Fein prisoners in England.

ULSTER PREMIER SAYS PEACE DEPENDS ON REPUBLICANS

Sir James Craig Tells Parliament London Agreement Was Pacifying Effort.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, April 5.—Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, speaking in the Northern Parliament yesterday, said the agreement signed in London last week, was an earnest attempt to bring peace to the whole of Ireland. He said the agreement would sort out the sheep from the goats and that if the activities of the Irish republican army ceased there would be peace in Ulster.

Sir James was hopeful that within a year the Catholics would take their seats in the Northern Parliament and assist in solving its problems. He said he himself would not lead Ulster into the free state Parliament, because his whole political career forbade such a move.

Several members of the Parliament criticized the agreement, but there was no attempt to force a division on the subject.

Woman Candidate for Seat in House.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 5.—Miss Annie Webb Blanton, State Superintendent of Education, has announced she will be a candidate for Congress to fill the unexpired term of the late Lucian W. Parrish. She will also be a candidate for the next regular term from that congressional district. Miss Blanton's statement was made after being informed that Mrs. Lucian C. Parish would not be a candidate for the place.

Democratic Meeting April 14.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 5.—Chairman Yancy of the Democratic State Committee has called a meeting of the committee for Columbia Thursday, April 14, the occasion being the annual Jefferson birthday banquet of Democrats of Central Missouri. Chairman Yancey believes he will be able to bring National Chairman Hull to Columbia on that occasion. George H. Moore of St. Louis will be toastmaster.

New Party in 1924?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE English have forced us into partnership with themselves and their Japanese allies under duress—a veiled but not very heavily veiled threat of war in the Pacific if we refused to join them. They made us surrender our right to fortify and defend our Pacific outposts—the Philippines, Guam, Hawaii and the Aleutian Islands. They have made us strip ourselves of adequate naval defense. They have made us guarantee their Asian world war land grabs against recovery by the victims, China and Russia.

It is the most astounding, unbelievable and cowardly surrender of national sovereignty ever even proposed in this country. It is a thousand times worse than the League of Nations proposed by the Versailles peace treaty, because it lacks even the pretense of idealistic aims.

Under the Washington treaties the American people get nothing, yield everything. Our foreign trade and finance groups get an agreed 10-year period in which to exploit China and Asiatic Russia, in partnership with like groups in England and Japan. This is the sum of the meaning of the Washington treaties.

Hiram Johnson of California yielded at the last—a politician afraid of the bankers and their press. Borah yielded to the noisy but not numerous peace-at-any-price group, to his belated pride of authorship in the Washington conference, and to his cautious fear of the banker-industrial groups' political power.

Only La Follette of Wisconsin, Reed of Missouri and France of Maryland went through. What happens to these three Senators, all candidates for re-election in November, will tell us whether the American people are yet aware of the real significance of the Washington treaties. They personify the major issue of the fall national elections, in all of its phases. Their re-election will be the first step toward rescuing our Government from control by alien influences. Their defeat will mean the creation of a powerful new party—not a third party but a first party—the American party—to afford the people a means of escape from betrayal by both of the old parties—in the elections of 1924.

FRANK PUTNAM.

Plain-Clothes Police Stuff.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WISH to commend the Post-Dispatch on your editorial on the way the police handled themselves in the Cherry case. I wish the Post-Dispatch would press this to the limit. I have had an experience myself. I was stopped for not having my tail light lit, I was cornered into the gutter, was told to get out and was searched and examined as though I was a criminal, without seeing a star or ever finding out whether they were officers or not.

Capitalizing Savings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IF I correctly understand the argument of Col. Perkins in his testimony on the valuation of the United Railways of St. Louis, he proposes that you include as a tangible asset the capitalized value of the savings accruing through the purchase of Keokuk power. Should you do so or pay attention to such nonsense, would it not be just as plausible for Col. Perkins to capitalize every item of savings accomplished, until no telling what the limit might be? If we pay car fare on a basis of capitalized savings, why not just go ahead and raise the fare to 10, 15, 20 cents, or whatever the U. R. wants?

Savings from efficient management and advantageous purchases should be reflected in decreased fares, but according to Col. Perkins' reasoning, when the company saves a dollar the fares should be raised.

When will this money-grabbing, inefficient organization ever get down to brass tacks and give St. Louis the service it needs at a charge commensurate with the service performed?

G. C. POTTER.

Will Help North St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHY does not the city build a connection from King's highway boulevard to North King's highway and finish that beautiful motor drive? I am sure all property owners are in favor of making this street, as it will beautify North St. Louis.

B.

Deflating Building Industry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICED in the papers a few days ago that the Real Estate Exchange had adopted a resolution indorsing the cutting of carpenters' wages from $1.25 to $1 an hour. Would it not be more convincing and more honorable for the Real Estate Exchange to cut their commissions, which were raised from 30 to 50 per cent in 1919, when their compensation had already been substantially increased by the advanced rents and the sky-high prices which realty was bringing.

Probably the carpenters' wages are too high. But there are other costs in the building industry besides wages that ought to be deflated, and specific recommendations to that effect, I submit, are in order from the Chamber of Commerce.

PROPERTY OWNER.

THE KANSAS CITY SMASH.

Official lawlessness got a knockout smash in Kansas City yesterday. Frank H. Cromwell, running for Mayor on the issue of lawless and brutal police methods represented by his opponent, Matthew A. Foster, Gov. Hyde's police head, was elected by one of the largest majorities recorded in Kansas City elections.

The issue was clearly defined. It was accepted by Foster, who defended his direction of the police on the ground that his methods had "cleaned up" Kansas City. It was emphasized by Gov. Hyde, who personally entered into a bitter campaign in support of the candidacy of his police appointee and denounced Senator Reed, Frank Walsh and all who opposed Foster as defenders of corrupt bossism and of the criminal and vice elements in the city.

The issue was not law enforcement. The opponents of Foster declared themselves in favor of rigid enforcement of law; it was lawless and brutal methods in enforcing laws—wholesale raids and arrests without warrant, regardless of guilt or innocence; police brutality to persons under suspicion or arrest, holding accused persons incommunicado in violation of law, maltreatment of prisoners. The arrest of 50,000 persons in a population of 324,000 and instances of wanton killing and brutal treatment were cited in support of the charges of lawless and brutal methods and police oppression.

The defense of the Governor and his police head was in effect that the end justified the means; that if the police did overstep the bounds of right and law it was necessary to put down crime, vice and immorality; in short, that the police authorities were the custodians of the morals of Kansas City people and were justified in enforcing their standards and the laws and ordinances at any sacrifice of the legal rights of citizens.

The election was a salutary lesson on the attitude of the people with regard to police oppression and police bossism directed by an outside authority in Jefferson City. It was a rebuke of Gov. Hyde's Police Commissioners who attempted to rule Kansas City with a strong arm regardless of rights or laws. It was a rebuke of the Governor, who, contrary to the pledge of his party, deliberately retained control of the police of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph for the purpose of carrying out his own personal and political purposes. It condemned demagogic reform in which the police are used ruthlessly and unscrupulously to make political capital and build up a political machine.

There was another feature of the Kansas City campaign which reflects upon the character and methods and influence of the Kansas City press. Not only was the entire daily press against the Cromwell ticket, but, according to correspondents in Kansas City, the daily press, led by the Kansas City Star, practically suppressed the news of the Cromwell campaign. It ignored the views and the campaign utterances of the opposition to Foster. The vote was evidently a condemnation of unfairness on the part of the press and a repudiation of unfair journalism.

The warning of the Kansas City election applies to St. Louis. St. Louis has suffered with Kansas City from lawless and brutal methods of Gov. Hyde's police satraps. Victor Miller, Gov. Hyde's police head here, has set up a ruthless and reckless police bossism, which has combined energy with unscrupulous neglect of rights and law. He has grievously offended the people of St. Louis by assuming to be the superior guardian of their morals—save the mark—and by grossly slandering them to justify his lawless police methods. If the people of St. Louis could vote on the Hyde police issue the result in Kansas City would be as a gale to a tornado.

The fundamental issue is home rule and an end to arbitrary police control in Jefferson City. The people of the Missouri cities under the arbitrary domination of the Governor should join hands on this issue and put an end to gubernatorial police bossism forever. The Kansas City verdict is the signal for revolt.

WHO'S THE AUTOCRAT NOW?

The sole intelligence which has come from the White House concerning the peremptory and unexplained dismissal of the 32 controlling executives of the Government Bureau of Engraving and Printing is a letter addressed by the President's private secretary to John J. Deviny, one of the dismissed executives. This letter contains the noncommittal and evasive declaration that a statement "broadly" covering the whole incident "might" be made later at the White House.

There should be nothing conditional about a statement of explanation, and it should be not "broad" but specific. The discharged executives claim that the civil service law has been violated. Whether or not it has been violated in the letter, it has been grossly violated in the spirit. If a Government employe, or any other employe, has any rights, these rights have been invaded in the case of the Engraving Bureau dismissals. Suddenly and without warning to deprive men of their means of living, to necessitate the breaking up of homes and the severing of community connections without even one specific charge as to incompetence or misconduct, is coming pretty close to irresponsible absolutism.

The administration is already on the defensive. It claims no desire to "reflect upon the character of any Government employe," and regrets "insinuating publicity." It is already evident that if it had been the purpose of the President merely to increase the efficiency of the bureau he would have gone about it in a different way. If any fact is patent it is that he wanted to get rid of the men and have done with a miserable business. Such a purpose and such tactics carry the odium of spoils. While these dismissed men are waiting for a hearing or a satisfactory explanation it is not they who are on trial in the public estimation. It is the administration itself.

BETTER HOMES, BETTER LIVES.

St. Louis should not miss the significance of the demonstrations at the Odeon in celebration of Better Homes Week. The cause of better homes goes immeasurably deeper than the mere housewifely art of arranging furniture. It goes into the very roots of human welfare, happiness and the character of the rising generation.

The first essential of love of home and of the homely virtues that go with it is a physically attractive home. This does not necessarily mean a mansion filled with costly furniture, as the present exhibitions are partly designed to show. It does mean good taste in color and arrangement. The mere disposition of objects in a room may give it a soul or leave it a soulless conglomeration of furniture which, if not spurned, must be tolerated. It cannot be loved.

At a critical point in our social career, when the old-fashioned virtues which have supported our civilization are on the defensive, any influence which may enhance the attractiveness of the home should be eagerly welcomed by parents. The very fact that the appeal of a cozy home or room is universal indicates that the ability, either latent or active, to produce the best effect with given material is also universal.

SAINTS ABOVE THE LAW.

In view of the sanctimonious solicitude for law observance on the part of others exhibited by the Anti-Saloon League, we beg to inquire why this organization has itself set such an unfortunate example in its persistent violations of the corrupt practices acts of the states and of the Federal Government?

For a great many years the Missouri statutes have required, under penalty of fine or imprisonment or both, that where any two or more persons are associated to raise and disburse money to further or defeat any candidate or measure, they shall have a treasurer who alone shall receive and disburse such money and that, within 30 days after any election in which such money is used, a statement of receipts and expenditures shall be filed with the authorities.

The Anti-Saloon League has been taking up Sunday school and church collections and disbursing this money in Missouri and in other states in behalf of and against candidates for years. According to a recent meager but confidential report of Bro. Shupp to the St. Louis Anti-Saloon League organization, something like $30,000 was collected and spent during 1921, and $40,000 was asked for as the 1922 budget to aid in the election of dry Congressmen next November. Never since it began to operate in this State, however, has it permitted publication of any facts concerning its finances, who the contributors are or where the money goes. The nearest it has come to compliance with any corrupt practices law was an involuntary report made under protest to the clerk of the House of Representatives last year showing that it had spent $500 for work in one congressional district in Minnesota, in one district in Maryland and in two in New York.

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
Emma Goldman
Woke from dreaming,
Sure enough;
Think of breaking
Into Heaven
Just to find
It is a bluff!
There beyond
The starry portals,
Past the Camouflaging skies,
Only to be Met with laughter
And derisionary
Cries!

Here we had
The rosy promise
Of a good
And perfect state;
Capital
Was dead as Pompey;
All the rich
Had pulled their freight.
Nobles, dukes
And upper crusters
Flew so fast
They seldom lit,
And the good
Old common people
Were indisputably
It.

This had been
The dream and passion
Of reform
Since man was born;
Here was Plato's
Blest republic;
Here was Plenty's
Golden horn.
Here the communists
Disported
Safe from Stingarees
And sharks,
And we had
The perfect system
Of the deadly
Certain Marx.

Very well,
My little girlie;
Here came Emma Shouting joy—
She and Alexander
Berkman,
Like a little Girl and boy,
Clapping hands
And whoopteedoing,
Prone to kiss
The very ground
For that what
The old world needed
Had at last
Been truly found.

Sweet Luella?
Not as Emma Sees it now;
All the calm
Of understanding
Marks her
Disillusioned brow.
Just a mirage
Of the ages.
What though men
Have loved it well,
Emma found
To be a vision
Merely camouflaging
Hell.

"That schoolgirl complexion" is artificial too.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Dear Just a Minute: Among the rarae avides, which being interpreted in good old Anglo-Saxon meaneth rare birds, are a new species of bees just discovered either by an editorial writer or an incredibly bold proof reader on the esteemed Globe-Democrat, from whose editorial columns of April 2 is taken the following interesting sentence, which, if true, proclaims a scientific discovery of the first magnitude:

Far be it from the writer to accuse our esteemed contemporary of nature-faking, but those bees must indeed be a marvelous freak of nature if they have outgrown their apiary or bee-house to take up new apartments in these days of high rents in the more capacious aviary or bird-house. Still, I wonder what the other birds in the G.-D.'s aviary must be thinking about every time they take a squint at their strange, apiary companions. Guess they feel that "inevitable eruption" coming on.

May I not venture to conclude that when bees get so big that they have to be caged up in a bird house or aviary, look out for the United States joining the League of Nations with the enthusiastic approval of President Harding. In the meantime, pax vobiscum.

The Republicans were easily defeated in Kansas City, as they will be easily defeated in the congressional elections of next fall. The Republicans are about as good people as we have, and they try their best to do something for us; but they have not been able to make times good. That cooks their goose with us. We want good times, and no party not able to give them to us may reign very long. We are not quite fair about this sort of thing, but we are thoroughly human. The Italians have a saying which admirably expresses the idea: "It is raining. Damn the government!" The weather is no better now than it was under the Democrats. That settled the Republicans in Kansas City. You may imagine at this time that it was a sort of personal contest between our Jamie and Guvie Hyde, but you will know better when the returns come in from all over the country next fall. You cannot cast a Republican these days in even so slight a role as outside shouts.

Ike Whizzlesnoot, the guy who knows all about women, says:

Many a married man is at home chewing cold-storage food while friend wifey is out—chewing the rag.

A certain old adage runs to the effect "that curiosity killed a cat." Which may be true. But just because a woman has been called a cat doesn't necessarily imply that such a thing as curiosity could kill her. In fact, she thrives on it.

The least important part of a wedding is the bridegroom. All he is supposed to do is to furnish some woman a reason for marching up to the altar, attired in regal finery, for the edification of her friends.

RESTORATION OF EUROPE.

From World's Work.

IF Europe will curb its crazy ambitions, America has both the will and the money to help her restore her devastated home. There is neither pleasure nor profit for us in living next door to a madhouse. But neither is there anything to be gained by lending the inmates the money to buy themselves knives with which to cut one another's throats. If she wants it to pay workmen wages for making goods to sell, that looks like good sense, and we can afford to give or lend and take our pay in good-will and improved business. But if she wants it to pay soldiers to fight all over Asia Minor for chimerical "spheres of influence," that looks like plain nonsense, and we had better keep our money in our pockets. America has two great stakes in Europe. One is the billions we have lent there. The other is the market for our surplus goods there. But neither the fear of losing the former nor the hope of regaining the latter should blind us (or Europe) to the truth that we should have a much larger stake there than either of these. That stake is peace. We can afford to mitigate debts, and we can afford to wait for markets, if, and only if, Europe becomes again an orderly community of nations, pursuing ideals that we can sympathize with and that do not threaten the world with endless turmoil and misery.

PORTO RICO AND GOV. REILY.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

AS might have been expected, President Harding has thrown all Porto Rico into turmoil by forcing E. Mont. Reily on a reluctant people. The deadlock on Reilly's appointment as Governor is only one phase of the trouble. In the local Legislature 42 out of 57 members are Reily's foes, members of the majority Unionist party, which he has refused to recognize in any way. The people are on one side. The Governor is on the other. And a determined effort will be made to precipitate a row in the Washington Congress over Reily's methods and Reily's record. The Harding preconvention manager in the Southwest, who is acting as a one-man power in a peacefully inclined island, with the pride and prejudices of Spaniards behind its political demonstrations, is an unfortunate illustration of our President's loyalty to friendship. Intimidation of the judiciary, removal of Judges contrary to the organic act, and the reckless pardoning of criminals are pertinent to the discussion. But merely being persona non grata in Porto Rico is a sufficient reason for Reily's removal. The United States wants no "satrapy" there. It wants the friendship of the islanders, their co-operation in its policies. President Harding has made a grave mistake in this matter. The sooner he reconsiders his position the better for Porto Rico and for the colonial policy of America. On the long payroll of the United States he can surely find another position for E. Mont Reily, where he can do very much less damage to the prestige of the United States.

THE RADIO IN MEDICAL SERVICE.

From the Asbury Park Evening Press.

ANYONE sick at sea may now have first-class medical service provided by the United States Government. It is the latest development of radio. An order was recently sent out by Surgeon-General Cummings to hospitals connected directly or indirectly with the Government service, saying: "Upon receipt of a request for medical advice you are directed to furnish promptly whatever advice seems indicated—calling upon your consulting staff, if necessary—couched in language intelligible to layman." The possibilities of such service, particularly in connection with the merchant marine, whose vessels seldom carry a competent physician, are obviously great. One can only deplore the extent to which privacy at sea is destroyed by recent radio extensions, but there are compensating benefits.

"ROSMERSHOLM" HAS ELOQUENT PRODUCTION

Mme. Borgny Hammer and Rolf Fjell Portray Rebecca West and Ulric Brendel.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

HENRIK IBSEN'S "Rosmersholm," a devastating assault upon so-called noble sentiments, was presented in English at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild last night, by Mme. Borgny Hammer, Rolf Fjell and their troupe of American actors. The production was distinguished by Mme. Hammer's dramatic force and truth in the role of Rebecca West, and Mr. Fjell's sardonic portrait of that ruffian philosopher and pothouse genius, Ulric Brendel.

This is a play in which a woman of free and fearless will undertakes to save a "good" man, and is herself destroyed by the infection of his deadly virtues. Rebecca West's ambition was no ignoble one—it was to take a part in the liberal and democratic movement which shook Europe in the 'seventies. Being a woman, she could, in that era, make her influence potent only indirectly, through the agency of some man.

The man whom she chose was Johannes Rosmer of Rosmersholm, descendant of a family which for generations had supplied the state with soldiers, officials and clergymen. Obtaining a footing in the household, Miss West soon became aware that Rosmer was smothered in a wretched marriage with a woman of religious bigotry. Obeying some such instinct as impels a man to drag a suffocating fellow-being from a damp-choked mine, Miss West set about rescuing Rosmer. Her vigorous will having attained supreme ascendency over the morbid personality of Mme. Rosmer, Miss West persuaded the childless wife that it was her duty to efface herself from her husband's life.

Wife Drowns Herself.

Now Mme. Rosmer was in thrall to two superstitions—the nobility of self-sacrifice and the sanctity of marriage as an institution dissoluble only by death. She might simply have taken her departure, or have obtained a divorce. Instead, as Miss West was far from anticipating, she threw herself into a millrace and was drowned.

Rosmer, relieved of his incubus and having not the slightest suspicion of how his freedom was achieved—for he thought his wife took her life in a moment of insanity—begins to expand and flourish. A clergyman, he renounces Christianity and resigns his pastorate. A member of the ruling caste, he adopts the principles of that radical journal, "The Beacon," edited by Peter Mortensgard. With fervent enthusiasm, he dedicates his life to the creation of an ever-widening circle of free and noble men. This "apostasy" causes him to break with his own social class, represented by that fanatic Tory, his brother-in-law, Rector Kroll.

Rebecca West has achieved her ambition. She holds Rosmersholm and its master in the hollow of her hand. Rosmer is launched on the career which she planned. But an unforseen factor has entered. She has fallen in love with the former pastor. This accident undermines and saps her will, until she finally arrives at the deplorable belief that she is being "ennobled" by the influence of Rosmer's character. For instance, the wholesome and natural passion which she felt for him has been elevated—or, rather, diseased—into a pallid sort of Platonic affection.

Rosmer Goes to Ruin.

Through a series of revelations, Rosmer becomes acquainted with Rebecca's strategies and the true cause of his wife's death. He collapses like a punctured bladder, for Rebecca's fatal error was that the man she sought to raise to greatness was made of sickly stuff. Not only does he surrender abjectly to Rector Kroll; he soons proves that his renunciation of religion was merely one of dogmas, not of moral principles. The Christian idea of expiation takes possession of his brain; he can atone his wife's sacrifice only by perishing as she did. His pitiful egotism demands that Rebecca also sacrifice herself; only thus can he be sure that he has really ennobled her. So both go into the millrace—the woman the saner to the last, for she dies for love of the man, not for an ethical convention.

It would be easy to point out that Mme. Hammer has no particular physical fitness for the part of Rebecca, and that her English is guttural. But we have suffered on the stage too many female cretins who happen accidentally to be handsome, not to be thankful for force and intelligence. One forgot the handicaps of the actress in the sincerity and fervor of her performance.

Fjell's Ulric Brendel.

There seems to be abroad a tradition that Ibsen can be heard only with a morose countenance and clenched teeth. This is despite the rich comedy of "Peer Gynt." Uncontrollable laughter burst forth last night when Rolf Fjell entered as that impudent ragamuffin, Brendel, with his rusty but scholarly frock coat, no shirt or collar, lamentable shoes tied with white strings, and a jaunty scarlet flower in his lapel. At his second entrance, in the last act, the debonair vagabond has lost his insouciance, for Rosmersholm has wrecked him also. He is "homesick for the great nothingness," and begs the loan of "a cast-off ideal or so." But Rosmer too is bankrupt.

The supporting actors may be more or less amateur, but they also maintain the accent of sincerity. The audience was dolorously small. "Rosmersholm" is to be repeated tomorrow afternoon and Saturday night. "The Ghosts" will be given tonight and Friday evening, and "The Master Builder" tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON STATUE IS UNVEILED AT TUSKEGEE

Spectators Use Everything From Mules to Special Cars to Attend Ceremonies.

By the Associated Press.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., April 5.—Transportation methods ranging from special cars to muleback were utilized to bring to Tuskegee today a steady stream of white people and negroes to attend the unveiling of a statue of Booker T. Washington, founder of Tuskegee Institute. Special cars brought parties from New York, Washington, Chicago, Atlanta and New Orleans.

The unveiling was set for the afternoon with Dr. Wallace Buttrick, president of the General Educational Board; Dr. George C. Chall of Chicago and Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, as speakers.

A letter from President Harding praising the work of Booker T. Washington was made public today. The President said:

"I think there will be little divergence from the opinion that Booker T. Washington was one of the most useful Americans of his time and that the work he inaugurated and so long directed is already demonstrating the wisdom of his attitude toward one of the great public questions of the nation. My own views on this subject are in no small part the result of my observation of Dr. Washington's work and its results.

"I have long felt that Booker T. Washington had visioned the right way to deal with national problems of our races, in a manner most likely to produce the desired effect from the standpoint of the entire nation and all elements of its people. I am glad of the occasion thus to signify my very high esteem for a great leader."

MRS. LOUIS F. SWIFT DIES

Wife of Packer Succumbs Just Before Husband's Return From Tour.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Mrs. Louis F. Swift, wife of the president of Swift & Co., died suddenly in her home on Lake Shore Drive early today. Death was caused by myocarditis, a form of heart disease.

Mrs. Swift had not been seriously ill. She had been motoring yesterday. She had spent the winter in California and had returned to Chicago two weeks ago. Swift returned to Chicago from Honolulu at 9 o'clock this morning, to find his wife dead. She had succumbed at 2:30 a. m. All the children were at the bedside when the end came. They are Alden B. Swift, Louis F. Swift Jr., William Swift and Mrs. Ida Mary Minotto. Mrs. Swift was 62 years old. She was born May 3, 1860, at Rolling Prairie, Ind. Her maiden name was Ida May Butler.

SYMPHONY AT BATON ROUGE, LA.

Two Concerts of St. Louis Orchestra Draw Ovations From Audiences.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 5.—Seldom have lovers of music in Baton Rouge had the opportunity to listen to such concerts as those which were given yesterday afternoon and last night by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Rudolph Ganz.

From the Wagnerian overture, "The Flying Dutchman," to the Tschaikowsky "Capriccio Italien," every number was vigorously applauded and the conductor and musicians received an ovation.

Mrs. Louis Charles Ruch of New York, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lee Meriwether, 5211 Washington boulevard, departed last evening for California and Honolulu, where she will spend several months.

WHAT'LL PRINCESS MARY DO WITH ALL HER GIFTS?

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 17.—The vast number and varied assortment of wedding presents to Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles displayed here caused many people to wonder what the newlyweds would do with the 66 jugs and bowls, 16 silver toast racks and 22 clocks included in the offerings.

The late King Edward, after his marriage, found himself the possessor of 1500 teapots of all types and descriptions and of more than 800 cruets. It is reported that some of these are still stored in London.

Only persons who had been presented at court or who could claim personal acquaintance with either Princess Mary or her husband were permitted to tender wedding gifts on the occasion of the recent royal wedding. Charitable and other public organizations and institutions were, of course, excepted.

Began Chiming at Once.

A classification of the gifts exhibited at St. James' Palace shows only 28 tea services were presented. Other items are 158 articles of jewelry, including bracelets, necklaces, pendants, tiaras, brooches, rings, caskets, fans and watches, a trayful of flawless, unset precious stones; 893 gifts made from precious metals, including 29 trays, 24 vases, 31 cups, 12 goblets, 18 inkstands, 25 statuettes, 14 card trays, nine cigarette cases, eight traveling cases and seven workboxes; 197 books and manuscripts, 22 candelabra, 17 umbrellas, 14 lamps and shades, 17 rugs, 22 sets of cutlery, eight wall brackets, 36 dinner services, 47 breakfast table services, 18 silver salvers, 70 pairs of gloves, 10 wedding cakes and seven hunting crops.

While correspondents invited to a private view were being shown about the staterooms where the presents were on display, the 22 gift clocks all began the chiming of 6 o'clock at almost the same instant—and the newspaper party was ushered out, as it had been invited to call "between 5 and 6 p. m."

MRS. NELLIE B. KAUFFMAN DIES

Request That Body Be Cremated Will Be Carried Out.

Mrs. Nellie B. Kauffman of 23 Kingsbury place, widow of John W. Kauffman, wealthy grain broker, died at her home today from an intestinal inflammation from which she had been suffering for three months. She was 72 years old.

In accordance with her specific request her body will be cremated and the ashes buried in the family lot at Bellefontaine Cemetery. Memorial services will be conducted at the home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, by the Rev. John W. Day, pastor of the Church of the Messiah. Mrs. Kauffman is survived by a son, Harold Kauffman, president of a brokerage firm, and two daughters, Mrs. Leslie Thompson and Mrs. Ellis Fischel.

Services Held for Noyes S. Payne.

The funeral of Noyes S. Payne, former manager of the Scott-Sullivan Paint Co., who died Monday, was held today from his residence, 425 Greely avenue, Webster Groves. Payne was 59 years old. Dr. A. E. Walters, who attended Payne, said that his death was due to an apparent weakening of the capillaries, which was in the nature of an ordinary cerebral hemorrhage.

Zionist Leader Received at Vatican.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 3.—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization, was received by Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary, at the Vatican Saturday. The Cardinal assured Dr. Weizmann that the Vatican was not opposed to the Jewish national home in Palestine, provided the interests of the non-Jewish communities were safeguarded and Jews did not receive a "privileged position" in the country.

Armstrong's Linoleum
for Every Floor in the House

Is your sun porch all it might be?

Your efforts to make your sun porch a pretty and inviting place to sit in will not amount to much until you have a floor that lends it color and brightness.

A linoleum floor will do this. A floor of Armstrong's Inset Tile Linoleum, properly laid, will transform any sun porch and give the furnishings a setting that will make your sun porch one of the most attractive rooms in your home.

In addition to tile linoleum patterns, you can choose from delicate Jaspés (two-tone effects) and rich plain colors.

Such floors are so bright, so quiet, so durable, so comfortable under foot, so easy to clean, and withal so inexpensive that to be without them is to be without the most modern of floors.

Perhaps your impressions of linoleum do not include the new Armstrong patterns nor the appearance of linoleum when laid as a permanent floor; that is, cemented down firmly over a layer of builders' deadening felt. Such a floor remains tight and solid, with no cracks or crevices.

We have a little booklet, "Decorative Linoleum Floors," containing 24 colorplates, showing Jaspés, carpet inlaids, parquetry inlaids, inset marble tiles, printed designs, etc. This booklet will be sent free on request. You can take it to a store and show the merchant exactly what you want to see. Any store will give you estimates of the cost of Armstrong's Linoleum floors put down in your home.

AMERICAN DESCRIBES CONDITIONS IN INDIA

Writer and Traveler Says in Towns and Cities White Man Is No Longer "Tin God."

By the Associated Press.

RANGOON, April 5.—Ralph E. Henderson, an American writer and traveler, has returned here after spending four months in visiting many places in India to study the political conditions. This is his third visit to the Orient. Summing up his impressions of the Indian situation he said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"The traveler must feel in his first hour ashore that the air is fairly crackling with a new element. In the towns and cities the white man is no longer a 'tin god' and even in the remote villages his divinity is fast slipping from him.

"I was in Calcutta a week before the Prince of Wales was due to land. At that time our taxi was caught in a traffic jam on one of the main thoroughfares and held for 15 minutes while the packed stream of carts, bullock drawn, horse drawn, buffalo drawn or man drawn, strained through the crowded street.

Prince Sees Deserted Streets.

"When the Prince landed at Calcutta, the streets were as deserted as those of a Ne wEngland town on an old Puritan Sabbath. Calcutta shops did no business. Mahatma Gandhi had so commanded.

"A few days later in Assam we were in Gauhati, the capital of the province. Government officials had just raided the home of a wealthy and influential citizens, found incriminating literature and made an arrest. There were rumors of a proposed assault upon the court where the case was being tried, but a company of British soldiers was marched into town to guard it.

"We were talking with two students in Cotton College, the Government college at Gauhati. The conversation was naturally upon the subject now uppermost in the minds of all Indians, the political situation and Gandhi. Non-co-operation they evidently approved. Gandhi they frankly admired—revered almost. Why? Because, they said, of his love for India, and his life of sternest asceticism and self-sacrifice.

"We traveled south, toward Madras. Everywhere we saw the uniform of the Gandhi 'volunteer,' the white cap and the coat of coarse homespun. Sometime ago these 'volunteer' bands were declared unlawful by the Government.

Curious Reaction of Order.

"An Indian member of the municipal Government of Delhi told us of the curious reaction to this order in a large town where his brother was a civil Judge. The day following the edict a procession of men in Gandhi uniform marched to the courthouse and demanded that, in accord with the law, they be arrested.

"The Judge, knowing that there was no provision for such a multitude of prisoners, was at his wit's end to know what to do. The volunteers clamored for arrest. The Judge declared that the uniforms constituted no offense to law, and ordered the police to confiscate the white caps and coats. This done, the procession withdrew to take counsel.

"The next day they returned with cloth badges around their arms, declaring themselves 'volunteers' in offense of law and demanding arrest. The Judge confiscated the cloth badges. They returned on the morrow with paper badges. These were stripped off and the farce petered out. Such wholesale defiance of law recalls Burke's words, 'You cannot indict a whole nation.'

Little More Than Fashion.

"The Gandhi uniform is now little more than a fashion. In Poona, the hot-season capital of Bombay presidency, I saw a street urchin seated on a buffalo and meditatively drumming his heels against the animal's ribs, wearing the illegal white cap and homespun.

"In a village near Madras one evening a group of villagers went past the bungalow singing. Our host translated for us the words of a strange, quavering song that came out of the darkness. It was a regular hymn of hate against the detested white men and had been taught the villagers, our host explained, by Gandhi proselytes. In a small town in the same province, two or three small boys spat at us from a discreet distance as we walked through the bazar.

"In these homes of superstition there is a widespread belief in Gandhi. With simple trust the villagers will tell you that Gandhi is not a man; he is a god. He has four arms, four legs, two heads. The Government tried to kill him. They put him through a meat chopper, but he came out sound and well. It is no wonder that they shout 'Victory to Mahatma Gandhi,' and look forward to blissful times."

HOT SPRINGS FOLLOW SHOCKS

Widespread Damage in Serbia Since March 23.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, April 5.—Intermittent earth shocks, which began March 23, are continuing in the northern part of Serbia, but with decreasing intensity.

No casualties have been reported. There was widespread damage in the Lazarevatz district. A number of hot springs have started up in the fissures caused by shocks.

SAFETY COUNCIL MEETING

Several prominent St. Louisans, members of the St. Louis Safety Council, and also members of important committees of the National Safety Council, will leave St. Louis today to attend the quarterly conference of local council secretaries, public safety officers and committee officers, which is to be held in Detroit, Mich., from April 8 to 10.

Carl L. Smith, secretary and general manager of the St. Louis Safety Council, will lead the delegation. Others expected to go are C. Howard Stewart, chairman of the Public Utilities Committee; W. L. Patterson, public safety engineer and member of the Traffic Committee of the National Safety Council; Charles M. Talbert, president of the local council and chairman of the Standardization Committee of the national council, and Arthur T. Morey, former president of the National Safety Council.

Bran Will Free Your Entire Family from Constipation!

EIGHT MILLION PEOPLE were admitted to the hospitals of America last year. Nine-tenths of the sickness can be traced to constipation! If every man, woman and child would eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, each day, nine-tenths of all sickness would be eliminated!

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is not a "remedy." It is nature's health food. Bran acts as a sweeper, at the same time cleansing and purifying without irritation or discomfort! Results are astounding!

Physicians indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it corrects constipation as a food—not as a "remedy"! Your physician will tell you that the desirable way to relieve constipation is through food. We guarantee Kellogg's Bran will relieve constipation permanently if at least two tablespoonfuls are eaten regularly. Chronic cases should use as much more as necessary.

When Kellogg's Bran is eaten regularly it will also clear up a pimply complexion and sweeten the breath.

And, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is deliciously good! Kellogg's has an appetizing nut-like flavor, is crisp and adds zest to any food with which it is eaten. Or, it's just fine to eat as a cereal! Or sprinkle it over your favorite cereal! Kellogg's Bran is used in muffins, raisin bread, macaroons, pancakes and in a hundred other palate-tickling ways—and all the time building health!

All-Wool Blue Serge Suits
For Confirmation!
For Graduation!
For Dress Wear!
All Sizes 5 to 17 Years
$5
Worth Fully Double

Mothers! Here is a bargain that sets a new record in value giving! Not since before 1914 have we been able to sell all-wool Blue Serge Suits at a price as low as this. But don't judge them by the price alone—for each garment represents a quality that is of a decidedly high grade. Guaranteed to be pure worsted all-wool serge and of fast color navy blue. See them just as soon as you can, for, notwithstanding the immense quantity of 1500 Suits, we are certain that not a single garment will remain when the store closes Saturday evening.

Made of guaranteed all-wool serge in fast blue shades. Coats are fashioned with full belts, inverted pleat backs and with yokes. Lined with especially durable material. All are cut large and roomy. Knickers are cut full, are lined throughout and come with hip and watch pockets. All sizes, 5 to 17 years.

These very garments could be sold at wholesale for more than $5, and to be sure that they will not be bought by dealers, not more than three Suits will be sold to one customer.

Boys' $13.50 All-Wool Blue Serge Suits— $9.75
Boys' $18.50 All-Wool Blue Serge Suits— $12.50

ONE OF MEININGER'S "CASH ITEMS" TRACED

A bankruptcy petition filed recently in New York City by Calvin Tichenor, former St. Louisan, disclosed the disposition of $26,503 of the closed Night and Day Bank's money which up to the present time had been identified only by "cash items" which A. O. Meininger, indicted cashier, had placed in the bank after withdrawing funds. Meininger's "cash items" account reached about $300,000 and represented money which he withdrew from the bank without security.

The discovery of the Tichenor indebtedness will avail the bank little, however, as his bankruptcy schedule lists liabilities at $201,491, with no assets.

Interested in Truck Firm.

Tichenor was interested in the All-Steel Truck Co. here about two years ago and prior to that was in the automobile business in Macon, Mo. It is not known when the loans were made to him by Meininger.

Tichenor's bankruptcy schedule lists $19,003 as due to the Night and Day Bank and $7500 as due to A. O. Meininger. According to a former employe of the bank there was no evidence of Tichenor's indebtedness on the day the bank closed.

Meininger was considerably interested in automobile concerns, it was learned from his accounts, and he advanced a total of $116,513 to the Southern Motor Co. and $56,288 to the Midwest Tire and Rubber Co. without security.

No Record of Transaction.

Meininger's attorney, W. R. Gilbert, said that he had no record of the alleged Tichenor transactions. Meininger could not be reached for a statement.

BOY SLAIN WITH AX, 5 OTHERS ATTACKED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CONCORDIA, Kan., April 5.—One person is dead and five others wounded following an attack by an ax murderer late last night on the family of L. J. Tremblay, a farmer living seven miles south of Clyde. Theodore Tremblay, 18 years old, was killed. Those injured are: L. J. Tremblay, the father; Francis Tremblay, 14; Albert Tremblay, 12; Alfonse Tremblay, 12; Cleo Tremblay, 8.

Neighbors, attracted to the Tremblay home by flames from the burning house and barn which the murderer apparently had set afire, discovered the tragedy and rescued the injured from the blaze. The body of Theodore Tremblay was found in the barn where, it is believed, the young man had gone to attend a sick horse.

The father was found on the porch of the burning home, his head crushed and his feet bound with wire. He recovered consciousness sufficiently early today to declare he had no idea why or by whom the crime was committed. It is believed he will recover.

The bodies of the four younger sons were found inside the house. The head of each had been crushed. The youngest, Cleo, will recover, it is believed. The others are in a dangerous condition.

The only member of the family to escape the attack was a daughter, who was spending the night at the home of a neighbor.

19 CEMENT FIRMS, 44 INDIVIDUALS ON TRIAL

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureal of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Trial of the 44 individuals and 19 corporations alleged to have formed the "cement trust" by banding together in the Cement Manufacturers' Protective Association, began yesterday in the Federal Court before Judge Knox, and is expected to consume from six to eight weeks.

The courtroom was packed with lawyers, parties at interest and a special panel of jurors, from which 11 had been tentatively selected at adjournment, although neither side had exercised its right to three peremptory challenges.

Countrywide interest attaches to this case, which grew out of the Lockwood Committee's activities under Samuel Untermyer, since its result probably will determine the legality of many trade organizations in all parts of the United States.

The defendants contend that they associated under a modification of the so-called Eddy open price competition plan, but in exchanges of trade statistics and information thus brought about did not violate the Sherman antitrust law, or otherwise conspire to fix prices, as alleged in the indictments. Although the Eddy plan itself has been held to be illegal by the Supreme Court, as modified by their association and scores of old similar trade bodies, it avoided the objectionable features, it is contended.

It is charged by the Government that the defendants monopolized the manufacture of Portland cement, of which they made 90 per cent of the country's total, and that the alleged illegal combination existed from Aug. 10, 1918, to the date of their indictment in August, 1921. Methods of selling, shipping and controlling the market are made the subject of other counts in the indictments.

The corporations on trial are the Atlas Portland Cement Co., Bath Portland Cement Co., Copley Cement Manufacturing Co., Dexter Portland Cement Co., Hercules Cement Corporation, Lehigh Portland Cement Co., Nazareth Cement Co., Penn-Allen Cement Co., Pennsylvania Cement Co., Phoenix Portland Cement Co., all of Pennsylvania; the Allentown Portland Cement Co., Alpha Portland Cement Co., Edison Portland Cement Co., and Vulcanite Portland Cement Co., all of New Jersey; the Giant Portland Cement Co. and Glens Falls Portland Cement Co., both of Delaware; the Knickerbocker Portland Cement Co. and Lawrence Cement Co., both of New York, and the Security Cement and Lime Co., of West Virginia.

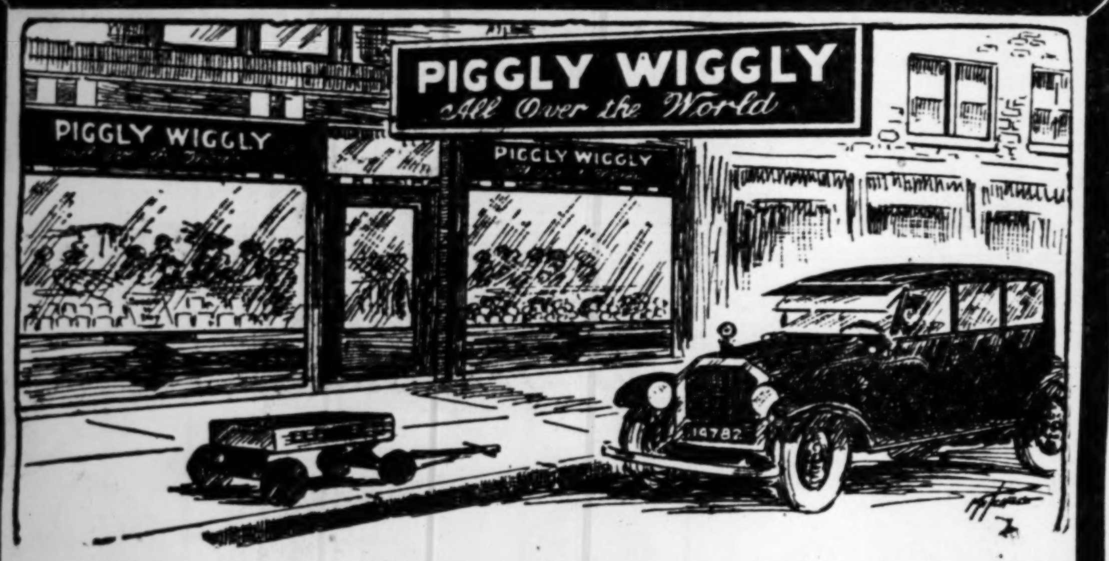
HOLDEN, Mo., April 5.—The Rev. Edward James was elected Mayor of Holden yesterday by a vote of 426 to 270.



Where Little Red Wagon Meets Limousine

In front of any PIGGLY WIGGLY Store at the busy hour you'll find them—the little red wagon and the big shiny limousine, each waiting to carry home what its mistress has selected at her leisure and paid for in cash. At PIGGLY WIGGLY there is no "Class," there is no difference. Each customer helps herself to what she wants free from suggestion or persuasion.

One of the reasons for PIGGLY WIGGLY'S popularity is its democracy and freedom from clerk domination, each customer is his or her own boss. On this basis PIGGLY WIGGLY has thrived and grown; on this basis it will continue to thrive and grow, for it recognizes that folks are just folks and always will be.

News of New Books and Those Who Write Them

"Best Short Stories of 1921" Not Up to Quality of Previous Seasons — Harry Sydnor Harrison, in "Saint Teresa," Gives as His First Novel in Several Years.

By Otto Heller.

"THE BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1921 AND THE YEARBOOK OF THE AMERICAN SHORT STORY," Edited by Edward J. O'Brien. (Small, Maynard & Company.)

NOBODY can grope year after year through the inundation from Grub Street that swamps the magazines, without losing his clue now and then and missing the path of best judgment. Mr. O'Brien, however, does not appear to realize the stultifying danger to his service. He plans, on the contrary, to extend its scope and, beginning next year, to present in a series of volumes parallel to this his annual study of the short fiction of England.

The present collection is very heterogeneous in substance and style, and representative in that regard of the existing national bewilderment of tastes and ideals. Mr. O'Brien correctly argues that through the interaction of the various temporary pressures upon our keen but nervous civilization a new chaos has been set up in many creative minds; and rightly takes a goodly measure of resultant literary confusion for granted. An anthology of American literature of today, in any type, would have to be a mosaic of sorts. Nevertheless, its standards of quality must not become mixed, lest the result be patchwork.

Mr. O'Brien professes two tests in his qualitative analysis of a short story; both are capitally relevant to any critical assay in literature. For the short story they are put into specific formulae by Mr. O'Brien. He says that the first test of a short story is how vitally compelling the writer makes his selected facts or incidents. This test may be conveniently called the test of substance. "But a second test is necessary if the story is to take rank above other stories. The true artist will seek to shape this living substance into the most beautiful and satisfying form, by skillful selection and arrangement of his materials, and by the most direct and appealing presentation of it in portrayal and characterization." This is the formal test.

The theoretic soundness of these maxims will not be gainsaid. But the editor has again failed, as he had in previous volumes, to harmonize the practice with the theory. Again, his judgment erred rather conspicuously, not alone in omission, which is not at all to be wondered at in the face of the enterprise, but also, and much less forgivably, in commission. A case in point is the inclusion of "Darkness," by that indefatigable polygrapher, Irvin S. Cobb. The story is trashy, and sure to "flunk" either test, as are at least three or four of its companions in the volume. That, on the other hand, most of the 20 selections belong to a higher order and, perhaps in their majority, exemplify the best work done in the period covered, sufficiently justifies the book.

• • •

Ellen Glasgow's "The Past" runs a close second to "Darkness" for our privately tendered booby prize. What a far cry from these mediocrities to the quality of Waldo Frank's "Under the Dome"! Zangwill at his best occurs as the nearest congener of this faithful portrait of a soul condemned to lifelong confinement at hard labor in the Ghetto. However, it is most encouraging that from all the grating mirth and painless tragedy of which the day's short fiction is compounded, some applause is spared for artistic reticence dealing with the dun and dreary sorrow of every day; and that in that land of perpetual, if mostly pinchbeck, sunshine to which American romance is exiled, a story is permitted to fade out this way: "They walk, a man and a woman, down the steep street to work. A child between them, holding the hand of a man. They are gray, they are sullen. They are caught up in the sullen strife of their relentless life. There is no let to them. Time is a barren field with no horizon."

• • •

It is the "Yearbook" appended to the volume that makes it virtually indispensable to the student of the "Americanissimo" of all literary genera. It covers the period from October, 1920-September, '21, and is composed of a number of lists that amount in the aggregate to a complete survey of the better and best short fiction published in "English language" magazines and some of the literature upon it. Which, on the second count, makes the volume amply worth while.

LADIES OF THE MYSTERIES.

"THE CRIMSON BLOTTER," by Isabel Ostrander. (Robert McBride Co.)

"THE MYSTERY GIRL," by Carolyn Wells. (J. B. Lippincott Co.)

DEEPER and deeper the ladies are breaking into another section of the happy hunting grounds of literary salesmanship; now they are lustily poaching on the preserves of the estimable Octavus Roy Cohen and J. S. Fletcher. And why shouldn't they have the ability to beat their masculine models to the game? Their managerial skill in the indispensable gunplay is at least up to par, and in designing effective modes of assassination both in spring and fall styles, they are superior to the rival sex. In the first and more commonplace of the two books, the work of a comparative novice, a philanthropist was murdered by means of a tiny sword of bronze belonging to a piece of sculpture. A stranger thing happens in the second, the product of an authoress seasoned in literary crime. Here the president-elect of Corinth University, definitely on suicide bent, executed himself ingeniously by stabbing himself behind the ear with a sharply pointed icicle, which melted, of course, greatly aggravating thereby the difficulties of detection. That is, until Fibsy McGuire came along. "Fibsy," rightly Terence, was a red-headed boy, apprenticed to Fleming Stone, the detective, and in compliance with mystery logic much shrewder and more resourceful than the master. Fibsy found in the president's library a copy of Martial, freshly blood-marked on Book IV, Epigram 18: "On a Youth Killed by the fall of a piece of ice." "Aha," said Fibsy. Not knowing Latin, he took a dictionary, how simple! and rendered the epigram into the mother tongue. With wits sharpened by the unwonted Latin exercise, Fibsy found corroboration of his scientific conjecture: in the chain of icicles that fringed the window sash there was a missing link!

The attractive young "Miss Mystery" is brought to Corinth either from New York or from Indianapolis and the other people tangled up in the story are equally far-fetched.

• • •

"THE CRIMSON BLOTTER" depends for its excitement on a three-legged race in slyness; between, on the one hand, or leg, the two sleuths, professional and amateur, on the other leg the chief suspect and his bosom associate, and on the third the criminal pair, consisting of a miscreant lawyer and a terrible though lovely deceptress appropriately named Flora Jaffray. Sergt. McNulty in this story is the stereotyped serial bloodhound with the infallible scent and science of combination. After reading this book, we feel much like Mr. Charles Moberley, alumnus of Harnell University, who zealously essayed to kill his uncle, but failing in the attempt became eventually very thick with the great detective. That is to say, we'd hate to commit a crime and leave traces for Sergt. McNulty to find. Not after what he accomplished without a clew.

Our thanks are due, as a member of the professional class, to the renowned Carolyn Wells, for the social rehabilitation of the college don. Prof. John Waring of the department of English in Corinth University (though he lectures on Egyptology and specializes in foreign languages), has set a new and in our estimation altogether fitting style and standard of living, by "batching" it in a palace with a large and brilliant retinue of housekeepers, Japanese servants, chauffeurs and other impertinences of luxurious living. This adds to the novel a certain—shall we say realistic?—touch for readers of the academic class.

"SAINT TERESA," by Henry Sydnor Harrison. (Houghton-Mifflin Co.)

THE author of "Queed," "V. V.'s Eyes" and "Angela's Business" here offers his first novel in several years. For its theme, he has gone back to the munitions controversy, first American reaction of the European war.

MUNITIONS CONTROVERSY THEME OF HIS FIRST NOVEL IN SEVERAL YEARS

HENRY SYDNOR HARRISON.

Teresa De Silver, ironically canonized because of her pose of disdainful asceticism, is young, slender and clear-skinned, wears a cowl-like black dress and a black cap beneath which her hair stands in puffs over her ears, and affects enormous glasses framed on a heavy cross-bar; and she smokes cigarettes in a long spiral holder with a loop in the middle. If she has any attractive quality or any agreeable propensity, the author conceals it.

Coming into the control of a steel company, Teresa orders the manufacture of shells, for sale to the Allied Governments, discontinued. The ethics of the munitions question, and the motive of this particular person in cutting off a small part of the munitions supply, are discussed through most of the book. The reader is finally willing to take the author's assurance that Teresa is not pro-German, but a sincere pacifist.

Stockholders chafe at the loss of profits, and Dean Masury, newly installed efficiency expert, plans to buy a missing block of the company's stock, and line up the others into a majority which shall overturn Teresa's control. Teresa learns of this plan, but keeps Masury in her employ, and frustrates his eventual coup.

It now becomes time to develop the love interest, if the author is ever going to, and no one will deny that this part of the story gets a novel handling. Perhaps the reviewer should not reveal too much of what is proclaimed by the publishers as a "magnificent climax"; but the chief difference between the interview of Masury and Teresa and the balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet" is that Juliet did not stab and bite Romeo, and that Romeo did not slug and choke Juliet and tear her dress to tatters.

After recovering from his sanguinary and disfiguring tryst, Masury leaves for the comparative calm and safety of the west front, in France. The author thus gives him a sporting chance to get himself into the major casualty list, and to escape having to return and marry the belligerent pacifist, Teresa. Perhaps a sequel will indicate which of these two fates overtook the hapless efficiency expert.

Lucy, friend of Teresa, has a pleasing personality, and the reader hopes from time to time that she may prove not to be bound to her one-time husband, and that she may marry Masury and let Teresa continue in the role of "The Woman Who Hates Love." George, Masury's roommate, is "a pillar in a dissenting church." Dissenting from what? This is America, not England.

In the Literary Letter Box

OUR CONTRIBUTION BOX today will be found to contain several articles of special pertinence to the Religious Book week observed April 2-8, contributed by two very eminent ministers widely separated in location as well as in theological position. Dr. Snowden is well known, as a writer, through his "Psychology of Religion." Dr. Dickinson, who has importantly added to Christian literature in a number of learned volumes and articles, has given up the ministry for educational work among the Southern negroes. He is the father of Sidney Dickinson, a master among the newer portrait painters of this country, two of whose canvases are owned by our municipal Art Museum.

HENRY VAN DYKE, writing in The Independent, delivers a rather pleonastic sermon with this very good gist: A home without a library is poorly furnished. And so is a library without religious books. It has no sustenance for that part of our nature which, however it comes to us, is beyond doubt the most important, because its needs are so vital that to leave them unsatisfied means intellectual and moral starvation.

Mr. Van Dyke's message, being broadly religious, ends in a recommendation of a few modern books which are instinct with that soul-satisfying spirit. He names, as exemplary in that regard, "A Labrador Doctor," by Grenfell; "What Men Live By," by Richard C. Cabot; "The Direction of Human Evolution," by Edwin Grant Conklin; "Christ Life and the Light of the World," by Robert E. Speer.

The eminent Princeton divine holds that such books will help the reader to defend his liberty to believe and to maintain his liberty in believing. Ah, but can this liberal brand of theology save such truly enlightened works from inquisitorial consignment to W. J. Bryan's spectacularly inaugurated Auto da Fe? The Colonel's order for the fuel is in, and the minions of darkness are sharpening their pitchforks.

AMONG writers of St. Louis origin who have reflected high credit on their home town is Jesse Lynch Williams, the long-run success of whose satirical comedy "Why Marry?" is remembered. Mr. Williams, as president of the Authors' League of America, has seen fit to come out into the open to ward off the latest impending stroke of the "viri obscuri" in their fell assault on the humanities. We refer to the threatened evil of dramatic and literary censorship.

"What are we going to do about it, authors of America?" is what Mr. Williams wants to know. His own plan of campaign, which is elaborately set forth in the last bulletin of the organization, takes its cue, we think, from the ancient superstition that a dog-bite can be cured by biting the dog. Mr. Williams most unwisely proposes a defensive program which seems to us considerably worse than none at all. Fearing that without counteraction on the part of the authors state censorship is inevitable, he urges the creating of a private board of cognoscenti recruited from university clubs and similar foci of literary culture (save the mark!). On this panel of strictly "impartial censors" no person is to be allowed who has any official or financial connection with any theater or with any reform movement (!).

We are happily persuaded that Mr. Williams' plan is as impracticable as it is wrong, and we side with the Rev. Billy Sunday, who is quoted as having said: "There is no more justice in allowing a few people to say what shall be seen on the screen than there would be in setting up a policeman to teach a Sunday school."

ALONDON periodical has been holding a symposium on the question, "Is the novel played out?" which has elicited a variety of opinions. An interesting letter was written by W. J. Locke, who said that as long as such novelists as Hugh Walpole and Sheila Kaye-Smith are living and writing, you might as well ask "Is the moon played out?" as to question the continued and enduring value of the novel as a form of art and of many of the novels that are being written. His reference to Sheila Kaye-Smith in such high terms shows that this young author, among the most recent of the British novelists to forge to the front, has won the cordial appreciation of her fellow-craftsmen in England as well as of the rank and file of readers. Her rapid rise to fame is one of the most interesting developments of the last few years in England and the United States.

HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON'S new book will be called "The Story of the Bible." Dr. Van Loon is the author of that fascinating book, "The Story of Mankind," which has changed history from a dull account of dead affairs to a live, vital story of men and women.

"I shall write the Bible," he says, "to tell my boys what they want to know, to answer their questions and make them familiar with the story and the characters of the world's most remarkable book, a book which has influenced in countless ways a large section of humanity.

"I plan to tell the story of the Bible in about 100,000 words. And I'm going to make pictures for the book, just as I did for 'The Story of Mankind.' One of the first questions every child asks when it hears a story is 'What did he look like?' I want to show my boys—and other children—pictures of Bible scenes and people."

THE best short stories of the year of 1921, according to the award of the O. Henry Memorial Committee, were: "The Heart of Little Shikara," by Edison Marshall, and "The Man Who Cursed the Lilies," by Charles Tenney Jackson. Formal announcement was made at a dinner given by the Society of Arts and Sciences on March 22, in New York. On that day, according to annual custom, the book of 16 "prize tales" chosen by the committee was published. The judges were: Blanche Colton William, Edward J. Wheeler, Ethel Watts Mumford, Frances Gilchrist Wood and Grove E. Wilson.

FOR RELIGIOUS BOOK WEEK.

BOOKS are one of the oldest of human inventions, as they go back to the stone libraries of Babylon, and farther back into the mists of time, and so they come down to us freighted with the aggregated wisdom and wit of the ages. Words are crystallized ideas, and books are the embalmed brains of thinkers that are gone. The ideas that glowed in Plato's intellect burn again in our thoughts, as the sunbeams that millions of years ago were condensed into coal again blaze in our fires and shine in our electric lamps. The flights of winged words that soared in Shakspeare's imperial imagination are again let loose in our minds and bear us aloft into a grander world. Books thus deposit and dissolve in us the great thoughts and splendid visions of the best minds of the ages and crowd their teeming consciousness into ours. We are wise with their wisdom, and strong with their strength. A few dollars will now buy us mental and spiritual wealth beyond the utmost dreams of Croesus. If we had to begin the business of manufacturing knowledge all over again we could never advance beyond the infantile stage, but we start at the top of the ages with all their accumulated wisdom at our feet; and books are the magic means by which we compass this high attainment and enormous blessing. Our authors and publishers are thus our true wealth producers, and every worthy book that comes off the press enlarges and enriches our minds and lives. Our very familiarity with our greatest wonders and chief goods may dull our appreciation of their value, and we need some such means as Religious Book week to sting us with a new sense of the immeasurable worth of books.

"RAHAB," by Waldo Frank. (Boni & Liveright.)

BONI & LIVERIGHT are issuing Waldo Frank's third book of fiction, "Rahab;" and in an exceedingly attractive edition. "Rahab" is an important work of art; and organically right is the garb in which its publishers send it into the world. However, it is a pity that the book is being advertised as ranking with "Tess," "Bovary" and "The Idiot." The comparison smacks of "ruse de guerre," smells like a bait for trapping attention away from the hypostatic issue of the volume. For it makes no difference how it measures to books of other peoples. The fact of importance is that in Young America has arisen a voice which rings like genius.

In "Rahab" about two hours of the life of a young poet are materialized. A boy goes to a prostitute's flat and while waiting for the girl hears another woman's story. The author does not tell this story; the woman herselff does not narrate her history. The young Jewish poet lives it. Rahab is a sector of Samson Brenner's life. What, during the recital of Fanny Dirk's narrative, he sees, hears, feels, imagines, thinks, would cannot . . . . is Rahab. And the noble result of his subjective acceptance of the woman and her tale is that she, Fanny Dirk, is objectified. His poet's understanding of her renders her viable. Out of his few hours of spiritual and mental vision issues a living woman. He has a sense of her reality, and, therefore, she becomes real. So real, indeed that he fades and she endures.

In some quarters Waldo Frank's naturalism is damned as vile and indecent. The answer to this accusation—if it be worth print to make answer—is the old one of Honi Soit and the ensigns borne by many literary Bibles. Certainly to the so-minded some episodes in "Rahab" can furnish facile current for scandalization: albeit, or perhaps because they are the paths which the woman, Fanny Dirk, traverses in her search for the truth behind life, for God. What, at the end, she finds might be summed by the caption of the novel: "Be consoled; thou wouldst not seek me if thou hadst not found me. . . . What at the end she is, having lived her life to the measure of her mind and depth, is holy.

"Rahab" is not a poem, but it is poetry. Its appearance, after "The Unwelcome Man" and "The Dark Mother," should soon produce critical study of the author's style. Paul Rosenfeld, accidentally and by circumlocution, showed in "The Dial" that Waldo Frank has already developed a pronounced individualistic manner. But there has been no adequate analysis of the power, characteristics and essential unity of Frank's writing. Its power results inevitably from the substantial marriage of form and material. Its unity emerges from the sharply accented and consistent personality of the author. Its fundamental characteristics of style are rhythm; very simple sentence structure; a subtle, almost indiscernible alliteration, and a Niagara of metaphor. Beyond these qualities rise the more significant of psychological insight and lucid fearlessness in facing life. Frank makes the impression of penetrating into reality that a miner does when he goes into the earth, the result being the rare yield of genuine literature. In this respect he stands close to Sherwood Anderson, just as his style's closest kin in America is Amy Lowell's. The difference between Anderson and Frank is largely one of the comparative sizes of their respective canvasses; as Paul Rosenfeld puts it, Frank's are always of grandiose proportions. The difference between Amy Lowell's articulation and Waldo Frank's is that which exists between the inorganic and the organic kingdoms. The woman's is metallic, lithoidal; the man's of flesh.

Waldo Frank is not easy to read. To those who like their books presented in rubber-stamp American dialect and substance, his work will seem confusing, chaotic, vague, esoteric. But to any mind capable of following, say, Debussy, it should unflow a river of beauty and import.

"Rahab" is not a "timely" novel. It might have been written 100 years ago or as many hence. It gives no reply to the riddle of sex. Nor, while gently emphasizing that which is essentially spiritual in the Jewish soul, does it make any racial issue. In short, it is a work of art. A human soul lives in it, profoundly human. Her cosmos is created before our eyes, and it is powerful and virgin; a cosmos of prodigious impression and reaction, of vital tragedy. So unified is it that, eliminating all superlative and even comparative qualifications, one feels justified in looking forward to "City Block" as a work beside which "Spoon River" and "Winesburg" shall be as instrumental solos to a symphonic poem.

The single unpardonable glare in "Rahab" is Fanny Dirk's name. She marries a man named Luve. Of course there are such names, even if they are spelled with another vowel. And certaintly in that word—in love for life—lies what to this hour has been the message of Waldo Frank. But to use it as a sort of symbolic handle, even if it was naturally born with the character of Fanny Dirk, is almost disastrous to the honorable objectivity of the book.

"THREE JEWISH MARTYRS: John the Baptist, Jesus the Reformer, Paul the Apostle," by O. W. Coursey. (The Stratford Company.)

THE author is to be commiserated on the "splurge" which his publishers have printed on the cover of the book, "to sell the goods." He has none of the scholarship imputed to him. But he has reverence and a little spiritual insight, qualities not mentioned in the "splurge." It is well to be reminded of supremely great souls, even by one who has little to say about them.

GREEMENT IN DANISH LOCKOUT

Compromise Made Subject to Approval Friday.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, April 5.—A compromise agreement by which the general lockout will end, subject to the approval of a general meeting on Friday of trades unions and employers organizations has been reached after negotiations lasting 16 hours.

The Danish lockout, beginning Feb. 15, affected 150,000 men and nearly all the country's industries. The trouble began in January when employers attempted to cut wages 20 per cent and lengthen the working day.

MAN SHOOTS WIFE OF FRIEND AND HIMSELF

Woman in Hospital Says Assailant, Who May Not Live, Fired Without a Word.

William Bonds, 32 years old, yesterday afternoon shot Mrs. Cora Brown, 30, wife of William Brown, as she sat in a chair at her home, 701 Exchange avenue, East St. Louis, and then shot himself, detectives who investigated the shooting reported.

Bonds is at the Deaconess Hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, and Mrs. Brown is in St. Mary's Hospital, with a bullet wound in her left side. The bullet passed through the flesh from front to back, without touching any vital part. Her recovery is anticipated. Bonds' condition is said to be serious.

Mrs. Brown informed the detectives that she, her husband and Bonds had been acquainted since childhood, and about one year ago they moved to East St. Louis from Camden, Tenn. Several times, she said, Bonds, while boarding at her home, became intoxicated, and three months ago, when he became drunk and started from the house with a revolver, her husband took it from him and forced him to find another boarding place.

Yesterday, she said, her husband and Bonds were to meet at the Brown home and search for employment. Brown, tired of waiting for Bonds, left about 15 minutes before he appeared. She said Bonds walked into the parlor, where she was reading a newspaper ,and, without saying a word, shot at her twice. One of the bullets struck her and she fled downstairs to a drink parlor. A few seconds later a revolver shot was heard upstairs, and Bonds was found to have shot himself.

RUSSIAN PIONEER OF LITTLE THEATER MOVEMENT TO SPEAK

Dr. Gregory Zilboorg to Lecture at Artists' Guild Two Sunday Evenings.

Dr. Gregory Zilboorg, Russian refugee, lecturer and one of the pioneers of the little theater movement, will give an address Sunday evening at the Artists' Guild on "Suffering and the Theater." The following Sunday evening he will speak on "Laughter and the Theater." Dr. Zilboorg, who held an important secretaryship in the Russian Ministry of Labor during the Kerensky regime, was obliged to leave Russia when Lenine came into power because he had been active in the opposition to Bolshevism. He was one of the directors of the Art Theater, Moscow, as well as an amateur actor of distinction. Since his arrival in the United States he has been lecturing at colleges on the drama and directing productions.

He will present two plays the latter part of this month under the auspices of the Artists' Guild and The Players, one of which "The Violins of Autumn," by Ilya Sourgouchev, Dr. Zilboorg is translating for the St. Louis production. The other play will be "Uncle Vanya," by Tcheckhov. Both will be given by casts composed of men and women who have taken part in a number of St. Louis productions. The Sunday night lectures at the Artists' Guild will be open to the public and tickets are on sale at 1111 Olive street.

Don't spend $5.00 a year on blades to feed a razor

Why some manufacturers could almost give away the razor itself

FEW men spend less than $5.00 a year on blades for an ordinary safety razor. How much do you spend? Many a razor that costs only $1.00 eats up as much as $10 or $12 every twelve months.

That's why some manufacturers could almost afford to give safety razors away free. It's the steady stream of blades that pass through the razor—one every few days—that piles up their profits.

A razor should be judged by its upkeep—by what it costs to get good shaves day after day. Is yours a source of constant expense?

The razor that sharpens its own blades

The Valet AutoStrop Razor sharpens its own blades on a straight leather strop. Just a few strokes and the first keen edge comes back morning after morning.

Think of the money saving! Over a solid year of smooth, clean shaves are guaranteed from every package of ten blades.

Now in a $1.00 model—formerly only in models at $5.00 and up

The remarkable features that have made the Valet AutoStrop Razor famous—in a startling new model you can buy for $1.00! Strops, shaves and cleans without removing the blade—none of the bother you have with old style non-stropping razors.

Here is your chance to cut out that constant blade expense—to get the joy of a new keen edge for every shave. Stop at your dealer's today and take advantage of this remarkable opportunity. Get one of the new $1.00 Valet AutoStrop Razors. It will give you a brand new idea of shaving comfort, economy and convenience.

Complete set with strop and blades for $1.00

The Model C outfit consists of—
1 highly polished, nickel plated, self stropping razor
3 standard Valet AutoStrop blades
1 Valet strop
—and an attractive metal case, velvet lined.

Benton's Pitching Features Cards' Shutout Victory

ONLY 17 FACE TWIRLER

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 5.—Winding around mountain trails on railways apparently is not conducive to Cardinal hitting, but they managed to do enough yesterday here to beat the Little Rock Travelers, 2—0, in a five-inning game, cut short by a sudden downpour. At that, the Cardinals collected several safe blows in the five innings they were permitted to perform. Sid Benton, Arkansas University pitcher, made the Travelers roll over and play dead, so effective was he in the box. Just one base hit was made off his delivery. He walked one man and fanned four, three of them in succession.

In five full innings only 17 men faced Benton. He retired the side in order in the first, second, third and fifth. In the fourth he fanned Art Zoellers, who used to play at Washington University, and then walked George Corrigan, St. Louis soccer star. Corrigan was forced at second by Dierks, a third St. Louisan. Connolly then broke through with the only Little Rock safety of the game, a single to center, on which Dierks hurried to third. Benton, however, tightened and fanned Wano for the third out.

The Cards scored once in the third and again in the fourth. In the third, Jack Smith walked to begin the inning and stole second, scoring on Fournier's hot shot to center for a base. In the fourth, Heathcote beat out an infield bounder as a starter and stole second. After Toporcer had flied out, Heathcote went to third on Ainsmith's out and rode across on Benton's lucky hit to right.

Hornsby went hitless, but had a fine day in the field. Heathcote will play left field for the remainder of the trip, McHenry having been called home because of his child's illness.

Haines, Barfoot and Pfeffer will be asked to work three innings each in Memphis today.

There is a decided Missouri tinge to the Little Rock club, Corrigan Zoellers and Dierkes being St. Louians and Dickerman, the first baseman, and Elberfeld, pitcher, hailing from De Soto.

TIGER COACH THINKS DEMPSEY WOULD BE EASY FOR TAIT IN THE WATER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 5.—A new angle to the discussion as to whether Jack Dempsey or Strangler Lewis could win a match, each using his own particular style of battling, developed when Frank J. Sullivan, coach of the Princeton swimming and water polo teams, announced that Bob Tait, captain of the Tiger water polo players, could defeat either of the champions in a bout in the water.

"Tait can clean up Jack Dempsey or anybody else—in the water," said Sullivan. "As for Lewis, the only thing in which he could beat Tait would be floating. The water would prevent Dempsey's blows from being effective, and as water polo is a combination of wrestling and swimming, Lewis would not last long."

Tait, who is 6 feet 7 inches tall, is perfectly proportioned and has the reputation of being the greatest water polo player ever turned out here.

As the Tigers have lost only one championship in the 12 years that the sport has been recognized here, this reputation is significant.

Considerable discussion has been aroused here by the proposed Dempsey-Lewis clash. Gus Schoenlein, better known as "Americus," who coached the matmen here, and "Spider" Kelley, the famous old boxer, each maintains that the representative of his branch of sport would easily prove superior.

DUNDEE-MARTIN TITLE MATCH IS POSTPONED

NEW YORK, April 5.—Because of an injury to his right hand, which he suffered in his bout with Dutch Brandt in Brooklyn last Friday night, "Pepper" Martin yesterday was forced to postpone his match with Johnny Dundee, which was scheduled to be held at the Lexington Theater on Thursday, April 13.

Matty Zimmerman, matchmaker of the Lexington, immediately upon receiving word from Martin, began negotiations with Frank Casale, manager of Benny Valger, with a view to substituting Valger for Martin on the same terms.

Casale said he would hold a conference with Valger and give Zimmerman his answer today.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Hoist by His Own Petard.

WILLIE HOPPE may thank his manager, R. B. Benjamin, for many things, including financial independence. He may also thank him for his present plight, one which will prevent him from challenging for the 18.2 balkline title for nearly two years. So confident was Benjamin in Hoppe's strength that, at the November tournament, he insisted upon conditions which, now that Willie has been beaten, are reacting against the "greatest billiard player of all time"—a compliment which we can back up to the limit with facts.

It was perhaps the only time during his 10 years of management of Hoppe that Benjamin made a serious mis-step. But now that it has proven a recoiling vengeance, it is hardly likely that Hoppe's rivals will make it easy for him to return to competition. Benjamin's attitude toward Hoppe's rivals and toward the billiard manufacturing firm that handles all championships has been autocratic. The players call it "domineering."

In the days when Hoppe was the ONLY great player in the world, this "went"—Hoppe was necessary. Today, there are four other players each, under favoring conditions, able to make Hoppe extend himself or, as in the case of Schaefer, defeat him. These may see fit to rub salt in Mr. Benjamin's wounds, in his present distressful situation.

Perhaps the public, through insistence, will be able to effect a change in conditions before the two years have been waited out. Or perhaps the avaricious young gentlemen who make up the horde of title hopes will miss the money which Willie's name always draws to the gate and themselves will make overtures for William's return.

If not, the public, innocent bystander, will be the customary sufferer.

• • •

Here's the Proof.

JUST to prove that Benjamin and not the billiard company dictated the terms of the tournament conditions, the Brunswick company, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch, says in part:

"All of the conditions of the championship tournament, which Mr. Benjamin now finds objectionable, were injected by himself.

"The original agreement which he formulated in New York, and sent to us as the conditions under which he would allow Mr. Hoppe to enter the tournament, stipulated among other objectionable features, that all match games subsequent to the tournament and in which the championship emblem was involved, should be for a money stake of $1000 on each side, winner to take all of the gate receipts. All of the other players objected to these conditions, but they were finally induced to waive their objections and sign the agreement.

"Just prior to the opening of the tournament, however, all of the other players with their managers, at a meeting held in Chicago, succeeded in inducing Mr. Benjamin to allow a modification of two of the objectionable features; i. e., the money stake was reduced from $1000 to $500 each side, and the gate money divided on the basis of 60 per cent to the holder of the emblem and 40 to the challenger.

"Benjamin flatly refused, however, to make any concession in the number of games to be played annually by the holder of the emblem. If there was any commercialism in this arrangement, he alone is responsible for it. Yours truly,

"THE BRUNSWICK-BALKE-COLLENDER CO.

"N. F. DAVENPORT, Secretary."

Lambs to the Slaughter.

THE Western Division of the Amateur Athletic Union of America is planning to send a boxing team from St. Louis to the national championships in Boston. This matter should be brought to the attention of the S. P. C. A. If the men who fought and won Western District honors at the Armory here, are the ones to be sent East to compete against the pick of the country, it might be safer to reinforce them with concrete, before sending them against trained shock troops.

The boys who won titles here are, compared to the good amateur boxers they will encounter at Boston, mere tyros. In all the three nights of boxing at the local tourney only one boy displayed the slightest knowledge of the meaning of a feint. The rest were merely wild swingers, untutored in defense or systematic attack. Scarcely any of the lads had been boxing as much as eight or nine months, and these only at the few tournaments held by the South Broadway Athletic Club.

In the East they will meet not only seasoned amateurs coached by the best professional teachers, but also men who in reality are professionals, successfully "covered up."

• • •

We Led the U. S., Once.

IN THE old days St. Louis sent some wonderful amateurs to the lists, George Kirkwood, Freddie Gilmaster, Willie Grupp, Bobby Gresham, Ollie Kirk, Joe Lydon and others of memorable achievement. Some of them since have become widely known professionals. One was very close to a title—George Kirkwood.

The amateur game here today is decadent. However, the trip east may do one thing for the W. A. A. U. boxing team—it may open its eyes as to what real amateurs can do and spread the gospel of boxing here.

Benjamin Insisted on Tournament Conditions, Billiard Head Says

THE following telegram from an official of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., which controls the leading players and promotes all cue title tourneys, speaks for itself. It was received too late for publication with yesterday's exclusive story of Willie Hoppe's exclusion from title play for two years.

CHICAGO, April 4.

J. E. Wray, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo.—I omitted to explain in my telegram that we had nothing to do with the arrangements entered into by all the contestants in the November tournament, in the way of number of games to be played each year, excepting to induce the balance of the players to agree to Manager Benjamin's terms and conditions, namely, that the champion was only obliged to defend his title three times each year and that each contestant in the tournament could challenge in the rotation in which he finished. Kolp and Pruett Hold Collegians To Three Bingles

Right-Hander Shows Improved Control, Working Five Frames Without Giving a Pass.

2 MORE GAMES ON ROAD

Squad Arrives Here Friday After Contests at Jackson, Miss., and Dyersburg, Tenn.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSON, Miss., April 5.—The Browns are racing right through the Cotton States League with but one thought in their minds, to make the barnstorming trip a thing of the past and get back to St. Louis.

Traveling through the bushes is not what one would call real sport. This is the third town in the Cotton States League which the Browns have made, and today's contest will be the second against a team of that organization. Yesterday at Vicksburg the American Leaguers defeated the Mississippi College, score 6—0.

Another skinned diamond was encountered, and for this reason the Browns did not extend themselves to any great extent. The college boys were extremely weak with the war club. All told, the young men from Mississippi College could gather only a grand total of three widely scattered hits, all singles, against the offerings of Raymond Kolp and Hubert Pruett.

Kolp's Control Is Good.

Kolp pitched five innings of the game, and the right-hander held his opponents to one blow. Kolp displayed much better control than he did on his last out, not issuing a single base on balls.

First Baseman Cooper got a single to right in the seventh and Dickens singled to center in the eighth. Pruett issued one base on balls in his four innings of mound duty.

Jake Hits Long Homer.

"Baby Doll" Jacobson made the longest hit of the game, a four-base smash to the far corner of left field. This drive sent Sisler and Cedric Durst across the plate ahead of Jake.

Chic Shorten played right field in place of Johnny Tobin, who left his teammates yesterday morning for St. Louis, accompanied by Hank Severeid.

After the game at Jackson this afternoon the Browns will board a train and make another one-day stop, at Dyersburg, Tenn., where the Minneapolis ball club will be played tomorrow afternoon. After this game, Lee Fohl will lead his athletes to St. Louis, arriving Friday morning.

KERR WILL NOT PITCH FOR SOX EVEN THOUGH IF DEMANDS ARE MET

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 5.—Pitcher Dick Kerr, who left his home in Paris, Tex., this morning for Chicago, declared he would not play ball with the White Sox again even though they met his salary terms, according to word received here today.

He said he was through with professional baseball, but would play occasionally with a semi-professional team. He has a position promised him in Chicago and will make his future home there.

He has been a resident of Paris since he joined the Fort Worth club of the Texas League in 1912.

If It All Depends on Pitching Strength, Here's a Review of Our Pennant Prospect

Each Local Big League Club Has Enough Men of Potential Championship Caliber to Form a Fine Staff.

By J. Roy Stockton

"How do the pitchers look?"

That's the question of questions wherever the chances of the Browns and Cardinals are being discussed. There seems to be a widespread and well founded confidence that both St. Louis clubs will get the necessary batting. There also is a tendency to take it for granted that the infields, which finished so brilliantly last year, will continue to perform in championship style.

But when the conversation swings around to the pitching strength, there is much shaking of heads, and a general admission that there is the potential loop hole through which the pursued pennant may escape. After watching both teams train, seeing all the pitchers work and after glancing over the 1921 records the situation stands out about as follows:

Browns.

Shocker—Last year won 27 and lost 12. In fine condition this year and with the pennant possibility to spur him on he ought to lead the league and win 30 games.

Bayne—Bill finished strong last year, with a record of 11 and 5. This year he looks even better. His control is improved, his confidence increased and he may well be expected to be one of the best in the league. He ought to win twice as many games as last season.

Vangilder—Here is another pitcher for whom great things are predicted. Last season he won 10 and lost a dozen, which is a very poor performance, indeed, for a man of Vangilder's possibilities. He has hurled brilliantly this spring and like Bayne is expected to have the fine season which critics expected before this.

Davis—Dixie is considered a much better pitcher than his record of 15 and 16 of last season indicates. If he does not win 10 more than he loses it will be a big disappointment. His improved control over last year indicates a good year for him and the pennant talk of his comrades is expected to spur him on.

Kolp—This youngster, with the confidence and cockiness of a veteran, won 8 and lost 7 last year. He has pitched some great games and can be expected to improve materially with last season's experience behind him. This spring he has looked very good and at times very wild and ineffective.

Danforth—Here is the big question mark of the Browns' staff. Obtained from Columbus in the 8-for-1 trade, his fate in American League circles cannot be predicted. His work in exhibition games, after his late arrival, has been encouraging. He is a clean, intelligent chap, always experimenting, always eager to learn more. He can be counted on to give the best he has.

These men are considered the big six, the regular or first-string pitchers. In addition there will be a number of youths who may produce a winner. Pruett, Meine and Henry are considered the best prospects, though others remain on the roster.

CARDINALS.

Doak—Bill led the National League in efficiency last year, but won only 15 games while losing 6. He is old and, even if he maintains his efficiency, he will need heaps of help to keep the team in front. In recent years he frequently has gone more than a week between games.

Pfeffer—Jeff had a fine season after coming to the Cardinals from Brooklyn. In St. Louis uniform he won 9 and lost 8. He has been the hardest toiler among the Cardinal hurlers this spring and must deliver if the Cardinals are to finish high. His work in exhibition games has been highly satisfactory.

Haines—Here is the logical pitching ace of the Cardinal staff. Jess won 17 and lost 12 last year. He has the curves, the speed and the physique to be a pitching staff in himself. When he curbs his temper and uses his noodle he is as good as the best. In trouble he is apt to fly off the handle and lose all his stuff. With good support Jess should far excel his 1921 record.

Sherdel—Little Bill is the most deserving hurler on the staff. He has toiled for years in a Cardinal uniform until Rickey now considers him one of his best pitching assets. Last year he won eight and lost as many. There is no excuse for that poor a showing from the left-hander with the Cardinals behind him. Despite an attack of influenza in the middle of March he is farther advanced than the rest of the staff.

Pertica—His record of 14 and 10 last year should be surpassed this season, which will be his second in fast company. If he behaves h carry the Cardinals far tow pennant. If he behaves.

Walker—Here is another p whose success depends largely self-control. When he is fit h beatable. Last year he won 1 lost 12. His fast ball, curve mound generalship warrant hi ning twice as many games loses. He has everything a p needs. With Sherdel's habits would be a big league sensation

Goodwin — Everybody has predicting a come-back for thi ball pitcher this year. He o ly was a great hurler before th in which he served in the air se Last year he was released a called this spring. His 1922 cess is a gamble, as much as rookie.

Barfoot—Here is the Danforth of Cardinal staff. Coming from ton, where he had a fine season year, he has made a good impr thus far this spring. But the from Houston to the big league a big one and it will take actu L. games to answer the question.

North—Lou worked in 40 g so last year, but always as a hurler. He managed to scratch a record for four won and thre Usually the horizon was dark he went in. Frequently he acceptably and many fans wond why he never was started.

Dave Danforth Discards Finger Grip With Which He Pitched for Years

DAVE DANFORTH, the Browns' prospective star left-hander, pitched in the American League and made his fine record in the Association last season with an incorrect finger grip, which he has discarded, according to Bob Coleman, Terre Haute manager, who trained with the Browns at Mobile and came to St. Louis after the Sunday game with the Cardinals.

"Dave used the regular two-finger grip," said Coleman, "except that he bent his thumb, resting the ball against the nail side of the thumb. Fohl, Leifield and I noticed that and finally we got up courage to mention it. Leifield showed Danforth the orthodox grip and Dave changed. He liked the grip, new to him, so much better that he now uses it regularly. He said he found his control better and his curves sharper with the changed grip."

It seems incredible that as wise a bird as Dave could have been using a faulty grip all this time.

COWARD OF YALE FIRST IN SQUASH NET RANKING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club, national champion, received No. 1 ranking of the National Squash Tennis Association at its annual meeting last night. Coward advances from seventh place, a position he held last year. He displaces Fillmore Van S. Hyde of the Harvard Club, who was ranked second. Jay Gould of the Columbia Club, court tennis champion for many years, was placed No. 3 in the list of squash players.

Municipal Tennis Association Joins District Net Body

By Davison Obear.

At a dinner given under the direction of the St. Louis District Association at the Washington Hotel, representatives of various tennis interests present indorsed plans for the coming season and agreed to support the local body in its efforts to bring here the National Clay Court championship for men in 1922.

This city has never had the clay court event. During the past 10 years the championship has been held in the cities of Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Omaha and this year will be played in Indianapolis.

Toastmaster Andrew B. Lynn, president of the district tennis association urged all present to help the campaign to make the coming season the best in the history of the game. Roland M. Hoerr, secretary of the Missouri Valley Tennis Association gave an address on the progress of that body showing an increase in membership from seven organizations in 1921 to 14 this year. He also stated that a schedule of tournaments over a period of eight weeks was being arranged for the various club members.

By unanimous vote the representatives present passed a resolution favoring the passage of a daylight saving law for St. Louis this year.

The chairman of the District Membership Committee reported that the Municipal Tennis Association would join as a body this season. Five other clubs have been accepted as members up to this date, the Webster Tennis Club, a new organization, being one of them.

Australian Davis Cup Stars Announce They Will Not Come to U. S.

Solitary Practice Will Lift Golfer Out of the Rut

By Charles "Chick" Evans.

(Copyright, 1922.)

It takes some of us a long time to understand clearly just why the hardest way of doing some things in golf in reality is the easiest way to arrive at the goal sought.

Practice is hard work, and it is doubly hard when it is taken in all seriousness. But it has been shown that in one hour of practice the player will hit perhaps 50 times as many shots as he will in a full round of an 18-hole course in actual play. Anyone can understand that it is actually hitting the ball forward that improves one's playing. Therefore, one solid week of diligent practice is equal to a whole season of playing, measured by the improvement in the game of the player. It is difficult to get this message across to players, but I can say that anyone who tries it will never regret having done so. All you have to do is repress the natural desire to play a full round with opponents for one week, or two weeks, putting in all your time at lonesome and studious practice. Then, when you next step up to the first tee for a round of play your companions will not recognize you as the player they used to know.

Willie Hunter, English amateur champion, gave a wonderful demonstration at St. Louis just prior to last year's national amateur tournament of what practice will do for the player. Hunter was up against a course such as he had never played on in England, as our courses are not like the links on the other side. Our holes are longer. Hazards are stiffer and the greens are a different kind of turf, with different approaches. We require the chip onto the green. The Britisher rolls his ball up to the green. Hunter took 10 balls and started around the St. Louis Country Club course. He played round after round in this way. After chipping the balls to some of the greens he would throw them all back onto the fairway and again chip them on. Then the tournament week came on, and Hunter defeated all competition clear down to the semifinals, a truly remarkable showing. A week of practice did it.

When you are playing a round you play your shots so far apart that you do not tire out with constant swinging, but on the other hand, there is a good chance to forget the little idea that came to you on the success or failure of the previous shot before it is time to play it again. My own belief is that a repetition of the good idea finally makes it a habit. But in playing a round you are practicing under playing conditions, while ordinary practice varies to a considerable extent. Perhaps an ideal way would be for a golfer to start out with solitary practice and finish up by playing a round, but under such circumstances I fear there would be few golfers, for most of us would grow discouraged over the early practice. One has to learn to love the game itself before he is willing to undertake the drudgery of soliary practice; and to my way of thinking, practice is found not to be drudgery when one has reached a certain stage, for then it becomes a pleasure to achieve a good shot, irrespective of what has gone before, or is coming after.

COBB OUT FOR WEEKS, LEG HURT IN SLIDING

AMERICUS, Ga., April 5.—Ty Cobb will be unable to play ball for several weeks, Dr. H. D. Allen stated today, after examining an X-ray of Cobb's ankle, taken last night after an exhibition game here between Detroit and Rochester.

The photograph showed no bones broken, but there were some bad ligament tears. Cobb was injured sliding into third base in the ninth inning, after having made four hits in five times at bat. Detroit won the game, 10 to 3.

Court Tennis Semifinals.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Four survivors of the field in the amateur court tennis championship entered the semifinal round today. They are C. Suydam Cutting and Charles E. Sands in the upper half and Fulton Cutting and Howitt Morgan in the lower half. The ultimate winner will meet Jay Gould, the perennial champion, in the challenge round.

Pitchers Steyermark and Riehl Allow One Hit Each in Game With Principia.

Central High School defeated Principia Academy's baseball team yesterday, 10 to 5', at High School Field. The fine hurling of Pitchers Steyermark and Riehl made the game safe for Central, in spite of errors. Each Central pitcher was touched for a single safety.

Dodgers Again Beat Yanks.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Brooklyn gave Memphis fans a treat by again defeating the Yankees, this time 6 to 4. Vance went along in brilliant fashion for five innings, against the Manhattanites, striking out the side in the fifth. Smith finished the game for Brooklyn. Babe Ruth at last broke into the hit column after a long batting slump, but failed to score. The Yankees and Brooklyn moved to Bristol, Tenn., today for the continuation of their struggle.

New Skating Record.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Roland Cioni, professional rollerskater, in the championship races here last night won the one-mile race in 2m. 42s., establishing a new world's record. The former record of 2:42 2-5 was made by Clarence Hamilton of Chicago in 1905.

District Amateurs Plan Mat Tourney

Entries for Three Days' Event Set for April 25, 26 and 27 Already Coming In.

Two athletic clubs and two universities have already sent in entries to the coming Western District A. A. U. athletic tournament, scheduled for April 25, 26 and 27, according to the officials in charge of the feature. Only a few local organizations have been canvassed thus far, and it is expected that many entries from turnvereins and clubs will come in during the week. Entries close with Verne Lacy, Arcade Building, Charles Demko, 2219 South Broadway, or Robert Probst, 3539 Bell avenue.

HERE and THERE In the RACING WORLD

Highball's Owner Dies.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 5.—Capt. W. H. May, 79, prominent turfman, capitalist and legislator, is dead at home here. Capt. May owned a number of noted thoroughbreds, among them Spokane Pulsus, Joe Clark, Liberty Loan and Highball. He won the last Chicago Derby with Highball. Two years ago his good horse Liberty Loan captured the Latonia Derby. Capt. May had attended every running of the Kentucky Derby since that classic was instituted in 1875 and only a few days before his death expressed hope that he would be well enough to witness this year's event. He was three times a member of the Kentucky Legislature and several times a member of the Lexington City Council. He left a large estate.

St. Henry, the Kentucky Derbq and Preakness candidate of Montfort Jones, worked a mile easily in 1:43 at Churchill Downs yesterday. Several Derby horses of lesser importance were galloped. Today Deadlock, Surf Rider and other good ones are scheduled to limber up. It's too early for any candidate to be urged in workouts. Real running against the watch will hardly start for two weeks.

The $30,000 Hopeful Stakes, won last year by the unbeaten Morvich, and before that by Man o' War and other famous performers, has 247 nominations including some of the best bred youngsters in the United States.

Jockey Morris had a big day, yesterday, with three firsts and a third at Bowie. His riding saved the day on Incog, which he brought in on the rail when the contenders swung wide stakes this season.

Plans for enlarging the seating capacity at Churchill Downs, where the Derby is run, will not be begun until after the spring meeting. It is planned to remove the Douglas Park stand to Churchill Downs. It will adjoin the present stand on the south end. The Douglas Park stand will be converted into a club house and enclosure, patterned after Saratoga.

Exodus had to be put to a drive to win the Midway, at Bowie yesterday. This Peter Pan colt was quite a performer as a 2 and 3 year old and is expected to win more good stakes this esason.

RAILS SHARE IN ACTIVE TRADE ON STOCK MARKET

Day's Developments Generally Favorable With Better Feeling Reported in Sugar and Copper Trade With Higher Prices Reported for More Steel Products.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Another million share day in the stock market carried issues to a nearly all the speculative issues to a new high level. Rails alike shared in the activity which increased during the day, culminating in the very active trading of the last hour. With the exception of the coal strike which the market seems to have decided to ignore utterly, the day's developments were generally favorable with better feeling reported in the sugar and copper trade, higher prices for more steel products and the certainty that equipment companies will receive additional large orders from the railroads now in the market for freight cars. The bond market continued active with prices strong and transactions only slightly below the daily totals recently registered. The rate for call loans on the Stock Exchange stood at 4½ per cent with some loans reported made in the outside market at a lower figure.

Exchange Market Lower.

"Although the exchange market was strong at today's opening in London a reaction set in with the beginning of trading in New York and all the European exchanges with the exception of German marks, registered a slight decline from yesterday's level. Sterling which opened fractionally higher in London dropped here to $4.38⅝ representing a net loss for the day of a cent. Commercial bills were offered in good volume. French francs were off 2 points at 4.11½ cents, lire were off 8 points at 5.21½ cents. Swedish kroner were off 11 points at 6.02 cents and guilders were off 16 points at 37.73 cents. Spanish exchange was again conspicuously weak, with pesetas declining 21 points to 15.24 cents. German marks were unchanged at .31½ of a cent. The weakness in exchange today was regarded in the market as a normal reaction from the advance on Monday and Tuesday, when too much importance was evidently attached to the victory of the British Prime Minister in the House of Commons.

"With reports of more favorable weather in the Southwestern section of the cotton belt, cotton prices today were somewhat steadier and moved within a narrow range. At 17.98 cents May futures were off 2 points from the previous closing. The strike in the New England mills is at present tending to offset any bull movement that might result from the unfavorable planting conditions for the new crop. Wheat prices tended to soften in the absence of export demand. There has recently been considerable liquidation of May holdings, with the result that the spread on the May and July contracts is narrowing. May wheat on opening at $1.32 was fractionally lower than at the previous close, and in later trading declined to $1.30.

Steel Industry Situation.

"Conditions in the steel trade point to a continuation of the improvement in output and prices that had become so profound during the past month, according to the Iron Age, which estimates the rate of production as slightly over 70 per cent for the corporation and at slightly under that figure for the independents. Sufficient business has developed to keep the plants operating a the present rate for several weeks. So far the coal strike has been without appreciable effect on the iron and steel markets. The steel operators have 60 days' coal stocks on hand, but it is believed that the nonunion mines will be able to supply them with fuel to make it unnecessary to draw heavily upon the present reserve Railroad and structural buying have been most important, but the market is steadily broadening, with sheet buying on a heavy scale and the wire industry booking orders in March up to about 75 per cent of its capacity. The pig iron market has also been active, with prices tending toward higher levels. The output in March, for the first time since January, 1921, has passed the 2,000,000 ton mark."

New York Investment Market.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Trading in bonds eased in the first hour of today's session with the smaller dealings in the stock market. Liberty 3½s made another new high record at 99.28 and most of the other Liberty issues, notably the 4¼s, were firm. Foreigns showed irregularity, Mexican 4s losing 1 point, while the 5s gained a large fraction. Higher prices prevailed for French Municipals, Japanese first 4½s and 4s and Swiss 8s. Seaboard Air Line continued to feature the domestic rails, the stamped 4s rising 4½ points and the refunding 4s 2½. Southern Pacific convertible 5s and collateral 4s, Western Maryland 4s, Minneapolis & St. Louis 4s and Philippine Railway 4s gained 1 point each.

Liberty 2d 4¼s also made a new high record later, selling above 99, but the general list failed to move forward with the stronger tone of the stock market.

L. & N. R. R. in 1921 Failed to Earn Expenses by $467,391.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. in 1921 failed to earn enough to pay its expenses by almost half a million dollars, even though net operating income increased $2,-318,469.11 over 1920, according to the report of the board of directors submitted at the annual meeting of stockholders here today.

Operating income, the report showed, amounted to $117,485,775.60. Operating expenses were $1[illegible]408,930.33, but deductions, including $3,514,692.26 for taxes and $10,237,089.68, interest on its funded debt, left a deficit of $336,[illegible]1.60, to which were added appropriations of $130,429.62, leaving a net deficit of $4[illegible]91.22, which was charged to profit and loss.

The profit and loss account showed a balance credit of $73,841,560.12 as compared with a balance credit of $79,309,090 on Jan. 1, 1921.

Bar Silver.

Drygoods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Gray cotton goods were quiet yesterday with prices barely steady. Export sheetings were sold in moderate quantities. Some lines of fine ginghams were revised in price for fall. Yarns were irregular and in light demand, with combed yarns quiet. The carpet auction continued active.

CURB MARKET IS STRONG AND TRADE IS ACTIVE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The curb market was strong and active today. Van Raalte and Sterling Products advanced several points, the latter reaching a new high record. Eastman Kodak also was well bought and advanced sharply. Some of the mining issues attracted attention. Volcano Mines was active and higher, and Independence Lead was bought.

The motor shares displayed considerable irregularity. Gardner Motors was firm for a time at the start, but yielded later when moderate selling orders came into the market. Durant issues were irregular. The radio stocks were barely steady. British-American Tobacco touched its previous high. A good demand for the Goodyear stocks, at higher prices, was in evidence. Amalgamated Leather had a good upturn.

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—What little tendency to reaction there had been in yesterday's stock market was quickly checked this morning.

From the outset of the stock market it was apparent that the realizing which had been in progress at last night's close was not being carried any further. Very soon operations for the rise were resumed, pursuing the modern plan of shifting rapidly from one group of stocks to another until pretty much the whole list was drawn along. In none of the other markets were the changes as important as those in stocks.

• • •

The Bond Market.

In the bond trading today the usual number of new high prices were reached and the volume of business was still large, but there was a tendency in some parts of the list to irregularity and dullness. The demand for Liberty Bonds, the outstanding feature of recent transactions was not quite as keen, although prices here kept steady during most of the session.

United Kingdom 5½s loans of 1922 and 1929 rose to a new high level in sympathy with the fairly well sustained quotations at present for sterling exchange, into which these two British bonds are convertible at $4.30 or above. Dominican Republic 5s, Brazil 8s, Italian 6½s, City of Sao Paulo 8s and the Department of the Seine 7s all got to the highest for 1922. French Republic 7½s and 8s were firm and the French municipal issues advanced again. Mexican Government 4s were a bit reactionary.

The high grade railway bonds were steady around their top prices, with a few new highs, such as in the Southern Pacific collateral 4s at 83. It was in the speculative railway group that most of the features appeared. Previous highs were passed by Seaboard Air Line refunding 5s, and gold stamped 4s, the former up over 2 points and the latter more than 4 points since last night's close; by Frisco incomes, Erie 4s, series D, Minneapolis & St. Louis refunding 4s and Philippine Railway 4s. The St. Paul incomes were again active and strong.

The industrial section Cerro de Pasco 8s were up a point, Bush Terminal 5s, Cuba Cane Sugar debenture 8s and Chile Copper 6s gained substantially. New York City traction bonds were firm, with a new top for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit 5s across 49.

• • •

Advance Resumed.

It did not take long in the market to establish the fact that what occurred yesterday was merely a temporary shakeout between two periods of rising prices. The same traders who threw over Studebaker so hurriedly when it started to break from 119, took back their stock. The same thing happened in Baldwin Locomotive. London and Amsterdam buying again made itself felt in Royal Dutch, which was the leader of the oils. Today Royal Dutch went up easily and drew along the related Union Oil. Cast Iron Pipe responded readily to buying. Stewart-Warner was the feature in the motor accessory group, rising 40.

• • •

Coppers Taken Up.

The move in the long neglected coppers got under way yesterday afternoon, but was checked for the time being by the general reaction at the close. When the rest of the list gave the chance this morning, the buying was resumed. Within the last few days statements from trade quarters have again emphasized the reported dwindling supply of the copper metal on hand. It was this consideration, it was said, which decided the mine owners to begin operations again.

• • •

Financial Notes.

The Dominion Steel Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15. The Dominion Coal Co. also declared the regularly preferred dividend of 1¾ per cent, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15.

• • •

Corporate financing in March was unusually heavy, with a combined aggregate of bond notes and stocks issued of $281,151,390.

• • •

The Associated Oil Co. proprietary companies for 1921 shows a surplus of $8,157,952, as compared with a surplus of $8,807,818 in 1920.

• • •

The American Cigar Co. today declared quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the common stock, payable May 1 to stock of record of April 15. The company has been paying 2 per cent quarterly.

• • •

The Corn Exchange Bank today declared its regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15.

• • •

The Brown Shoe Co. today declared the quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock of the company, payable May 1 to stockholders of record April 20.

WEAKNESS DEVELOPS IN WHEAT ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Wheat developed considerable weakness shortly before midday. Prior to that time the market seemed to be getting support, particularly the July delivery, which benefited by spreading operations—selling May and buying July. Reports that a total of 250,000 bushels of hard winter wheat had been bought yesterday and today at Missouri River points to come here, that 79 cars of wheat were coming from Omaha and that Illinois points were asking for bids on hard winter wheat to arrive, ten days' shipment, induced the selling. A local house bought 5000 bushels new wheat to arrive, shipment by July 20 at 2c under July price. A Minneapolis elevator reported the sale of 250,000 bushels of wheat to a Buffalo mill. Hard wheat premiums on spot were 1c higher. Shipping sales were slightly larger. Receipts continue to exceed expectations. Sales of 100,000 bushels of contract wheat were made to go to store.

Wheat closed ⅝c to 2½c lower, May $1.30 to $1.29¾, July $1.18¼ to $1.18⅛, September $1.11⅝.

Corn followed the trend of other grains. Some support was noted at 58c for May, but this was filled up and a further break of ½c was noted before the decline was checked. There was little in the news. Cash demand remains slow, both for domestic and export account. Receipts were larger.

Corn closed ¼c to ½c lower, May 57⅝c to 54⅛c, July 61⅝c to 61½c, September 63⅛c.

Trade in oats was uninteresting. Prices weakened with other grains. Cash oats basis was unchanged. Shipping demand was slow.

Oats closed unchanged to ¼c lower, May 36⅝c, July 38⅞c, September 40¼c.

Provisions were higher early on covering by shorts. Offerings were light and the break in grain had little influence.

Pork closed $1 higher; lard, 25c to 37½c higher; ribs, 15c to 17½c higher.

WHEAT PRICES LOWER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

May wheat had a lower range extending much beyond 2 cents on the Merchants' Exchange today. July wheat sold higher early, but after noon was a full cent net lower. Corn futures also were down fractionally in the afternoon.

Weakness in May wheat at Chicago on liquidation and report of wheat being on way to that market from Omaha and Missouri points affected local prices. Export demand was called slack. Corn was influenced by wheat and report of lack of sustained cash demand. Liverpool closed ¾d to 1d lower.

Red wheat was neglected in the local cash grain market. Not much was offered, but there was no demand. Hard wheat was 1c lower. A few cars of No. 2 sold 1c over May. Cash corn was 1c to 1½c lower. Demand was fair at the decline, but not all was cleaned up. Cash oats were ½c to 1c lower. There was fair shipping demand.

May wheat was lower in the initial trading, while July wheat rose. May opened at $1.29 and July wheat $1.16. Corn futures eased some. May corn opened at 56⅝c and July corn 60⅝c. Liverpool opened at 1d lower on May and ¾d off for July. Noon prices were at about the same level.

The three Northwestern markets combined today had 380 cars of wheat, compared with 450 a week ago and 643 last year, Minneapolis today receiving 110 cars. Duluth 83 and Winnipeg 187.

Primary receipts were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 577,000 bu, compared with 422,000 a week ago and 861,000 last year. Corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 698,000 bu, compared with 683,000 a week ago and 524,000 last year. Corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 447,000 bu, compared with 392,000 a week ago and 412,000 last year.

Weekly Grain Exports.

Linseed Oil Market.

LINSEED OIL—In lots of 1 to 4 barrels at 94c per gallon for raw and 96c for boiled.

CATTLE RECEIPTS ARE LIGHT AND MARKET RULES STEADY

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., April 5.—Today's estimated receipts: Cattle and calves, 2000; hogs, 9500; sheep, 1000; horses and mules, 150.

CATTLE—With receipts light and demand moderate, the market ruled steady, strong in spots. Sales of steers included loads at $8.40, $8.35 and $8 per cwt. Eight cars of Texas feeder steers cleared at $7. Veal calves were fully steady, top making $9 and the bulk selling around $8.50.

Quotations: Beef steers, high, $9.25; low, $5.50; bulk, $7.50 to $8.25; butcher yearlings, high, $9.25; low, $3.50; bulk, $6 to $7.75; butcher cows, bulk, $4.50 to $6; canner and cutter cows, range, $2.50 to $3.50; beef bulls bulk, $4.50 to $5.50; bologna bulls, bulk, $4.25 to $4.75; stocker and feeder steers, bulk, $5.50 to $6.75.

HOGS—Although the hog market started out a dime higher, the trading did not go very far on this basis and before midday prices were back to the Tuesday level. The reaction was due to lack of shipping orders and the fact that the run was considerably larger than estimated. Early top was $10.65, against $10.55 late. Bulk of the early hogs sold from $10.50@10.60 and later in the day from $10.40@10.50. Popular demand was for hogs weighing 180 to 210 pounds. Light hogs, 160 to 170 pounds, lacked demand and were extremely slow. Good weight pigs sold on a strong active basis, good 120 to 150 pound pigs selling from $10@10.50, medium weights $9.50@10, and lights from $8@9.25. Rough hogs sold steady, sows from $8.50@8.75 and stags $6@7.

SHEEP—Wednesday receipts at the sheep house were estimated at 1000, but the salable supply was not over 500. Included were clipped lambs at $14, clipped yearlings at $12.25 and $12.50 and fall clipped 2-year-olds at $10.25. No fat wool lambs were shown. Quotations: Fat sheep from $9@9.50 for handy weights and $8@8.50 for heavies.

HORSES AND MULES—Influenced by light receipts, the horse market showed substantial improvement the first half of the week. Demand was best for good qualitied big horses and chunks, and blocky, well broken Southerners. The run of mules was also smaller and trading ruled firm.

Native Horse Quotations—Good to choice drafts, $165@190; medium to good draft, $140@165; good to choice chunks, $85@135; medium to good chunks, $55@70; choice Southern horses, $50@90; fair to good Southern horses, $35@50; common to medium Southerners, $15@20; plugs, $5@15.

Native Mule Quotations—Draft mules (16 to 17 hands), $160@190; sugar mules (16 to 16.3 hands), $150@185; mine mules (15.1 to 15.3 hands), $140@175; mine mules (14½ to 15 hands), $85@120; top cotton mules (15.1 to 15.3), $125@165; farm mules, $120@150; cotton mules (small, 14 to 15 hands), $60@90; small mules, $30@50.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The early raw sugar market was firm with spot Cubas 1-16c higher to 2⅛c cost and freight, equal to 4.11c for centrifugal, while second half April shipment was unchanged at 4.11c. There were sales of 75,000 bags of Cubas, prompt shipment, and 23,000 bags for second half April shipment. Raw sugar futures were less active, but the undertone was firm and prices showed little variation from the previous night's closing. The market for refined sugar was unchanged at 5.25c to 5.50c for fine granulated, with a moderate inquiry reported principally for export. Refined futures were without transactions.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximate sales, 11,200 tons. May, 2.61c; July, 2.79c; September, 2.97c; December, 3.01c.

SMALL ADVANCE RECORDED BY COTTON MARKET AT CLOSE

NEW YORK, April 5.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 7 to 9 points on firm Liverpool cables, and more favorable reports on textile strike. There was also rather a more favorable view of English labor conditions, but the opening advance met considerable realizing and prices soon turned easier under selling on reports of clearing weather in the Southwest. July contracts eased off from 17.44c to 17.38c and October from 17.28c to 17.20c, right after the call, or back to about last night's closing quotation. Houses with foreign trade connections were moderate buyers early, but New Orleans sold near months here, and there was scattered local selling.

The prospect for showers in the Eastern belt seemed to be offsetting clearing conditions in the Southwest and the market turned steadier after selling off to 17.32c for July and 17.15c for October or about 4 to 6 points net lower. There was also some scattered buying on the views of local traders who thought the prospects pointed to a renewal of unsettled weather in the Southwest by Friday, but the weekly weather report was better than expected and rallies of 5 or 10 points from the lowest were not fully maintained late in the forenoon.

Trading remained very quiet during the middle of the afternoon, with prices ruling steady at a net gain of about 1 to 8 points.

Cotton futures closed barely steady; May, 17.91c; July, 17.26c; October, 17.01c; December, 16.98c; January, 16.85c.

Liverpool Cotton Steady.

LIVERPOOL, April 5.—The Cotton Association's war memorial was unveiled today and on account of this ceremony trading on the Cotton Exchange did not begin until 2 p. m. DOCTORS MADE IT FAMOUS

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Has Been Prescribed by Physicians for Thirty Years

Doctors wanted iron in a form easily absorbed into the blood and it was one of them, Dr. A. Gude, who found the way to give it. It is now sold by druggists everywhere—almost every druggist in the United States has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. Doctors everywhere advise weak and run-down people to build up with this splendid tonic. It puts color into the cheeks and increases strength and vitality by making the blood rich and red, and that is the only true and sure way to keep well. If you are all tired out and nervous and feel half sick and "cross," take Gude's Pepto-Mangan for a few weeks at meal time and you will feel like a new being. It is a wonderful tonic, and you will be delighted with the results.

CONSTIPATION CAUSES NERVOUS HEADACHES

Cereal Meal, a Pure Cereal Combination, Permanently Relieves This Common Ailment.

Did you ever stop to think that your dull, throbbing, nervous headache is probably due to constipation? Relieve this most common of human ills and away goes your headache and other attendant ailments. Drugs give only temporary relief—and the more you take the more you have to take. Now try the drugless way.

Cereal Meal, the delightful breakfast dainty, never fails to relieve the most stubborn cases of constipation. It contains no drugs, simply a pure cereal combination that supplies the system with just the digestive, lubricating and stimulating elements necessary for free, easy bowel movement daily. Serve it instead of the regular breakfast food, then you can discard all pills, drugs and laxatives, for you'll no longer have any use for them. Cereal Meal is guaranteed not to fail, or your money back.

Buy a package today—in St. Louis at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., the Judge & Dolph Stores, Conrad's, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., and other leading druggists and grocers. Write to The Cereal Meal Corporation, 121 Chambers St., St. Louis, Mo., for interesting booklet, "Eat Your Way to Health."

Upholsterers in Window Work Before Crowd.

In connection with Better Homes Week the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Company, Fourth and St. Charles streets, are holding a novel exhibit in their Fourth street windows. Two of their seventy-five craftsmen are shown making a fine living-room suite. In another window the finished product is shown.

The public is invited to this demonstration and to inspect the factory where upholstered furniture is made for such dealers as John Wanamaker, Marshall Field & Co. and other large stores from coast to coast.

AUSTRALIA OBSERVING PROHIBITION IN U. S.

Melbourne Pastor Says Success of Fight on Liquor There Depend on Results in America.

The success or failure of efforts to institute prohibition in Australia depend upon the future of prohibition in this country, the Rev. Dr. Gifford Gordon of Melbourne, Australia, who is in St. Louis in the course of an investigation of American prohibition, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today.

Dr. Gordon has been in the United States for nine months, investigating prohibition for the Victorian Anti-Liquor League, an organization which, he said, is comparable to the Anti-Saloon League of America. He will remain for 12 months. Meanwhile he is sending home reports of his findings for the use of his colleagues.

"I am here because we have not been able to get anything good about American prohibition in the Australian papers," he said. "We get the opposite, instead," and he exhibited a pamphlet which reproduced an agency dispatch sent from Washington, D. C., to a Melbourne paper. "This dispatch contains a modicum of truth about violations of the liquor laws," he admitted, "but it is the manner of writing it to which we object.

Workers Discouraged.

"The word has been coming to Australia that prohibition here was not a success, and our workers have become discouraged. Without getting the true information there we cannot succeed. The long articles about the failure of prohibition in America have had a disastrous effect on our efforts.

"I am interviewing police officials, Judges, directors of public and private charities, business men, bankers, influential men who formerly opposed prohibition but have become convinced of its merits, manufacturers and others, to learn what prohibition has meant in this country. If I got all my information from anti-saloon workers and preachers, opponents could say I am prejudiced, but I only stop at Anti-Saloon League headquarters to pay my respects.

"The facts I have obtained from all these sources prove beyond a shadow of doubt, even with a partial law enforcement, that prohibition has justified itself. The evils of the bootlegging industry are as nothing, compared to the evils that came from more than 300,000 saloons which once existed in this country.

Reports of Good Results.

"Big steel, coke and iron men have written statements for me to that effect. They testified to the good results of prohibition on the lives of workmen, their homes and their children. The public schools were never so overcrowded before and prohibition is one main cause of that. Statistics from chief Commissioners of Police show in general a tremendous decrease in the number of arrests for drunkenness. Workhouses and jails that were always crowded under the old system have been emptied or partially emptied. Big business men attribute much of the business increase to prohibition.

"I am at a loss to account for the news in St. Louis yesterday of the great increase in the number of alcoholic cases treated at your city hospital. That is unusual. I don't mean to say that there are no violations of the liquor laws, but I was in New York for several weeks and didn't see a single intoxicated man. No doubt well-to-do persons, and even others, are able to obtain liquor. I'll be fair in my reports. I'll tell of this and of the number of illicit stills."

Has Studied Effectiveness.

Dr. Gordon has studied the effectiveness, rather than the means and methods of enforcing prohibition. He has visited the East and the South and Southwest, including the largest cities, and will tour the West next, leaving here for Kansas City April 13. He arrived last Saturday, and on Sunday evening delivered an address at St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. Gordon is accompanied by his wife. He is paying the entire expense of his trip, because the Victorian Anti-Liquor League cannot afford to do so, but is making the money by lectures he delivers at churches, accepting free will offerings. He is a native of Australia, but was educated at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky. He is a minister of the Christian Church.

The people of Australia and of the world, Dr. Gordon said, in closing the interview, are looking to America for economic, moral, spiritual and religious leadership, and as goes America so goes the world.

WOMAN FARMER FILES FOR HOUSE

Mrs. Lelia Edmundson Would Tell of Agricultural Needs.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, Ala., April 5.—A woman farmer of Albany seeks a seat in Congress "to show lawmakers what farmers are up against." She is Mrs. Lelia Seton Edmundson, candidate for a seat in the lower house from the Eighth Alabama District.

Mrs. Edmundson in her announcement declared that "there is imperative need for more real dirt farmers in Congress." She is the owner and boss of a 1600-acre Morgan County farm, where "everything but sugar and coffee" are grown. She said she had demonstrated on her farm that rural life could be made comfortable and attractive, as well as profitable, and that she proposed to go to Congress in the hope that more substantial recognition might be accorded fellow ruralists. "I don't want to stay long in Congress," she said, "but I do want to go to Washington at this time when the farmer is so much in need of assistance."

HALF OF UFA DISTRICT DOOMED, REPORT SAYS

Only 520,000 Portions of Food Available for 948,885 Famine Sufferers in Southeastern Russia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—Fifty per cent of the famine-striken population in the district of Ufa (Southeastern Russia) is doomed to die of hunger, and in the Bashkir Republic, (Southern Ural region) 35 per cent will undergo a like fate, says a report to the American Relief Administration by P. H. Hofstra, of Grand Rapids, Mich., executive for the areas named.

According to Hofstra, this is a conservative estimate, being based on figures obtained some time back. Brought up to date, the figures would probably be 25 per cent higher, "even allowing for the full American effort," he says.

Under the feeding program made possible by the American congressional appropriation, an adult receives one Russian funt, or roughly 14 ounces, of raw corn per day.

In the two areas named, there were 948,885 adult "famine subjects" but only 520,000 portions can be issued.

In addition to adults, the Relief Administration was caring on February 15 for 105,778 children in this territory.

MIDNIGHT AIR EXPRESS BETWEEN LONDON AND PARIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A midnight express each way is the latest innovation of the London-Paris air line. Details of a new 13-passenger Farman-Goliath used on this service have just reached this country. The plane has proven successful in every respect and it now is possible for one to go from London to Paris, or vice versa, in the morning or afternoon, have dinner, go to the theater and return home that night.

The midnight express is the most elaborately fitted and ever put in the passenger-carrying service. The passenger salon is finished luxuriously with heavy upholstered chairs, and softly shaded lights permit the passengers to "take a nap" on the trip across the channel.

Exactly the same running lights used on steamships are placed on the plane. Red and green navigation lights are attached to extreme tips of the wings and a bright rear light is fitted to the tail. Two powerful electric search lights are placed in the center of the machine, below the passenger cabin, and light up the ground over which the plane is flying.

The electricity for all lighting is furnished by two dynamos which are driven by tiny windmills rotating rapidly in the wind produced by the airplane as it rushes through the air. Four powerful magnesium flares are suspended in pairs below each lower wing tip, and the pilot lights these by electricity as he approaches the ground, thus making landing at night an easy operation.

LIKES WILD GIRLS PRETTY WELL, SAYS TARKINGTON

Even if They Do Carry Flasks of Gin, They Are Attractive, Author Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 5.—"I like the wild girls pretty well, myself, but I'm getting old and that begets restraint."

This was the voice of Booth Tarkington, conveying his sentiments to a bunch of reporters.

"The reason for all the hullabaloo about the present-day girl," said Tarkington, "is merely the increase in population. There are more of them. Therefore, there are more wild ones, and more nice ones. But the wild ones attract all the attention, and the impression is that they are all wild. What could be simpler?"

"Do you agree with one of the characters in your latest play that they are 'brazen little hussies in boys' breeches with a pint of homemade gin in their pockets'?" the reporter asked.

"Well, you notice he changed his mind later and admitted they had a lot of charm. Just between you and me, I think the wild ones are pretty attractive, even if they do carry flasks of homemade gin."

Accused of Anti-Americanism.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 5.—Miss Kate Kelly, supervisor of primary grades in the public schools here, yesterday was charged with teaching anti-American doctrines, by a committee of Sons of Veterans and other allied patriotic organizations, which appeared before the School Board. It is claimed Miss Kelly in a Washington's birthday talk to teachers told them "not to teach pupils that the American flag was the greatest flag in the world."

Policeman Held After Murders.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Fred Irvine, a police officer, was arrested last night in connection with the murder last night of Patrolman Ernest Cassidy and Philip Sommers, a bank messenger, and the robbery of $8900, which Sommers was taking from a loan association in South Chicago to deposit in a bank.

Some months ago it was discovered, more by accident than otherwise, that by a nightly application of Moone's Emerald Oil in cases of rupture that great relief comes quickly and in many cases after a few days' use the soreness and inflammation goes, the swelling is reduced and the daily torment or misery disappears.

Only a drop or two is required to make the skin sturdy, and many claim that its daily use strengthens the lower abdominal muscles which helps to hold the rupture more securely. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Fat Women Advised to Avoid Circular Trimming Effects in Clothing

Art Institute Lecturer Declares Lack of Information Causes Stout to Look Stouter and Thin to Look Thinner.

How fat women, merely through proper dressing and without the drudgery of reducing exercises or the struggle of abstaining from eating some things they like, yet may attain the appearance of a more sylph-like form, and how thin women, by accentuating parts of their dress, may achieve the same end, was related by Miss Evelyn D. Hansen of the staff of the Chicago Art Institute yesterday, at the Odeon.

The demonstration was the second Miss Hansen has made here and was part of the Better Homes week fostered by the Retail Furniture Dealers' Association of St. Louis.

Lack of Information.

Miss Hansen said she has observed an almost uniform lack of information on what kinds and styles of clothes to wear, among women of both types. Usually, the result after they are dressed, even though they wear the best materials, is sometimes fairly ludicrous, she added.

"Take the woman with the 'full moon' or round face," Miss Hansen said. "It seems that nature has conspired, when women have such faces, to give them short, fat necks and shoulders standing straight out at attention, giving an even broader appearance. But it seems they are not content with the perfect rotundity nature has given them, and that they must needs accentuate it.

Defects Accentuated.

"So, sad but true, we find these women wearing great, round biscuits of hair over their ears, nice, round yokes in the necks of their dresses bordered with circular trimming effects and beneath this often a large, round cameo pin.

"Let all fat women remember this: The circle is her enemy. Let her avoid it like a plague, particularly in hats and the trimmings she wears at the top of her dress."

The thin woman, with the long face, Miss Hansen said, goes to the other extreme and wears a V-shaped yoke in her dress, with pointed neckwear and other things that go to emphasize her scantness. Most often, she will have her hair dress running in a straight line from the front to the back of her head, adding to the impression of thinness. Thin women should never wear such things, but rather should affect the circular effects that give a broadening effect, such as fat women are warned against.

Full Length View Necessary.

"Generally, I believe, women would be helped vastly in making a proper appearance if they had full length mirrors," the speaker continued. "Every woman in the United States should have one. That most women have not such mirrors is the reason, I am firmly convinced, that white waists and black skirts held sway so long.

"When women buy hats, it is particularly necessary that they get a full length view of themselves, to see that the hat blends with the other things they wear. Never select a new hat seated, as is so often done.

"Women should be able to see their shoes in the mirror, for no woman can be well dressed unless she knows the meaning of the word 'foundation.' Often one sees short, fat women wearing 'Baby Louis' heels. They look like they at one time were French heels and that, because of the great weight of the wearer, they were crushed down."

A mistake made by American women generally in dressing is that they dress from the outside in, the speaker said. No woman can be perfectly dressed who does this, she said. The French women realize the importance of dressing from the inside, for they know it is thus only that their clothes can be made to hang just right, Miss Hansen pointed out.

Warning Against Light Color.

She warned fat women against any light color, for this gives the appearance of greater size. Any material that has a sheen to it, likewise, is taboo, she said. Materials with a fuzzy nap, such as velvet, velour, duvetyne or like cloths also should be avoided by fat women. Cashmere and Canton crepe are the best materials for the oversized woman to wear, in her opinion.

Four Types of Models.

In a promenade of models, Miss Hansen illustrated the points she had made in her address. The models were of four types, the tall, thin type; the oversized type, the type that is "pleasingly plump" and the type that can wear almost any style of clothing.

The tall, thin model wore a vivid red, dotted organdie dress, the color being subdued by a lace yoke and lace skirt, draped over it. The lace yoke and skirt had wide seams running around them, going across the body, at irregular intervals, to have a broadening effect. The waistline was skillfully hidden.

The oversized model, as was pointed out by Miss Hansen, had two problems. She had to overcome her appearance of being oversized and detract attention from her gray hair also. This model wore a dark brown Canton crepe dress, with decorations at the upper part of the dress to catch attention there and keep attention away from the fact that the model's hips were large and out of proportion to the upper part of her body. The model wore a light tan hat, which blended with the grayness of her hair.

The "pleasingly plump" model wore a lavender sports costume of ratine, with V-shaped yoke. This type can wear many things and has not the problem of dress that the other types have, Miss Hansen stated.

The remaining model, a type that could wear any kind of dress or suit and make a good appearance, was used to illustrate that simplicity, after all, is the keynote of good dress.

Caricature of Living Room Turned Into a Cozy One.

Ross Crane, also of the Chicago Art Institute, with whom Miss Hansen and others of the staff are associated in the Better Homes week here, turned a caricature of a living room, with pennants hanging on walls alongside of old-fashioned photographs of members of the household and a general cluttering up of furniture, into a cozy room of pleasing aspect, which drew applause.

"The two yardsticks of good taste in interior decoration of a home, as in other forms of decoration, are suitability and simplicity," Crane said. "One must remember that a living room is not a museum, but that it is the principal part of the home."

Some of the decorations of the room were burlesques on good taste. One was a cast iron elephant, with a clock in its center, another a rolling pin that had been covered over and made into a "pin-cushion" and a glass vase that had been gilded, on which grapes of a violent red hue had been painted. The clock was basically wrong, because it was a travesty on nature. No elephant ever had clock works inside, Crane pointed out.

Rolling Pin Not a Pincushion.

The rolling pin serves one function, primarily, but is sometimes used in comics for another, the speaker said. In neither case, however, is the rolling pin a "pincushion." The glass vase contained no lines smacking of ancient Greece or Rome, he said, but had a label on it, "Made in Germany."

"People are made harmonious by harmony in their surroundings," Crane continued. "Thus, in the color scheme of the living room, colors complimentary to the dominant color must be used. For instance, in this room, blue is the predominating note. Bits of orange and red have been used to blend with it. The rugs and tapestries must follow the lines of the walls and each wall should be the center of some part of the decoration."

Use of Cretonnes Recommended.

Crane advised the more general use of cretonnes in homes. Furniture covered with white cloths makes a home look like a sepulchre, whereas bright-colored cretonnes give a happier air. He also urged music, books and flowers in homes, declaring a home without these is almost like a home without love.

F. A. Cushing Smith, landscape architect, architect of the institute, showed how a 50-foot lot may best be utilized for a home and garden.

Crane lectures this afternoon on "How to Enjoy Paintings," and Miss Hansen discusses how a woman may be well dressed on a moderate income. This evening, Miss Hansen will lecture on "The Well-Dressed Business Woman."

DETECTIVES INVESTIGATE INJURIES OF GIRL 2 YEARS OLD

Detectives are investigating the case of Lillian Corson, 2 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Corson of 1835A Carr street, who was found at 8 p. m. Monday lying beneath a furniture wagon on a lot at 1816 Division street, suffering from internal injuries and lacerations of the pelvic region. She was taken to the city hospital.

The child had toddled away from home at at 7:30 p. m., while her mother was washing the supper dishes. Half an hour later a neighbor who had joined the parents in a search for the child found her lying beneath the wagon. She said that she had been playing but was unable to give any further information. Detectives believe she probably tried to climb upon the wagon and fell.

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL WITH TOOTHPICK LODGED IN THROAT

Efforts to Remove It by Tweezers Unsuccessful; Operation May be Necessary.

Mrs. Dora Ledbrook, 48 years old, of 808 Salisbury street, is at the city hospital with a toothpick lodged in her throat, and doctors, after failing to remove it with tweezers, have decided that an operation may be necessary.

The toothpick has been in her throat since Sunday evening. Mrs. Ledbrook was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon, after neighborhood physicians had tried in vain to get it out.

Mrs. Ledbrook was picking her teeth after the evening meal Sunday, when she was seized with a coughing spell. The toothpick slipped into her throat and the pointed end penetrated the membrane. Mrs. Ledbrook tried to dislodge it by coughing and relatives tried to aid her by thumping her on the back.

CHURCH PYROMANIAC SOUGHT

MONTREAL, April 5.—Montreal police are hunting an anti-Catholic pyromaniac as the man who started the fire which Monday destroyed the Church of the Sacred Heart with a loss of $500,000. Efforts will be made to connect him, if he is found, with fires in other churches, including the disastrous conflagration last week that destroyed the basilica at the famous shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre.

The firemen fighting the Church of the Sacred Heart fire, the police it become known, heard a man say: "St. Bridget's will be next, and then I will get the rest." He fled before the firemen could seize him.

Spends $1800 Chasing $500.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—A man who spent $1800 and 19 months looking over the country for an alleged bail jumper whose $500 bond he had signed, appeared in Magistrate's court yesterday with the object of his search. Michael Eisenstein, who spent the money, said he tracked Louis Zimmerman to Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities before finding him recently at Baltimore, on his fifth trip to that place.

City News in Brief

EDWARD STRAWBRIDGE, 15, OF 6202 Suburban avenue, riding on the rear fender of a Midland trolley car in St. Louis County at noon yesterday, fell when his foot slipped between the cars. He was dragged about 200 yards before his cries were heard by the motorman, Charles Brown, of University City. Strawbridge was taken to the city hospital suffering from multiple abrasions and lacerations from head to feet.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

LE ROY.—We have no record of the 1862 Confederate currency. The half dollar dated 1819 is worth 50c to 55c.

D. A.—Address the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Interior Department, Washington, D. C., in regard to the Indian claim.

C. D.—Cross country roads are very unfavorable for tours at this time of the year. Road maps may be secured at the shops.

I. E. F.—The Mississippi Valley Kennel Club would, no doubt, give you the desired information regarding the pedigree of the dog.

HELEN.—The Ted Lewis Jazz Band came to St. Louis in 1921 in the Greenwich Follies. The Greenwich Village Follies in St. Louis this year were not the same as those here in 1921.

CRAWFORD.—The roads to Fort Scott from St. Louis are very bad during this season. During dry weather it is possible to make it by the Joplin short line, but now it would be necessary to travel from St. Louis to Kansas City then south to Fort Scott.

FAN.—The difference between a direct current and alternating current electric fan is first, the D. C. fan is built to operate only on direct current while the A. C. is likewise built to operate only on alternating current. Second. The fan can only be operated when in circuit with proper current at its rated voltage. Thus a fan rated at 60 cycles A. C. at 110 volts could not be operated on any but its rated period of alternations (60 cycles) nor at a voltage much greater or less, than 110; while a D. C. fan of 110 volts could be operated only on a direct current at 110 volts.

M. I. H.—Alfred Bernard Nobel, a Swedish inventor and philanthropist, founded the Nobel prize fund of $9,200,000, the annual interest on which is yearly to be divided into five equal parts and distributed to the five most deserving persons in as many departments of human activity. Award is made for (a) the most important invention or discovery in physics, (b) the most important discovery or improvement in chemistry; (c) the most important discovery in physiology or medicine; (d) the most remarkable literary work of an idealistic nature, and (e) the most or best work done in the interests of universal peace. The first four prizes are awarded by the Academies of Sweden, the fifth by the Norwegian Storthing.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

F. J. T.—You do not have to help your neighbor pay for his fence unless you want to do so.

M. O. Y.—Report the sale of liquor to the police or to the Prohibition Enforcement Office, Custom House, Ninth and Olive streets.

J. W. W.—You are entitled to the Missouri bonus. Watch the newspapers for information regarding the distribution of the application blanks.

W. A. B.—You will need a city license and probably a State license to ride the bicycle with a motor attachment. Inquire of the License Collector at the city hall.

S. H. M. JR.—A contract made on Sunday, regardless of when it is dated, is valid if it is not to be performed on Sunday, and if it is not a part of the ordinary business of either parties.

L. O.—Bond should be given to the Probate Court, if the Court orders it as a condition of directing the payment of the legacy. If the Court does not order it, it is not necessary to give it.

A READER.—You can make your life insurance payable directly to the nieces and nephews, instead of to your estate. Bequests to nephews and nieces are exempt up to $500 to each and the tax on the excess over that is only 3 per cent.

MANY THANKS.—You could be sued for damages if you imitated another concern's label, whether the label was copyrighted or not. If the label in question is not an imitation, you can use it in selling the metal polish without having it copyrighted.

W. G. M.—If there is no will, and if there are no children, the widow is entitled to ½ of her husband's estate. If there are children, the widow is entitled to a child's share. She can if she wishes, take instead a life interest in 1-3 of the real property free of debts.

HOPE.—Your wife's right to the child and yours is equal, unless a divorce decree awarding the custody to one of you is obtained. You should try to come to an agreement with her regarding the custody of the child. You should support it and pay its expenses.

THANK YOU.—A merchant's license will be necessary for the jobbing business, if a stock of goods is carried. The cost of the license varies. Inquire of the License Collector at the city hall. Probably you will not need a license in other states if you merely take orders there.

MAYFLOWER.—If the man is guilty of bigamy notify the Circuit Attorney. The penalty is imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than 5 years, or in jail for not less than 6 months, or a fine of not less than $500, or by both fine and imprisonment. If he is guilty of violating the Mann Act, notify the United States Attorney at the Custom House, Ninth and Olive streets.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MO.—There is certainly no home remedies for knock knees. If the bones are still sufficiently soft, braces may help; if not, surgical interference is called for. See an orthopedic surgeon.

JUST GIRL.—Reduce the general body fat by diet and exercise. Stand with knees stiff and bend the body touching the finger tips to the floor. Lie on the back with feet under a piece of furniture and raise the body to a sitting posture without using the arms. Stand erect with hands on the hips and bend the body backward and forward and from side to side. Try these exercises every evening regularly and you will lose some of the surplus fat on the abdomen.

PATIENCE.—We have never heard of "colic of the scalp." For an itching scalp wash the hair sufficiently often to keep clean. The yolk of three eggs beaten up with lime water makes an excellent shampoo. Massage the scalp and brush the hair well with a stiff brush at night, doing this regularly. Avoid pomades and hair washes. Women should avoid pulling the hair into artificial and constrained positions. Rub in the following tonic morning and night: Piloearpin muriat grains 7, aquae rosae 2 ounces, alcohol 6 ounces, spts. etheris and spts. lavendulae of each 6 drams.

TRAFFIC REMANUFACTURED TRUCKS

Not the so-called rebuilt, but remanufactured. We tear these down completely, rebush, rebore and replace all worn parts with new parts, and it is done by the men that built them originally. They have new inclosed cabs, new bodies and are painted like new; in fact, we give the same guarantee as we do on a new truck.

They are equipped with stake, open and covered express bodies, hydraulic and hand hoists. A selection second to none, and a price that you can afford to pay. A small down payment and the balance in twelve months.

It looked like a happy discovery as it lay there on the sidewalk—until the discoverer reached to pick it up. Then the hidden string jerked it away. All William got was disappointment.

That's the way a good many people have found it to be with the comfort and cheer they thought they had secured in tea and coffee. When they came to depend on it—there was a hidden string, and nothing left but disappointment.

The drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee, is a nerve stimulant. Constant stimulation of the nerves often produces rebellion that takes the form of sleeplessness, headaches, irritability, high blood pressure. That's the string to tea and coffee.

Postum, that wholesome and delightful cereal beverage, is completely satisfying and there's no harmful quality whatsoever, to jerk away the comfort which you find in this splendid table drink. Any member of the family may enjoy Postum with any meal—and there will be no after-regrets.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by grocers.

'I WONDER,' MRS. ASQUITH SAYS, WHEN ASKED IF SHE WILL RETURN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Mrs. Margot Asquith sailed back to England yesterday on the Mauretania. But the eager smile with which the wife of a former British Prime Minister came to America to lecture was missing. Nor had she any farewell message to leave with reporters. The diarist went aboard just 15 minutes before the gang plank was pulled ashore.

"We hope you are coming back," a reporter said.

Then she hurried to her stateroom, where Princess Bibesco, her daughter, and Prince Bibesco, were room.

Col. Charles Repington was another British lecturer to sail on the Mauretania. The vessel will try to lower her record of four days and 10 hours.

Alleged Rum Runners Seized Again.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Federal prohibition agents yesterday seized the oil burning yacht Patricia for the third time and reported the confiscation of 75 cases of assorted liquor. The Patricia was ordered released twice before, after being seized by Federal agents, once in San Francisco in February and again off Miami, Fla., in March, when 500 cases of liquors were found aboard.

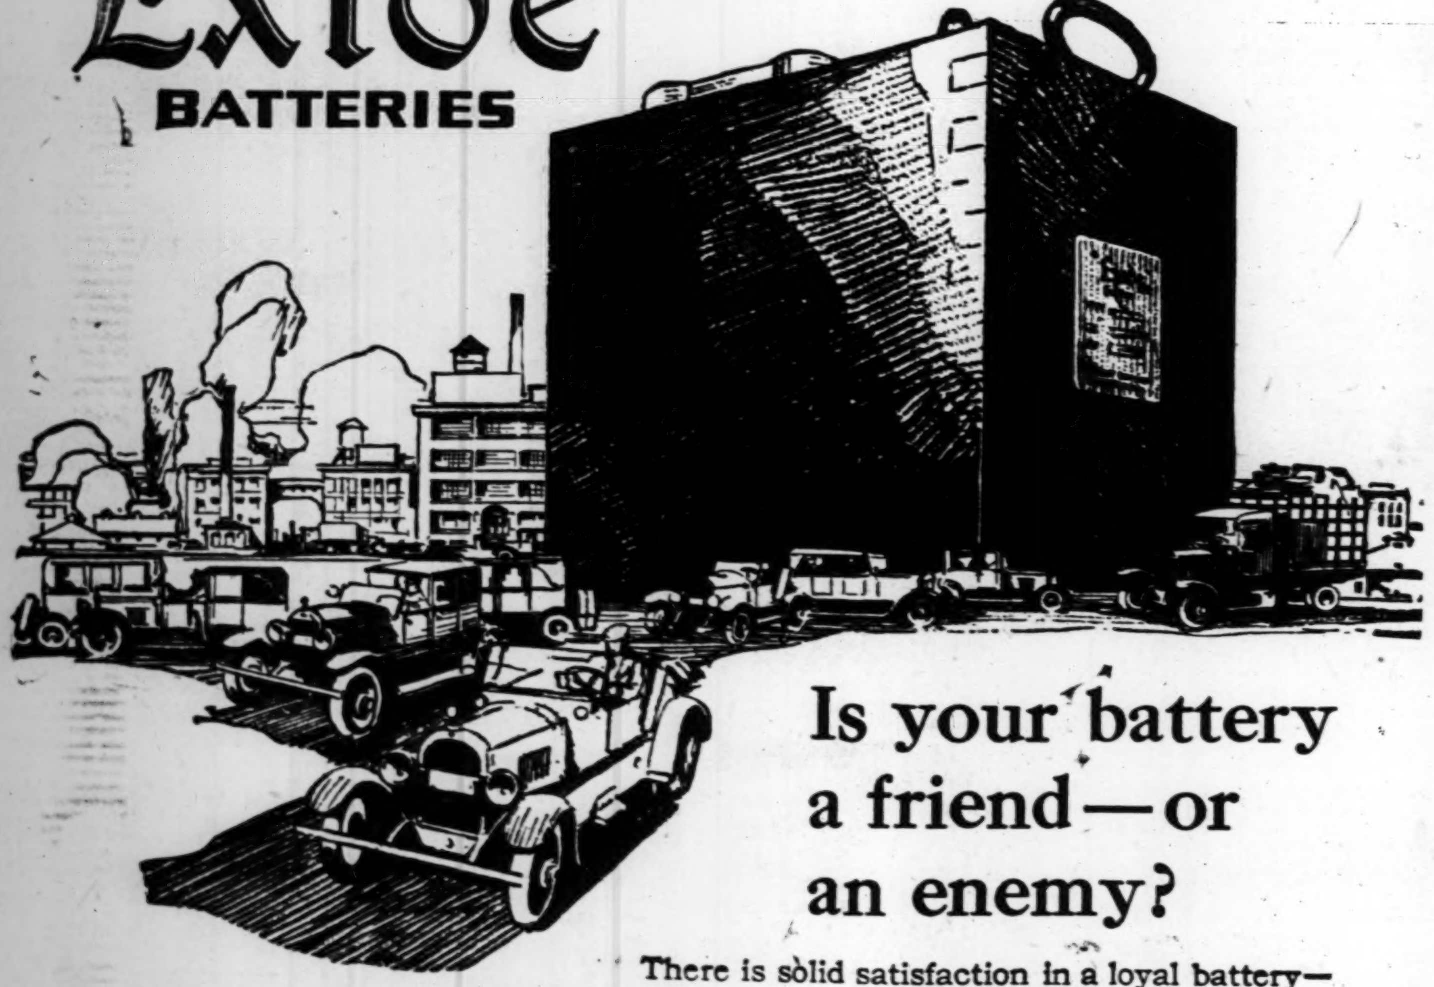
BATTERIES



Is your battery a friend—or an enemy?

There is solid satisfaction in a loyal battery—one that you can rely on to do its duty in your car and never leave you in the lurch.

It is up to you whether your battery is friend or enemy, or it will be when the time comes to choose a new battery.

When an Exide is in your car, you know there will be instant response as your foot touches the starting-pedal. Click!—and the road is bright from your lights. Never does your motor lack the spark to give it life.

But bodily comfort is not all you get from an Exide Battery. You can get pocketbook comfort as well, because the Exide lasts so much longer.

A Complete Cycle of Service

IN directing the affairs of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) the 7 men responsible for its management and success keep constantly before them the ideals of service which have animated the organization in its development.

They are ever mindful of the fact that the service rendered by this Company bears a close and intimate relation to the progress, success and prosperity of practically every other industry. And that it has a major bearing on many professional and highly specialized branches of business.

They recognize the grave responsibility of supplying petroleum products to those who use the internal combustion engine as a source of power, and to those who depend upon this Company to lubricate their equipment in such manner as to conserve the power and the machinery which it operates.

These are the major and more obvious services rendered, but equal attention is given to problems affecting an individual or a small group.

This service may take the form of expert advice as to the best method of lubricating a single machine, it may be something to reduce the labor of the housewife, or to assist the medical profession in serving humanity. It may be a new kind of pavement or a method to increase or conserve the food supply.

These are but a few of the hundreds of ways in which Standard Oil service, positive and clearly defined, is helping and adding to the efficiency and economy of business generally.

As an example of how far this service is carried, we may mention the recently developed burning oil, Neolite, which supplies a growing demand for an oil used primarily in incubators and brooders, where a steady, unvarying heat must be maintained over a considerable period of time. To those who use incubators and brooders, Neolite is of great value.

While it is probable that the sales of this product will never attain a large volume, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) adds it to its long list of useful products that it may further discharge its obligation in rendering a complete cycle of service to 25 million people of 11 Middle Western States.

A DAILY DOUBLE PAG

"NAMING" THE EASTER BRIDE

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

MORAL:—A Lucy Stone by Any Other Name Would Sound as Well.

THE Easter Bride appealed to the Wise Woman:
"Ive been reading," said the Bride, "a Whole Lot
About why, even though we are married"—
The Bride blushed becomingly—
"I ought not to take my husband's name!
There seem to be so many good reasons.
My Name, somebody argues, is my Individuality.
My Name belongs to me, and I to It;
I ought not to Sink Myself in my Husband's identity.
The custom which makes a wife give up her Name for that of the man she marries
Is Tyrannous.
Why should all my friends be compelled to think of me under a New Name?
A woman has a Right to Her Own Name
No matter whom she marries—or how many.
There Ought to Be a Law—!
I forget the rest of the arguments,
But they all sound well, and lots of Fearless Feminists are advancing them.
I haven't spoken to John about it—yet.
But don't you think perhaps I ought to keep on calling myself Jane Smith,
Even now that I have become"——again the Bride blushed——
"Mrs. John Brown?"
"There's nothing on earth to stop you,"
Cheerfully conceded the Wise Woman.
"Nothing at all, except the United States Government,
Personally, I can't see myself shedding salty tears—
Or giving up a trip to Europe—
Even if, on my passport, I were fitted with the name of Jemima Salina Papadopolous Schweytznikech,
Or any other combination of consonants and vowels.
It isn't the custom any longer to frame one's passport, or even one's marriage certificate,
My child, for all ordinary purposes and functions,
You may wear any name you choose.
Calling cards are still on the self-determination list.
Yet, if you're really going to make a point of this 'own name' stuff,
Why not have your cards engraved, simply and sweetly, 'Jane?'
That's really the only name that belongs to you—
At least, you have part ownership with two or three million other 'Janes.'
'Smith' isn't your name—it belongs to your father,
Isadora Duncan had the truly logical idea:
'Call me Isadora,' the great dancer once implored me.
'I don't care so much for Duncan—it belongs to my father,
One name is enough! There was Tristan—
And Isolde—and Romeo—and Juliet!'
If you, my dear, would be equally consistent,
You must say, bravely, boldly: 'There is JANE!'
But if you want to know what I really think—
I think this new crusade for one's old name is Feminism gone to seed!
If you, or any other bride, should have a name worth keeping,
You simply can't LOSE IT!
Look at Lillian Russell!
Lillian—like Troy—WAS before she married anybody.
Now that she's married four, doesn't she still remain Lillian Russell?
You have a name of your own
WHEN YOU MAKE IT!
When, through your own achievements, your name has the value of a copyright, or a trademark,
You naturally hang on to it, for revenue only,
And save yourself tiresome explanations, even then,
By having your husband's name signed to the hotel register—
Particularly if you take him and the baby along!
Possessing a professional name and a domestic-social name is really rather good fun—
Indeed, one has the thrill of leading a perfectly blameless double life!
Why make an Issue of an Item?
A Lucy Stone by any other name would sound as well.
There are too many real wrongs and injustices in the world
To waste time, energy, propaganda on the point
Of whether you should eat fish before soup,
Or whether a nice, unimportant little girl
Whose name doesn't mean a thing to a headline writer
Should be 'Jane Smith' or 'Mrs. John Brown.'
Be either—or neither—or both!
Who's stopping you?
But for heaven's sake, let's talk about something important!"

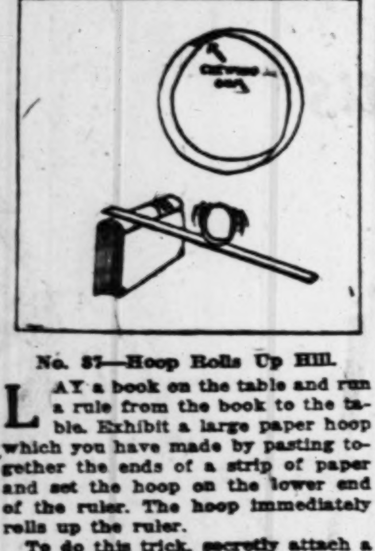
After-Dinner Tricks



No. 87—Hoop Rolls Up Hill.

LAY a book on the table and run a rule from the book to the table. Exhibit a large paper hoop which you have made by pasting together the ends of a strip of paper and set the hoop on the lower end of the ruler. The hoop immediately rolls up the ruler.

To do this trick, secretly attach a bit of chewing gum, in which you have imbedded a small stone or bit of metal, to the inside of the hoop. The stone should be at the top of the hoop, slightly toward the upper end of the ruler. Its weight will cause the hoop to roll up hill.

UNCOMMON SENSE

THE PRAISE HOUND.

It is easy, however, to become a praise addict—to consume it with a very ill-seeming gluttony.

If you discover that you are becoming a praise hound, it will be well for you to check that tendency before it is too late.

You know the sort of person who is fond of praise—usually weak-minded, always vain.

Women who have character as well as beauty soon learn that most praise is flattery—and pay little attention to it.

Silly and stupid women "eat it up," as the saying goes, and are soon so hungry for it that they cannot endure people who do not continue to tell them how lovely they are.

Beauty is so rare, however, that praise hunger for that reason does not do a great deal of mischief.

It is the man or the woman who hunts praise for every piece of work performed—for every good action—who stands in need of warning.

Actors, drinking praise in the form of applause over the footlights, are prone to become so spoiled in a little while that their real value soon vanishes.

Writers, artists, people of public or semi-public life, are always in danger of becoming "praise hounds."

Kind words are so agreeable, and so difficult to classify, that it is natural to purr like a comfortable cat while they are being rained on one.

But they are always dangerous. They tend to create a feeling of self-satisfaction—and as soon as a human being becomes satisfied with himself he loses the necessary incentive to improve.

"I cannot thrive without appreciation," many of your friends will tell you. "I must be understood and commended for what I do; otherwise achievement is impossible."

Achievement is always impossible to people who talk or think like that.

Earned praise is pleasant. But praise simply because it is praise is one of the most destructive things in life. If you are becoming too fond of it, look out. It is more dangerous than most of the drugs that the doctors tell you to avoid, and it will always be prevalent because, unlike drugs, it can never be prohibited by law.

Do St. Louis Girls Demand Too Much of Their Escorts?

Letters to Woman's Page Editor Discuss Charge That Boys Who Try to Entertain Girls Are Kept Broke.

FIVE AVERAGE GIRLS EXPRESS VIEWS OF MEN

In answer to the letter of the Average Young Man in the Post-Dispatch of March 31, we emphatically deny the charges made by him.

We are modern girls, but are not parasites. We are not five prudes, but five girls with bobbed locks, with good common sense, fun-loving, and do like to have a good time in a good clean way. All of us dance, swim, keep house, bake, cook, make all our own clothes, tend to babies if necessary, besides work for a living. We do not expect a young man to spend much money on us. In fact, whenever we are invited by a young man to go to a show always choose a movie show, because most of them cost less to attend than other shows. After the show if we are invited to have something it is nearly always ice cream. Once in a great while we might vary this program and have something else to eat, but not often. Our idea is not to have them spend their salary of a whole week in one night, but to stretch it as far as possible, and if most of the young men would look for girls of this kind they would see that they can take a girl out and spend not more than about $2 for the evening, thereby making their salaries go a long way. As far as the taxi is concerned, we are all well satisfied with the United Railways system, which charges 7 cents per person, which will not break any man. Most of the young men who take girls out in taxis don't do it just for the pleasure of riding, and we would not be at all interested in a young man who carries stuff costing from $6 to $12 per pint on his hip, for we absolutely do not indulge. The kind of men who can't be without their drinks, and are forever raving about drinking, are absolutely disgusting.

Most of the average young men do not look for a sensible girl, they want a clinging vine, and if they marry that kind get very much disgusted with her, or they want a girl who dresses the finest, steps the liveliest and can go the fastest pace, therefore, why should they not pay the price?

How many of the average young men take out a girl just for the pleasure of her company? Most of them have this idea in their minds, just how much love and kisses they will get when they get to her home, and if the girl refuses to kiss him he never comes back. Well, that is just a good riddance of bad rubbish in our estimation.

If a young man wants it known that he is going out with a society lady who spends loads of money, wouldn't think of riding on a street car, etc., why, of course, it will cost him lots of money.

Also, how few of the young men nowadays will stay at home when calling on a girl and play cards? Then, if they do stay home, they gradually begin to forget that the girl likes to go out to a show or a dance once in a while, too. Many a time we have entertained young men at our home, danced, played cards and had lunch (which the young men did not pay for) and had a generally good time. This happened time and again, and when these same men wanted to go to a show, why, they forgot all about the girls who entertained them so nicely and invited other girls to the show. Is this fair? Another thing, most of the young men insist on "sowing their wild oats" when they are young, and then want a good girl to marry them and settle down.

As to a girl paying her own way when she goes out with a young man, like one of the other letters read, why, we would rather go out without the men if we have to stand the expense of our own way. We can have a much better time just among ourselves, and don't have to be bothered with the men if we are going to pay our own expenses.

Wake up, young men, and if there are any among you who are other than the so-called cake-eaters and hootch hounds we would like to hear from you through this column and are willing to be convinced, but feel it will be hard to do so. We have gone out with various types and find them all alike, but are willing to alter our opinion if anyone is capable of doing so.

FIVE AVERAGE GIRLS.

MEN LOOKING FOR THE "JAZZ BABIES"

To the Editor of the Women's Page.

The average young man does not care for the girl who will not jazz and who is satisfied with a simple entertainment. She is "slow" and "old-fashioned." It is only the type of girl who demands costly entertainment whose company the young men seek. Where are all these young men who SAY they want the girl who would be satisfied with a little? If they want that kind of a girl why do they pass her up for a "jazz baby" and "bright-light" kind of girl? TWENTY-ONE.

HIS PURSE DOES NOT COUNT WITH HER

After reading, with interest, the letter written to your column by "An Average Young Man," would like to give some of my views regarding this matter. Evidently this young man has not found the right class of girls as yet. I'll admit there is a certain class of girls who consider a man's purse before they consider the man, but I don't think all St. Louis girls should be placed in that class.

I think most any worth-while girl would rather be with THE fellow in the world for her, and enjoy moderate-priced entertainment, than go stepping out with anyone at all who could spend large amounts of money on her. Also, I think fair-minded girls appreciate young men who have a desire to save for the future, because there are so few of that kind of young men these days. I believe I speak for my friends as well as for myself.

Now, don't think that I am a prude and stay-at-home when I talk like this, because I'm not. Like a good show or a good dance as well as anyone, but do not believe in extremes either way. Am 21 years of age and have bobbed hair (because I like it) and am trying to get my share of life's happiness.

AN AVERAGE GIRL.

HE LIKES ST. LOUIS GIRLS—1922 MODEL

To the Editor of the Women's Page.

I read with interest the letter of the fellow who signs himself "An Average Young Man," but it seems to me that he is traveling in the wrong sphere.

I was born and raised in St. Louis, but have been in larger and smaller places, and I must say you cannot find better and more sensible girls than the ones we have here. "An average young man" must either be a poor fish or is trying to rush girls who are not in his class; that is, girls who are accustomed to every luxury.

If "An Average Young Man" is contemplating marriage, let him find the girl and let her know of his intentions, and she will either accept him and go light on his pocketbook thereafter, or in plain words show him the gate.

THEY WANT THE MEN TO PAY

To the Editor of the Women's Page.

The girl of 1922 is the prize-winning girl of all ages. She is capable of keeping up with the young men of today and she isn't as slow as the girls of our grandmother's days and I glory in her spunk.

Perhaps this country boy doesn't associate with anything but flappers and goes with the first one that comes along just because she has skirts on. If he would study the individuals before judging, he may be surprised and meet the right type. Of course, when the girls see he is slow they may be just trying to work him. He must be one of these weak-minded men who judge all girls alike. If he thinks the girls of his home town are so good, why doesn't he pick one for a wife?

In regard to the young man who thinks girls should pay their own way when out with a young man, he certainly must be a grouch. If he cares to have the company of a young lady he certainly should pay her way; for how is a girl to know if he cares for her if he doesn't show this respect? If a girl should pay her way when single, I suppose he would expect her to pay her way after marriage. TWO MODERN GIRLS.

ONLY EXPENSIVE GIRLS APPRECIATED

To the Editor of the Women's Page.

I have been reading the letter of "An Average Young Man," and I know how he feels toward the St. Louis Girl. But all of us are not like that. There are many young ladies who are satisfied to go to a movie and ice-cream parlor, and they enjoy the evening as much as the girl who goes to the most expensive show and restaurant. But a young man does not seem to appreciate that kind of a girl as much as the expensive kind.

Try the girl who knows how to help a young man save his money, and see if you don't enjoy her company just as much.

A MODERN GIRL-PAL.

GIRLS ARE NOT ALL THE SAME

To the Editor of the Women's Page.

In answer to "An Average Young Man," will say that I think he is a little wrong in classing girls all alike. I for one don't believe in a young man spending all of his money on costly food, theater tickets and jazz. If said young man takes out a working girl I am sure she won't demand such extravagances, as she knows the value of money, but if he takes one who stays at home who is used to having everything she wants, he can expect such demands and I think if he is only earning a fair salary he should have enough sense not to choose that kind, as he can readily see if he marries her she will never be able to help him save, which she would have to do to enable him to "get somewhere." I, myself, don't like a young man to spend so much, because I figure he will not be eligible for a husband if he does, but have found it the case with most young men, that, if you refuse to go somewhere to eat after a show, they feel hurt or think you're a dead-head.

ONE DIFFERENT THAN THE "AVERAGE GIRL."

A Loveless Marriage

The Absorbing Story of a Woman's Heart

By RUBY M. AYRES.
(Copyright, 1922.)

EIGHTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

I WROTE to Richard

I told him that Elsa had said how kind he had been to her in Paris; that her eighteenth birthday was at the end of the month, and would he come?

Then I signed myself "yours sincerely," and took the letter down for Elsa to read.

It did not content her; she said that she thought I might have made it more friendly.

"I shouldn't be surprised if he refuses," she told me, discontentedly. But he accepted.

Two days later his answer came.

"Dear Mrs. Furnival—Many thanks for your kind invitation to your daughter's party. I shall be only too delighted to be present, and am already looking forward to seeing her again. If convenient to you I will come on the Tuesday night. Yours sincerely, Richard Tempest."

It looks as if Elsa is going to make a capture of your old flame," he said.

"Mr. Tempest was never anything but a friend," I told him, but my heart throbbed as I remembered that night down by the sea, in Devonshire—and the touch of his lips on mine.

If he had changed—well, how could I blame him? He had been a lonely man all his life for my sake. How could I blame him if, in my pretty daughter, he fancied he saw an echo of the happiness we had lost"

But I dread his coming—how I dread it.

It is like some dreadful nightmare from which I can never escape. Even now, as I sit and write, and see the flags flying above the gateway, my heart is throbbing with apprehension.

She was shorter than he, she looked almost a child in comparison, and my heart cried out in bitter rebellion that such a thing as marriage between these two should be possible. And yet nobody would have guessed such a gulf of years divided them. Richard was one of those men who will never really grow old; he is hardly gray now, and his figure is as upright as ever.

He was saying something to Elsa in a low voice as I came down the stairs, and she was smiling and blushing. I went forward quietly, and held out my hand.

"How do you do?" I said; and I was afraid that they would detect the agitation in my voice.

"How do you do?" Richard answered gravely, and we shook hands as if he were no more to me than any other man, as if he had never kissed me, never said he loved me.

Elsa went off to change her dress, and we were left together. I asked if he would have any refreshment. I apologized for my husband's absence. I said that I expected him back to dinner, and then, because it seemed so unbearably hot in the house, I suggested that we should go and walk around the garden.

"You have never seen my garden, have you?" I asked him; and he answered gravely that he never had.

There was a strained unreality between us. I stole a glance at him as we walked across the lawn, and wondered if it had only been a dream that he had ever held me in his arms.

My blood had been fire then; it felt like ice now as I walked by his side and reminded myself that I was the mother of the girl whom he had come to see, that he was only showing me attention to please her, that our brief midsummer madness had died out in the glory and wonder of that golden night, that it had just been the finish of the love I had always borne him.

I showed him my roses, we always have a wonderful show of roses at Nascot House, and I told him how years ago my father had torn up the trees because he could not bear to see them after my mother's death.

"He must have loved her very much, I think," I added, with a memory of that day I saw her lying dead on the long table in the dining room. "She was very beautiful."

"A man can have no greater loss than that of the woman he loves," said Richard quietly.

I GLANCED at Richard timidly but he was looking straight ahead of him down the garden, and seemed to have forgotten me.

Once, as we passed through the rose garden, a thorny branch of a climber caught my hair. I struggled to free myself but could not, and, flushed and embarrassed, I had to call him—he had walked on in front of me—to come and help me.

He came back at once and gently disentangled the branch.

It seemed to take a long time, and for a wild, wicked moment I closed my eyes, and thought of that evening in Devonshire when he had put his arms round me.

He would never do that again. I had had my glimpse of paradise, and the gates were shut and barred in my face. But, thank God, no one can rob us of memory, we can hug it to our hearts when they are starving, and feed on it, and drink our fill from the fountain of bygone sweetness.

I felt as if I had never really been young as I walked in the scented garden with Richard, and wondered if he were feeling very impatient because Elsa was not with us.

Francis came home just after the gong had sounded for dinner. He had been out riding and was tired and irritable; he was not at all effusive in his welcome to Richard; he was silent and moody all dinner-time.

Elsa chatted away excitedly. She sat between her father and Richard; and a young man and his sister whom I had asked to make up the party sat opposite.

The man was a baronet, the title had unexpectedly come to him through the accidental death of an uncle, and as yet he was a little overwhelmed with the importance of it.

He was a stogy-looking boy of about five-and-twenty, with mild blue eyes that seemed to follow Elsa in every movement and gesture.

His sister was insipid and giggled at everything she said as if apologizing for its inanity. I thought they were a most uninteresting pair; but Elsa liked having a baronet on our visiting list. I believe that she would have married him had her fancy not already been caught by Richard.

WHEN Elsa and I went into the drawing room, leaving the men alone, she flew straight to the mirror.

"Do I looke nice?" she asked excitedly. "Do you think Mr. Tempest noticed that I had done my hair in the way he liked?"

"I am sure he did, dear," I answered, and tried to smile. She swung around, and looked at me consideringly.

"Have you got a headache?" she asked.

"Oh, no! Why!"

"You look as if you have, that's all," she told me. "Mr. Tempest said he thought you looked very ill. He talks quite a lot about you."

"Because I am your mother, of course," I forced myself to say.

She laughed and blushed.

"Do you think it is?" She rushed over to where I sat, and dropped on her knees beside me. "I should be the happiest girl in the world if he would ask me to marry him," she whispered ashamedly, and hid her face in my lap.

Poor little Elsa! I stroked her hair; she told me pettishly that I should spoil her curls, and jerked her head impatiently away.

"He told me that I was very like what you were as a girl," she went on. "I don't quite know what he meant, because we're not really a bit alike, are we? I always think I'm like father. Dicky was more like you, wasn't he?"

I nodded. Somehow I could not bring myself to speak of my boy.

"And Mr. Tempest said"—she rattled on—"that you were most awfully pretty when you were young. I think he said he never met a woman whom he admired more. Mother, do you know why he has never married? He's so good-looking, he must have had a lot of women fond of him."

"Or perhaps Miss Right is already engaged to some one else," said Elsa thoughtfully. —

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter's Heart Leaps for Joy.

By Thornton W. Burgess

PETER RABBIT was excited. It was a happy kind of excitement. He had heard the soft, plaintive whistle of Winsome Bluebird and he just couldn't stay in the dear Old Briarpatch any longer. It was so long since he had seen Winsome that his eyes fairly ached for a glimpse of Winsome's beautiful blue coat. Peter hopped out from the dear Old Briarpatch and sat up to look and listen. Again he heard that soft whistle, and as before it seemed to come from nowhere in particular. Peter knew by experience that Winsome might be a long way off or he might be close at hand.

"Probably he is sitting on a fence-post," thought Peter, and straightway began to look at all the fence-posts in sight. But Winsome wasn't on any of these. Again came that soft, sweet whistle. Peter turned hastily and looked up in the top of a tall, lone tree on the Green Meadows. On the topmost twig sat a bird. He was too far away for Peter to see the color of his coat, but he knew without seeing that this was Winsome himself.

Straight for the lone tree scampered Peter, lipperty-lipperty-lip, lipperty-lipperty-lip, as fast as he could go. But before he got there Winsome Bluebird spread his wings and flew over to the Old Orchard. Peter was disappointed, but he promptly turned toward the Old Orchard. Half way there he stopped abruptly and again sat up to listen. And again his heart leaped with joy.

"Cheer-up! Cheer-up! Cheer-up! Cheer!" came a new voice from over near Farmer Brown's house.

"Welcome Robin!" cried Peter, and once more began to run, lipperty-lipperty-lip. As he drew near the Old Orchard he heard another voice. It came from the bushes growing along the old stone wall. It was a beautiful little tinkling song and Peter stopped and held his breath to listen. Again he heard it. It was a song of perfect happiness. No one could hear it and not be happy, too. "Little Friend the Song Sparrow!" cried Peter. "Now I know that spring is here. When Winsome Bluebird and Welcome Robin and Little Friend arrive it means that winter has ended. Oh, I'm so glad! so glad!"

He hurried on until he reached the old stone wall along the edge of the Old Orchard. There he found little brown-coated Little Friend singing joyously. And in the nearest apple tree sat Winsome Bluebird. Of course they were glad to see Peter. Welcome Robin presently came over, and, then how their tongues did fly! Of course, Peter wanted to know all about the other friends who had not yet come up from the Sunny South, and, of course, Winsome and Welcome and Little Friend wanted to know all about what kind of a winter Peter had spent and the news of all those who had remained instead of going to the Sunny South.

"Is Johnny Chuck awake yet?" asked Winsome.

"And what about Happy Jack Squirrel, and Bobby Coon, and Jerry Muskrat and Jimmy Skunk, and Danny Meadow Mouse?" asked Welcome Robin.

Peter told all the news he could think of and in return asked all the questions he could think of. And all the time down inside a little, still voice kept saying over and over, "Spring is here! Spring is here!"

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Too Busy.

SAID BINKS: "I'd love to study Greek and read some classic fiction; I'd like to put 12 hours each week on history and diction. I long to freshen up my voice so I could do some singing, for if I were to have my choice, I'd keep the welkin ringing." The fact is, though, I haven't time, in days so swiftly fleeting; no time to read French prose or rhyme, or go with Wife to meeting. No time to plant the garden seed or do a bit of hoeing; no time to aid a friend in need or keep the furnace going." It all was true, this Mr. Binks had always had to hustle four hours daily on the links, developing his muscle. He was not up on politics nor plans of foreign Powers. He had no time to feed the chicks or cultivate the flowers. He could not help on moving day; he could not wash the flivver; but had to go 10 miles away and swim across the river. He often said: "It seems a crime the days cannot move slower, because they never give me time to run the new lawn mower." Oh, sad, indeed, was Blinks' lot, no time to rock the baby, no time to weed the garden plot; he was too busy, maybe!

WHAT IS LOVE?

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

MORTAL man oft asks this question—What is Love?
'Tis then I know that he is poor indeed—for I am Love!
And he who asks has ne'er beheld me,
Since my ways are devious and means are many
By which he may know me well,
For I am the arch enemy of Hate.
The human looks with compassion on everything
When I am in his heart.
I am the leaven of life,
For I raise the hope of him and her
And soften the struggle against sordidness.
The wolf may come, but I muffle his howl.
I regulate the pendulum of time
And put wrinkles in the shade.
I am the only key to which there is no duplicate.
I laugh at locksmiths
I am the soothing zephyr in the seething center of strife.
I am the unfailing torch that lights the road of reform.
I am the one ointment
That makes the marriage wheel go without screeching.
When I enter the hovel of the pauper
Without me man is but a beast;
To a man I am a pastime; to all women a servitude.
But mark you well!
He who ever treats me lightly
Lives to bear the burden of loneliness.
Who am I? What am I? Where am I?
I am the monitor of life and death,
For there are those who die for want of me and for the loss of me.
I am the loaf of life and each needs me.
But when I close the eyelids
The soul whispers,
"'Tis well with the world."
Since the first day I am the Ruler of the Realm,
The prompter of Progress—the Servitor of Civilization,
The King of Happiness.

DR. JAEGER'S SANITARY WOOLEN SYSTEM CO.
NEW YORK.

Lever Bros. Co.,
Cambridge, Mass.

Gentlemen:

We had a natural-colored camel's hair sweater and a King blue scarf of soft wool tested with Lux. Each was given the average number of washings for a garment of this kind.

At the end of the washings the garments showed practically no sign of wear and the wools still retained their softness and springiness. The loss of color in the yarns was so slight that it would not have been perceptible to the average woman.

A strong or harsh soap would not only have shrunk the wool and taken away its elasticity, but would have faded the colors as well. There could be no more convincing testimonial to the purity and mildness of Lux than the way our woolens looked after repeated launderings in it.

Very truly yours,

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

TO A BLACKBIRD.

What time I tilled the sodden soil
  Embedded in it to the knee,
And spent with unaccustomed toil,
  You came and sang a song to me.
A lovely little song it was—
  The kind that only you can sing—
And I was deeply touched, because
  It seemed to breathe of love, and spring.

Each day, for many a weary week,
  Your bright and flashing wings were spread,
While you went playing hide and seek
  Among the boughs above my head.
High in the branches you would lurk
  Until the sun had set, and then—
You watched me bid farewell to work

I fancied you were more than kind,
  Who might among the skies have flown,
If thus you haply were inclined
  To come and sing for me alone.
To give to me what Shelley called
  Your unpremeditated art
My simple trusting soul enthralled,
  But ah! I little knew your heart

For when the seeds were in the ground
  Before the roots began to stir
To my intense disgust I found
  You knew exactly where they were:
That song you sang at fall of night,
  You unrepentant little sinner,
That gave me such a fool's delight
  Was merely grace before your dinner!

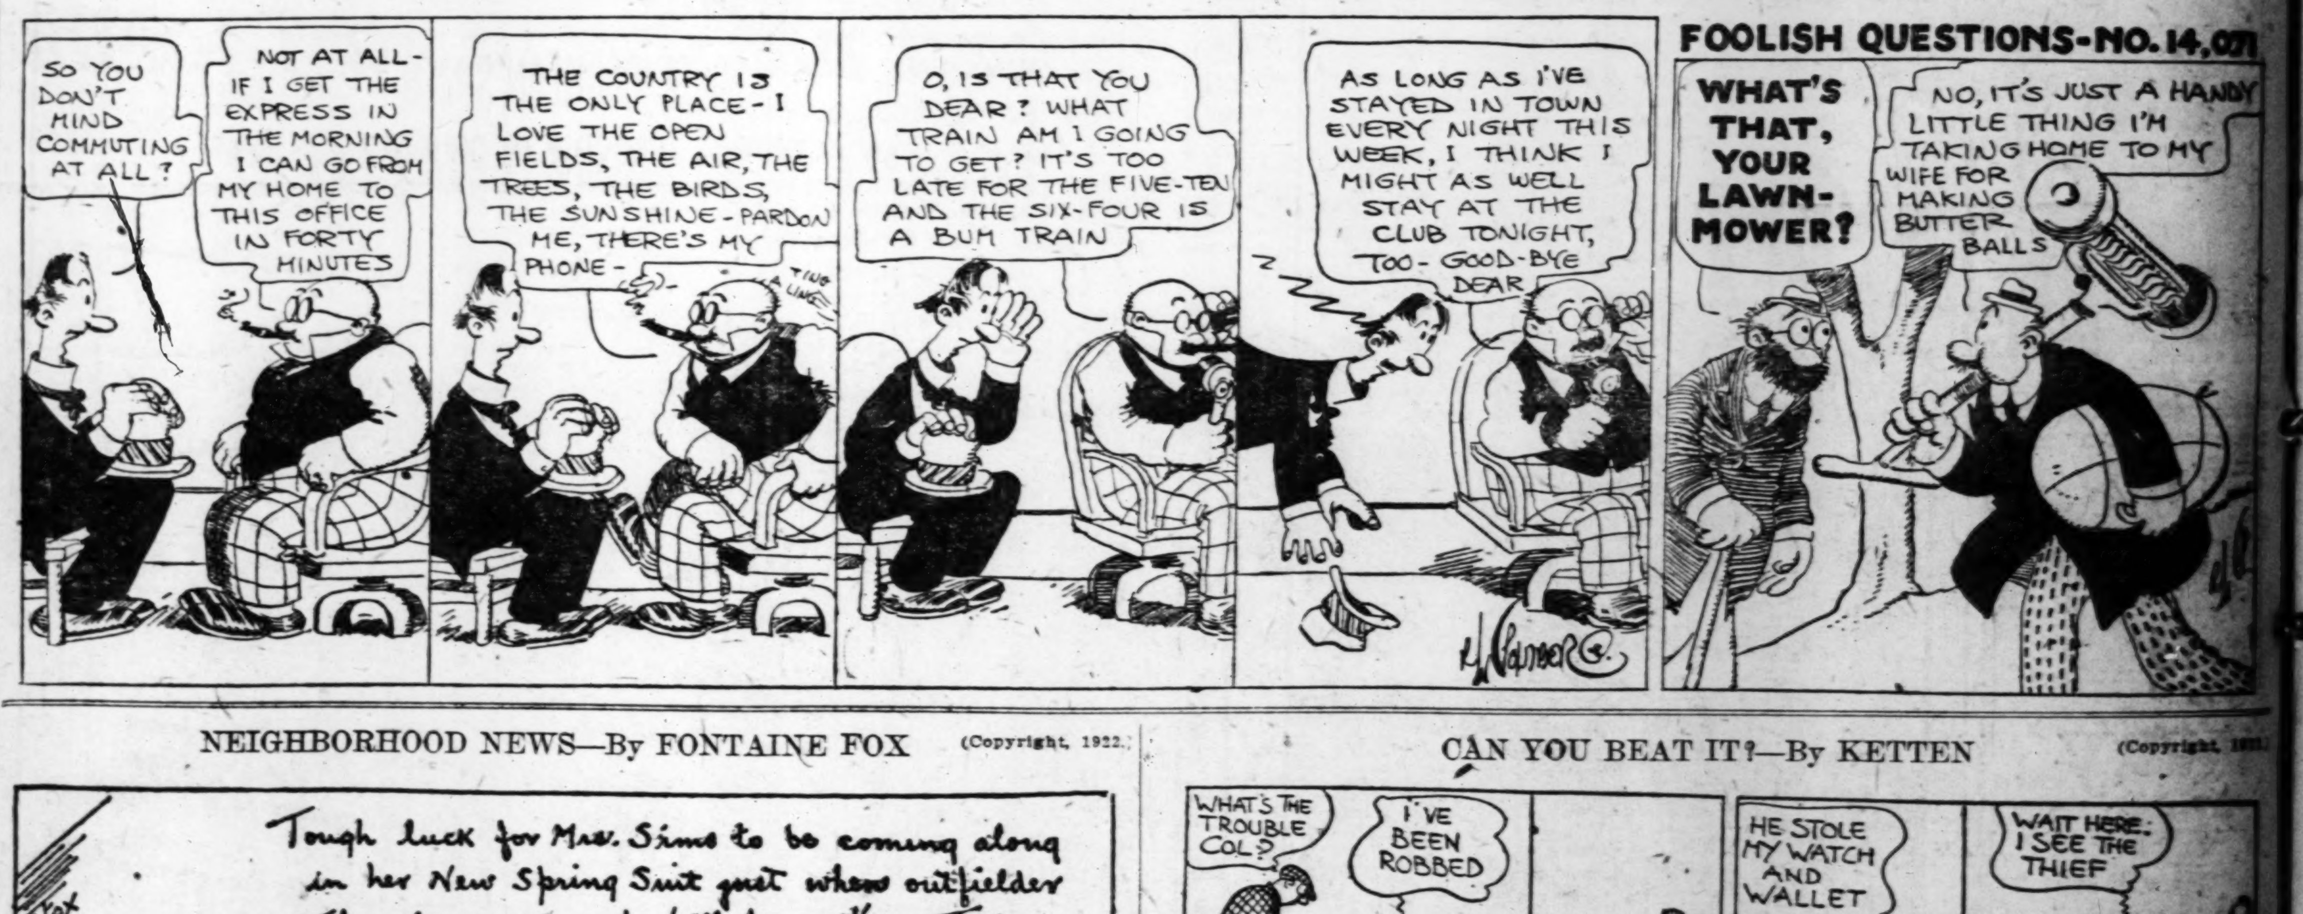
COMMUTERS DON'T MIND COMMUTING WHEN THEY DON'T COMMUTE—By RUBE GOLDBERG

(Copyright, 1922.)



SO YOU DON'T MIND COMMUTING AT ALL?
NOT AT ALL— IF I GET THE EXPRESS IN THE MORNING I CAN GO FROM MY HOME TO THIS OFFICE IN FORTY MINUTES
THE COUNTRY IS THE ONLY PLACE—I LOVE THE OPEN FIELDS, THE AIR, THE TREES, THE BIRDS, THE SUNSHINE—PARDON ME, THERE'S MY PHONE—
TING A LING
O, IS THAT YOU DEAR? WHAT TRAIN AM I GOING TO GET? IT'S TOO LATE FOR THE FIVE-TEN AND THE SIX-FOUR IS A BUM TRAIN
AS LONG AS I'VE STAYED IN TOWN EVERY NIGHT THIS WEEK, I THINK I MIGHT AS WELL STAY AT THE CLUB TONIGHT, TOO—GOOD-BYE DEAR

CAN YOU BEAT IT?—By KETTEN

(Copyright, 1922.)

I'VE BEEN ROBBED
HE STOLE MY WATCH AND WALLET
WAIT HERE: I SEE THE THIEF
YOU CROOK! I TOLD YOU TO KEEP AWAY FROM THIS BEAT
THESE ARE MINE
PUT 'EM BACK IN YOUR POCKET
THANK YOU EVER SO MUCH
DON'T MENTION IT HE HAD NO RIGHT TO ROB YOU
I HAVE THE EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO THIS TERRITORY
CAN YOU BEAT IT!
